

Insurgents in Lebanon Attack Army Patrol

Nation Relying On United Nations Help, Dag Told

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI)—Insurgents attacked an army patrol in the Lebanese capital today and shattered what appeared to be a passive truce during the visit of U. N. Secretary general Dag Hammarskjöld.

The U. N. leader met with Premier Sami Es-Solh today and a government spokesman said Solh told Hammarskjöld the nation was relying upon United Nations help.

Sources said Solh asked for a large U. N. police force to seal Lebanon's borders, but that Hammarskjöld envisioned the U. N. force as unarmed observers.

The rebel attack occurred in the Tarek Jedida quarter. Reports said the first rebel fire inflicted casualties and that the army replied with machinegun fire. The battle lasted about an hour.

In another incident, pro-government Christian Phalange workers shot and killed a workman, allegedly by accident, near the British Embassy.

One report said the man was being questioned on suspicion of having plans to attack the embassy. Another said the victim was a bystander who was watching the questioning.

Elsewhere the city was quiet, with more and more shops opening for business.

Information Minister Clovis El Khazayn called a news conference today to charge that the rebel's heavy equipment, such as their 120 mm mortars, were brought in from Syria and were not bought from the Lebanese army as claimed by Damascus Radio.

CITY CONTINUES HEARING ON K-G SANITARY SEWER

The Medford city council last night continued a public hearing on the Kenwood-Grandview sanitary sewer system district. Residents crowded the council chambers and hallway outside the chambers at the hearing.

Mayor John Snider suggested the hearing be continued and held in a location where property owners concerned may assemble and hear arguments for and against the system. Many persons, forced to remain in the hallway outside the council chambers could not hear questions and answers inside the chamber.

The time, date and place for the hearing will be announced as soon as arrangements with city officials and a location are complete.

Express Objections
Several property owners last night expressed objections to the sewer system, most of them based on the cost.

Preliminary estimated costs in the Kenwood-Grandview district is $101 per acre or a minimum of $41 per lot or tract of less than 17,000 square feet for the trunk sewer assessment.

An additional rate of $2.35 per front foot will be assessed properties abutting the proposed sewer line. The latter cost is the assessment for the lateral to serve the residences.

Several property owners expressed belief that the trunk sewer district assessment, which is distributed over the entire acreage, would work a hardship on large property owners.

Invited to Discuss Problem
Mayor Snider invited any resident of the Kenwood-Grandview area to consult city administrators and discuss their individual problems with them for a clearer understanding of the proposal. He also invited residents to attend the special meeting, at which the hearing will be continued at a location to accommodate the people.

The council called for bids on the proposed sewer, but pointed out that bids do not have to be accepted if the sanitary sewer proposal is not approved by the council.

Bids also were called for installation of the Laurelhurst district sanitary sewer system. Dates for both bid openings will be announced later.

Objections Voiced
Some residents of the Laurelhurst district voiced objection to the system, questioning whether property which cannot be served by the trunk line should be assessed. City Manager Robert Duff noted that there is little if any property in the district which can not in the future be served by laterals.

Preliminary estimated costs for the Laurelhurst trunk line system is $175 per acre or a minimum of $71 per platted lot.

529 Enrolled in Summer School
Ashland—A total of 529 students had enrolled in summer school at Southern Oregon college here by Wednesday night, according to college officials.

The total is an increase of about 21 per cent over the 438 registered at the same time last year. Registration will continue through Monday.

Students enrolling in the graduate program total 158, compared to 114 after three days of enrollment last year, an increase of 39 per cent. Students enrolling in secondary education increased from 60 last year to 100 this year, officials said.

Senate Passes Measure Extending Excise Taxes

Low-Cost Street Surfacing Policy Adopted by City

Surface Includes Oil, Rock on Prime Coat
A policy on providing a low-cost street surfacing which will include a prime coat, and two applications of oil and rock, was adopted by the Medford city council last night.

The surfacing will be provided for streets which are not improved with curbs and pavement and which have pre-existing surfacing or base material. Provision is made in the resolution to provide adequate base for the surfacing if an adequate base is not present.

Property owners desiring low-cost surfacing may apply to City Manager Robert Duff. An estimate of the total cost of surfacing, including intersections, will be prepared and furnished property owners. Included in the estimate will be cost of materials and equipment rental or depreciation in the surfacing of the street, and the cost of driveway culverts and drainage ditches required.

