Rich Brides Often Sad Says Designer of Cakes

By MARY BRIME. United Press International. New York — (UPI) — Georgette de Malvilain designs wedding cakes for brides who have everything, but happiness.

For 30 years, Mrs. de Malvilain has headed Madame Blanche, Inc., which makes fabulous cakes for all occasions. Most customers are brides from society and diplomatic circles.

"But most of the brides have not been happy. There is a story behind nearly every cake, and usually the story is sad. I think it must be the money that does it," said Mrs. de Malvilain in an interview at her shop, which looks like a museum of wedding cakes.

"It seems that the brides who have the most money wind up the unhappiest—divorced, ill, or laughed at by people who cater to them just for their money. Sometimes I think it's really better to be poor—or at least not so rich," said the cake designer.

She and her daughter run the business, which Mrs. de Malvilain's mother started in 1904.

A Fortunate Sale. "My mother was French and lost her fortune. She and an English woman, who had an old recipe for black Douglas Scottish fruit cake, hit on this idea. They struggled along for a few years, then sold a cake to Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish. In those days, when you had Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, you had everyone," she said.

Today, the firm ships cakes all over the world, counts Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower among current customers and has whipped up cakes for five other presidents and their wives. Kings, queens, and Girl Scouts have sampled the cakes.

One fancy model was sent to the minister of foreign affairs in Panama and occupied a ship state room on the trip.

Mrs. de Malvilain employs four persons and adds more help during the rush months—December and June. Every cake is custom-made with fresh ingredients—"no plaster," she said. Only persons from the same family are allowed to have a duplicate design. Many designs and decorations are handed down from mother to daughter.

All Decorations Used. Cakes are decorated with everything from cupids to crowns, sailboats, horses, and even a million dollar's worth of diamond jewelry. Prices range from $10 up.

Most expensive model was a $5,000, six-tiered birthday cake called "The Temple of Motherhood." It was made in 1913 for a millionaire's mother on her 80th birthday. It contained 80 boxes of fruit cake and favors, and was decorated with rare pink orchids, 80 electric lights, hearts, fresh flowers, cupids, pillars and horns of plenty.

Where did she get her own wedding cake? "Not here. That's always the way," she said.

PEO Sisterhood Names Winners of Scholarships

Five scholarships to Cottey college in Nevada, Mo., were announced last night during an open meeting of the Oregon chapter, PEO sisterhood, held in First Methodist church. Education was the theme of the session, arranged by Mrs. E. E. Vehrs, Grants Pass, first vice-president of the state chapter.

Miss Sally Stearns, Bend, won the $450 Veda Jones scholarship and Miss Barbara McDonald, Hillsboro, the $450 Mary McFadden scholarship. Three composite scholarships were won by Miss Karen Lantz, Redmond; Miss Margaret Lemon, Eugene, and Miss Ailsa Crawford, Milwaukie.

Two scholarships of $250 for Oregon colleges went to Miss June Sinn, Portland, and Miss Carol Larson, Klamath Falls.

PEO's Cottey college is the only college in the world owned, operated and maintained by a women's organization. Last year Oregon had nine girls at the school, six of whom graduated this month.

Because the sisterhood believes that education is fundamental to world peace and understanding, international peace scholarships were established. A total of 91 PEO scholarship students attended 63 colleges of their choice in Canada and the United States during the year just closed. The students represented 29 different countries.

Miss Akemi Hatakeyama, Japanese student attending the Portland Art Museum on a peace scholarship, spoke last night.

About 1200 women have been aided in obtaining a higher education through loans totaling more than $5,000,000 from the PEO educational loan fund, Mrs. Vehrs reported last night. Through the years, 343 Oregon girls have received help through the fund. Last year 12 girls were granted loans and 17 were already holding loans.

Chapter BD, Portland, one of the hostess chapters for the convention, presented a check for $100 to be used for scholarships.

Major address of yesterday's session was given by Mrs. Arthur E. Welch, Portland, correspondent secretary of the supreme chapter.

"The progress of man through the ages has only been as fast as the barriers of thought and prejudice have been broken down," said Mrs. Welch. "Love and information break down prejudice. We can build a monument to the 90 years of PEO with our work in education on one side of the shaft, and joy, service and worship on the other.
