Spirit and Word
To the Editor: God clearly states in the Bible that mankind is classified into two distinct groups, the believers and the unbelievers. The believers are those who have put God to the test and have proven that living word. Every one is challenged to make that test for themselves, as set forth in Rom. 12:12, wherein we can prove what is that good and acceptable, and perfect, will of God.

God through his goodness has allotted man three score and ten years to come to himself, and get out of the pig pen as the prodigal of old, and prepare for that place that Christ is preparing for them who love Him. The Bible says "many are called and few are chosen," and we are told just why that is the case. Eccl. 8:11, states because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men are fully set in them to do evil.

There is a program put on the air by the Medford Ministerial association, which could be, and should be, and would be, very educational and constructive, if the answers were brought forth from the Bible.

On May 18, the scripture was sent in, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." The question was asked, why is it all ministers do not agree on that scripture? After listening to the discussion, and hearing one of them get so far off the beam as to feel that he could make light of the 16th chapter of Mark, one could only feel that these men had classified themselves.

Time for a Bird
To the Editor: A young robin in fell into the chimney at Fred Meadows' home last Monday night, falling all the way to the bottom with no chance of getting it out. It was terrible to hear the fluttering and cheeping of the little fellow. It was in the chimney overnight and believed to be dead, but the next morning it was still putting forth effort.

Mr. Meadows is very busy doing all this according to thy word, let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and I am thy servant. The fire fell, and always will when the word is believed. The bargain counter plans are the ideas of man, God never compromised His plan for this generation, or any other. Christ told Satan, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. The spirit of God and His word agree, there is only one conclusion a person can come to, if our spirit does not agree with the word of God, we could have the wrong spirit.

Seeks Woman
To the Editor: We wonder if you will help us contact some people my husband saw on the street here in town. We do not know their names, but would like to locate them.

Last Thursday afternoon, June 12, about 4:30 p.m., my husband came out of the Medford Radio shop at 19 North Fir st., carrying a recorder.

PUSH FOR MITCHELL

Washington—By every sign, a 1960 Vice-Presidential bid for Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell is being powerfully launched by the Nixon-Dewey controllers of the Republican party.

William S. White is not in motion, it can only be said that rarely have so many coincidences pointed the same way. For Mitchell is being pushed forward, with every publicity apparatus available, to a front-and-center position on labor legislation.

This is being done by frankly thrusting aside—and infuriating—the senior Republican Senators who are the party's normal spokesmen in this field.

Even before Mitchell had been put so far out in front, high Administration figures have passed the word: "Mitchell looks good to Eisenhower for No. 2 in '60." At that earlier date, the Secretary's name was responsibly given to this correspondent as at the top of a list of six "possibles" for the Vice-Presidential nomination President Eisenhower was discussing with his associates—including Vice-President Richard M. Nixon.

THE other names on the memorandum were those of Robert B. Anderson, Secretary of the Treasury; Fred A. Seaton, Secretary of the Interior; William P. Rogers, the Attorney General; Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief of our mission to the United Nations, and General Alfred M. Gruenther, national head of the Red Cross.

In this whole matter it is important to bear in mind the element of time. For the list of six possible running mates, with Nixon as the Presidential candidate, was made available before Senator William F. Knowland's near-disaster in the California primaries for Governor.

Highly realistic Republicans—including some of Knowland's admirers—have now concluded that his comparatively poor primary showing means that the Republicans must "soften up" toward labor in 1960.

Knowland ran on a "right-to-work" platform bitterly resented by labor leaders. His prospective defeat in the California Governor's race by Democrat Edmund (Pat) Brown has gone very far toward shrinking the list of six GOP Vice-Presidential possibilities down to one—Mitchell.

If Knowland had done well, the tendency would have been to provide Nixon with a conservative running mate—or at least one having no special ties to labor. Any such prospect has all but vanished now.

Influential Republican "pros" now concede not only that some appeal to labor must be made—but that it would best come from a Vice-Presidential candidate especially agreeable to the urban and largely Eastern Catholic voters.