Deposit in Fund
Property owners will then collect and deposit with the city an amount equal to the estimate which will be placed in a special deposit fund for the surfacing. The city, according to the adopted policy, will not be responsible for the apportioning of the amount among various property owners affected.

The city will not disburse any funds or incur any expenses for any such project in excess of the amount deposited. If the deposit is in excess of the total cost, upon completion of the project the city may disburse the excess to any of the property owners who deposited the funds. The city, however, will not be responsible for the apportionment of the excessive amount among the property owners.

After funds equaling the estimate have been deposited, the city will furnish labor and equipment to provide an adequate base for the surfacing and to excavate for roadside ditches where needed. A prime coat will then be placed on the base material, which will be used by traffic for sufficient time to be cured.

After the prime coat is cured sufficiently, the city will provide two applications of oil mat and two applications of rock.

The cost of driveway culverts and drainage ditching abutting properties to provide drainage for the surfacing will be included in the cost of the project. No work done will commit the city to the establishment of a street grade, the resolution states.

The policy on low-cost surfacing was desired by councilmen because in several areas where regular paving improvements are desired the cost would work a hardship on property owners. Low-cost surfacing will provide a hard surface, city officials noted, to control mud problems in winter and excessive dust in summer months.

Sanitary Service Company Asks Increase in Rates

Council Committee To Consider Change

A request from City Sanitary Service company, Medford, for an increase in garbage collection charges was referred to the executive committee by the Medford city council last night.

The company has requested an increase from $1.75 to $2.25 per month.

Charles W. Bottjer and Anthony J. Boitano, partners in the company, said in a letter to Mayor John Snider and the council that "the additional costs of operation of garbage collection service... make it necessary for us to change the rate."

They pointed out the company has attempted to maintain the lowest possible rate consistent with satisfactory service. The company's rate, they noted, is and has been among the lowest in cities in the state. The new rate still would be among the lowest in the state for twice a week service, they said.

Service Necessary
The company now operates the only twice a week service in Oregon, they said, and added that they feel twice a week service is necessary to maintain sanitary and clean conditions.

"However," the said, "with the rate currently charged we have been completely unable to maintain our wage salaries comparable with competing businesses, or with union scale. Prior to Aug. 1, we are moving our main dump ground to a new location seven miles from the city of Medford, where we will be using the burn and sanitary fill method, which will additionally increase our costs."

In submitting a financial statement, they pointed out that during April, "the profit to the partnership was the sum of $94.24. This is before any income to the partners."

"They Were Purely Routine Calls"

Hagerty confirms being non-paying guest in Florida. Offer to pay bill declared rejected.

Washington—(UPI)—White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty acknowledged today that an exclusive Florida club insisted on treating him to a free five-day vacation stay earlier this year.

Hagerty confirmed a report by the Tampa Tribune that the Ponta Vedra Club at Jacksonville Beach refused to let him pay a $260.97 bill for himself and his wife from Jan. 27 to Feb. 1.

The presidential aide took exception with one item in the Tribune account. He said he paid his own golf fees and for lessons from the club pro. Nothing was wrong.

Hagerty commented: "I did insist, as the account says, on paying my entire bill but the club would not let me do so. Under the circumstances, there was nothing wrong in this. I don't see how anyone could make anything of my being a guest of the club at their insistence."

The Tampa newspaper quoted J. P. LeMaster, a club official, as saying the news secretary "insisted on paying his bill but we wouldn't let him do it."

"I thought we were very fortunate in having him here," LeMaster added.

Jones Moves from Ward, Resigns
The resignation of Councilman Stanley C. Jones Jr. was accepted by Medford Mayor John Snider and the council last night. Jones, councilman from Ward III, is moving from the ward.

Paul Meyers, councilman from Ward IV, was elected to serve as council president, a position held by Jones for the past several months.

Jones said he has no plans for city political activity in the foreseeable future, but added that his interest in public affairs will continue.

He said he had no plans to run for the council from his new ward, at least at present. He added that he has no intention of seeking election as mayor. To the contrary, he said, he plans to try to persuade Mayor Snider to seek reelection, and if he does, Jones said he would support him.

Jones has served on the council for about 7½ years. Meyers will serve as mayor when Mayor Snider is out of town.

A successor to Jones as Ward III councilman will be named by the council to serve until this fall's election. No action on such an appointment was taken last night.

Holmes Not To Oppose Neuberger
Salem—(UPI)—Gov. Robert D. Holmes said today he would not be a candidate against U. S. Senator Richard Neuberger in 1960.

The governor made the statement at a news conference to squelch rumors he said had been going around Washington, D.C.

