Viewing Hungary As Isolated Problem Said To Be Mistake

Editor's note: Sir David Bell, a diplomat since 1910 and from 1946 to 1951, is one of Britain's foremost experts on Communist affairs. In the following analysis he reports that the execution of former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy means the return of Hungary to the Kremlin and the end of separate paths to socialism.

By SIR DAVID BELL
Written for UPI

London—(UPI)—It would be a mistake to consider the case of Hungary as an isolated problem. There is no doubt that when Khrushchev made his famous denunciation of Stalin at the 20th party congress he overplayed his hand. He had very intelligible motives for denouncing Stalin personally, but he never had the least intention of departing from strict Marxist-Lenin orthodoxy, and this has become a practice inseparably linked with the fundamentals of Stalinism as a system.

In Soviet Russia itself the governmental machine is now more subordinate than ever to the Communist party, while the Presidium of the party itself seems to be completely under Khrushchev.

He has ten members of his party secretariat in it—thus disposing of the "restoration of collective team leadership" which was a central point of Khrushchev's attack on Stalin.

Similarly, the professed encouragement of "various paths to Socialism" (which never did mean as much as wishful thinkers read into it) has obviously come to a full stop.

Integration Explained

The welcome fact that there has been considerable relaxation on the surface of the appalling regime which Stalinism had become is apt to blind people to the major fact that the system is an integrated machine which cannot be radically modified in one part by the Soviet government without loosening all the rest.

The chief lesson from the sad events in Hungary is that the apparent new orientation of the Communist regime in the USSR after the denunciation of Stalin, was pulled up by contact with realities.

In fact the sudden announcement of the sentence and execution of Imre Nagy is less surprising than the fact that it has been so long delayed.

Hoped for Reconciliation

This delay was no doubt due to lingering hopes on the part of Khrushchev of some reconciliation with Hungarian opinion.

There were hopes that the government might be broadened, more freedom be given again to writers, and perhaps

Barron Ranch in Ashland Purchased

Ashland—The Austie Barron ranch near Ashland was acquired last week by Baer Ranches, Inc., of Nevada, from former owners Lloyd Stewart and Austie Barron.

Included in the purchase, which will be known as the Baer ranch, were 7,500 acres of deeded land and a home property located eight miles south of Ashland.

The purchasing corporation, headed by Louis Baer of Reno, has extensive holdings in the Carson valley, south of Reno, and in northwestern Arizona. Vice President Richard Baer, son of the president, will manage the Ashland property.

Baer announced plans to raise some quarter horses and about 800 head of Hereford cattle.

The Barron ranch had been a landmark in the area ever since Hugh Franklin Barron founded it in 1851.

Highway Spending Plans Disclosed

Grants Pass—(UPI)—Oregon plans to spend $900 million of federal and state money for highways in the next 13 years but it could spend 10 times that much if the funds were available, according to Chairman M. K. McIver of the State Highway Commission.

He said that the Commission constantly receives requests for local projects for which there are no funds. One day, he said, 17 delegations for projects which would cost $75 million.

McIver and Commissioners Robert B. Chessman, Astoria, and Kenneth Fridley, Wasco, stopped here on the second day of a tour of highways through western, southern and central Oregon.

Toronto—(UPI)—Police today arrested Greta Goede, 46, on a charge of attempted extortion and said she also was suspected of kidnapping Joel Reitman, 2½-year-old Montreal clothing chain heir who was released unharmed in Ottawa Tuesday.

Convict Sends Check To Help Buy TV Sets

Klamath Falls—(UPI)—James Anderson, now serving a life term for a Beatty, Ore., murder, has sent Klamath County Sheriff Murray Britton a $5 check to help pay for television sets Britton has installed in the county jail.

The Klamath county court recently refused to reimburse Britton for television sets he has installed. He said he plans three more sets and has public contributions to cover cost of the first three.

Minority Group Wins Company Fight

Portland—(UPI)—A minority group of stockholders in the Iron Fireman Manufacturing Company was reported Wednesday to have won a fight to do away with the firm's long-standing voting trustee form of management.

Lewis J. Cox, Iron Fireman president from Cleveland, said in a letter to stockholders that a proposal to extend the voting trustee plan another 10 years has been dropped. The voting trust is scheduled to end on Dec. 1, 1958.

The minority group was headed by Haskell Carter, former vice president in charge of production. It said that by opposing the extension it sought "return of company control to stockholders, rather than retaining it in a small group of trustees."

A Pat on the Back for . . .
JOHN DE LORME
. . . in the Spotlight as the Most OUTSTANDING MAIL TRIBUNE CARRIER
for the Month of May

A POLICY OF COURTESY AND SERVICE IS THIS YOUNG MAN'S KEY TO SUCCESS

To 13-year-old John De Lorme, who has been delivering the Mail Tribune in East Medford for the past year, pleasing his customers is his first concern. The many subscribers that have given him their vote of approval say that he has done an outstanding job since the day he took over the route. He is always on time with his delivery and he puts forth special effort to see that the paper is in the same place each evening exactly where his customers want it. No wonder his 128 subscribers think he is tops.

John has just completed the eighth grade at St. Mary's school and like most of the other carriers is an above average student. Through school work a boy learns theory but through a Mail Tribune route a carrier learns first-hand the practical methods of doing business and dealing with people. It is this combination of theory and actual working experience which makes work as a newspaper carrier so valuable to a boy.

John's hobbies are varied. His first love is singing tenor in the Marion Choir at St. Mary's church. He also plays a good game of golf and collects coins and stamps. He likes to read Science Fiction, particularly those stories which deal in space travel. "Some day," he says, "I may take a trip to the moon and I'd want to know everything that it takes to get there."

John's route gives him a pretty good income and he is saving money for his college expenses. He, as yet, is not sure what his future occupation will be and he feels that he has plenty of time to make up his mind. He does, however, have a desire to play college football and if successful, go into the professional ranks after graduation.

As far as John is concerned, first things come first. His immediate goal is to save enough money to take him through college. To date he has saved about $400 and the way in which he delivers his route and the energy he is expending to please his subscribers, John is heading for a very successful future.