The reckoning rests upon the supposition that it would be dangerous to assume that Senator John F. Kennedy, a Massachusetts Catholic with pretty good labor backing, will not wind up on the national Democratic ticket in 1960, if only in second place.

Mitchell is urban and Eastern—from New Jersey—and a Catholic.

True, he has thus far been pictured, in the confused legislative infighting, as being for a "harder" labor bill than are the Democrats. This, however, need not be—and almost certainly will not be—the final and decisive image left by the Secretary.

FOR immediate partisan Republican advantage would best be served by so stirring up matters as to lead to the failure of any labor legislation at all in this session. And whatever his motive, Mitchell certainly has been stirring up matters.

Clatskanie Youth Drowns in Slough

Clatskanie — (UPI)—Larry Jacobson, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Jacobson, of Clatskanie, drowned Monday while fishing in a slough with a brother and another boy. Larry and his brother Joel, 13, and Dennis Ilmari, 13, were catching carp in the Clatskanie slough in about four feet of water, police said. One of the boys told officers Larry waded into water about eight feet deep and disappeared. The boy did not come to the surface. The body was recovered.

Mongolia Commies Tell Of Strides in Five-Year Programs

Editor's note: Following is the second of three dispatches on Outer Mongolia. Material for the dispatches comes from Communist Chinese sources.

By PETER SUM

Hong Kong — (UPI)—The Mongolian People's Revolutionary (Communist) Party has 42,500 card-carrying members and more than 6,500 candidate members.

Total strength of the party is roughly one-tenth of the country's total population.

Mongolia, which became a Communist state when the party took leadership in November, 1924, has had two five-year economic plans since 1948. And according to Communist claims, the country today is well on the road to socialism.

What has socialist Mongolia achieved during the past 10 years?

Mongolia basically is the home of nomad herdsmen tending their livestock. Communists, therefore, first want all of the country's herdsmen incorporated in state-operated herdsmen's cooperatives.

According to Dordja Damba, first secretary of the central committee of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party, by the end of the country's second five-year plan (1957) "35 per cent of herdsmen's households and 5.2 million head of livestock had been enrolled in cooperatives."

Damba pointed out that the figures were "a great leap forward" from those at the end of 1952—the end of the country's first five-year plan—when only five per cent of herdsmen's households and half a million head of livestock were in cooperatives.

He said that cultivated areas expanded 50 per cent during the five-year plan from 1948-1952.

On the industrial side, the party secretary said that at the end of the 10-year period, industrial output made up 41 per cent of his country's total production. The number of workers employed by factories was roughly 27 per cent of the country's half-million population.

According to Communist Chinese evaluation at the end of 1957, Mongolia had over 24,000 head of livestock and over 700 livestock cooperatives.

Mongolian Communists also claim the country has wiped out illiteracy during the two five-year plan periods.

"The socialist education and culture enterprises in Mongolia is also prospering," they claimed. "At present there are over 430 middle and primary schools, and four institutions of higher learning in the country." They added that "more than 100,000 students and all children of school age are now in various schools."

G. Tuvan, minister of public health, in describing achievements in the country's health work over the past 10 years, pointed out that there were now 9.7 hospital beds per thousand population.

The current three-year plan calls for establishment of 10 new hospitals throughout the vast stretch of country which comprises more than 1,500,000 square kilometers.

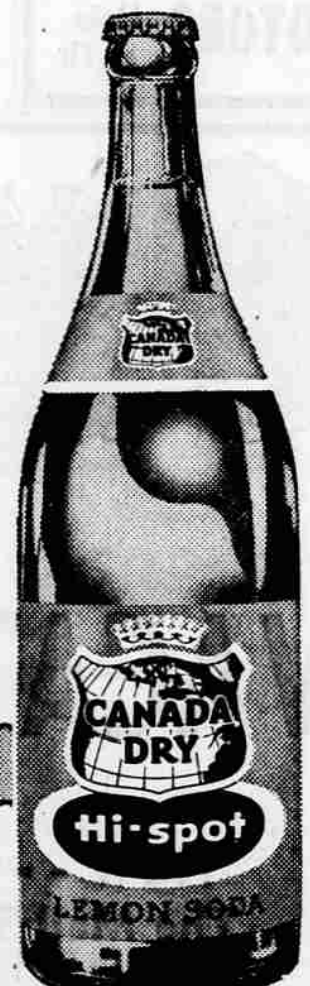

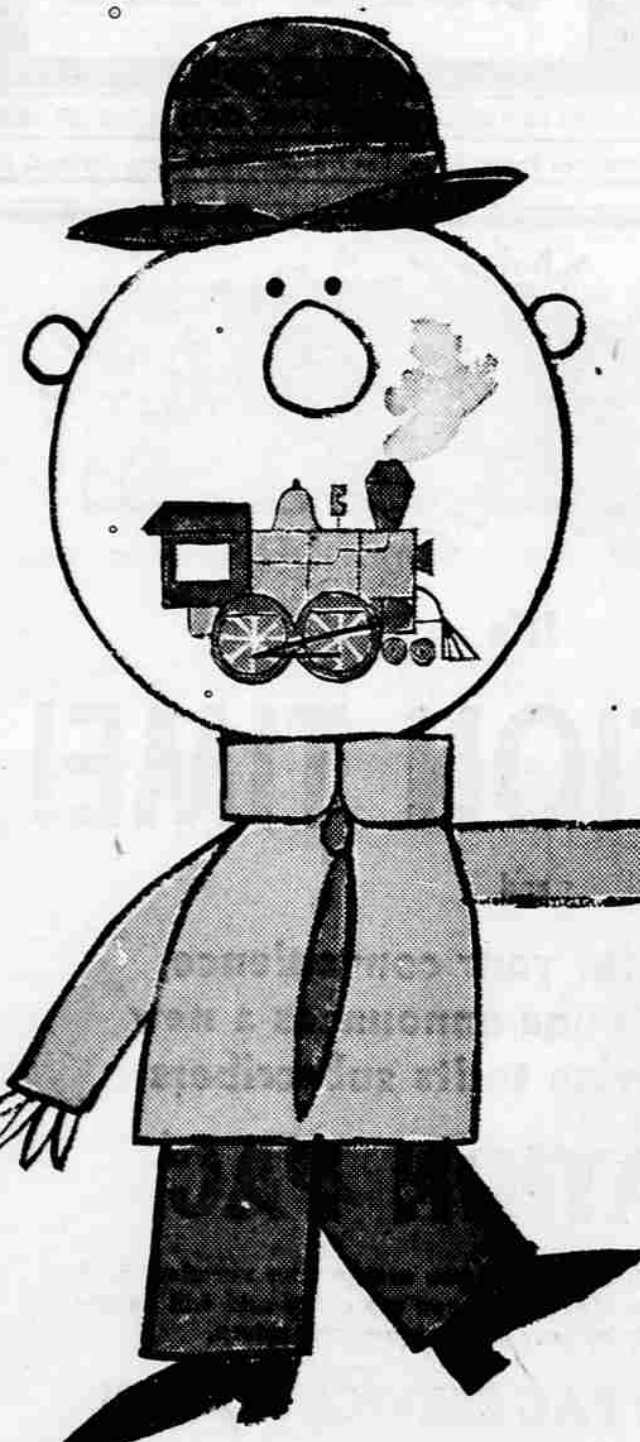

The Mongolians are very proud of their achievements during the past 10 years, according to the Chinese Reds who occasionally pass on information regarding the world's third largest Communist country.

In the words of Z. Sambu, member of the political bureau of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party and president of the Presidium of the People's Hural (Congress), "the achievements are all due to the further consolidation of the people's democratic system in Mongolia."

ENDING AN ERA OF GREATNESS, Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul retires as president of the University of California after 28 years. He waves goodbye from rostrum at University of California, Los Angeles. (UPI Teletype)