"I have no aspirations for the United States Senate," Gov. Holmes said.

While in Washington, Gov. Holmes said he talked with Dr. Richard McCordie, chief of the U. S. Forest Service, on breaking a log jam regarding a shortcut road from Medford to Klamath Falls.

The governor said he hoped the talk would do some good and speed a survey to be made by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Transportation Levies Repealed; Trouble Expected

Five Amendments Turned To Defeat. Washington—(UPI)—The Senate passed a $1.8 billion corporate and excise tax extension bill today. It violates President Eisenhower's no-tax-cut policy by repealing transportation levies.

The bill was sent to a House-Senate conference committee by a voice vote.

Final Senate action came after five amendments to kill or reduce various excise taxes had been defeated.

Effective June 30
The extension of present 52 per cent corporate rates and of the existing rates on liquor, beer, automobiles and certain other excise items is effective June 30, when they otherwise would drop.

Before the final vote, the Senate rejected by a 43 to 32 vote an amendment by Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) to repeal the 10 per cent tax on local telephone calls. It voted down, 44 to 32, an amendment by Sen. Charles Potter (R-Mich.), who insisted that anti-recession relief was "essential" to the auto industry as the Senate felt it to be for railroads, airlines and other transportation media.

Leaders Absent
The vote on Potter's proposal came as the Senate, with its leaders absent for a long week end, drove to complete action on the pending tax extension bill.

Potter's amendment would have cut the 10 per cent tax on new passenger cars to 5 per cent, retroactive to last March 1. It would have trimmed the 8 per cent tax on parts to 5 per cent.

Faces Rough Going
The transportation tax repeal, which faces rough going in a House-Senate conference, affects the present levy on transportation by railroad, airline, bus, coastwise shipping, and even pipeline. The latter is under a 4½ per cent tax on petroleum or other liquid products transmitted by pipeline.

The Senate Thursday night also voted to end the 3 per cent tax on freight.

Klamath Fires Being Mopped-Up
Yreka—Mop-up operations continued today on fires in the Klamath National forest in northern California. A total of 24 lightning strikes were reported from a severe thunderstorm which left more than 2 inches of rain in two hours in the Ft. Jones area.

Lee Morford, Klamath National forest dispatcher, said 24 small fires were reported, and as many or more started during the storm but were extinguished by rains accompanying the storm.

Lightning started four fires in the Yreka district, five at Scott river, one at Happy Camp, two at Salmon river, five at Callahan, four at Seiad, and three in the Goose Nest district. No major fires were reported.

State Penitentiary Series Starts Monday
Few people are aware of the prisoner routine at Oregon State Penitentiary—especially during the first 30 days when prison officials pry into a man's past and try to learn what can be done to save him.

In a series of four articles written by Dick Humphrey of Salem, staff member of United Press International, prison routine is explained. Humphrey goes into the treatment of difficult cases, how they are handled, how a prisoner is guarded and the work and study possibilities offered at the prison.

The first article will appear in the Mail Tribune on Monday.

Mineral Show, Crowding Contest, Fish Derby Set This Week End

A variety of contests and exhibits scheduled this week end will appeal to the varied interests of Medford area residents.

They include the sixth annual Southern Oregon Gem and Mineral Show, the sixth annual National Crocker-Crowing contest, and the 22nd annual Catfish Derby.

The Gem and Mineral show is planned for Friday evening, Saturday, and Sunday afternoon at the McLoughlin Junior High school gymnasium. A number of Medford exhibitors will join exhibitors from as far north as Corvallis and south into California, in displaying their collections.

John Ross will have three machines, built for displaying iris agates, plus a new lamp with a revolving shade set with thin agate sections. Leonard Mentzer will display for the first time in Medford his "World's Largest Dendrite" and "World's Smallest Tumbler."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Duckett will give regular showings of their collections of fluorescent minerals. "The Slide Show," in which thin sections of agates and woods will be projected on a screen, will be managed by Chester Fitch, John Ross and Lawrence Crocker.

Trevall Turpin, chairman of the Indian artifacts department, will have a show including two wooden Indians. Arthur Johnson of Corvallis will have his collection of thousands of polished cabochons for rings and brooches. Specimens of petrified palm will be among the pieces displayed by Tom Riley of Eagle Point.

An "All Rock Dinner" will be set by Mrs. Glenn Nash of Eureka. Each guest will be given a free polished tumbled agate.

The Rooster Crowing contest will be held in Rogue River on Saturday. Floyd Jones, president of the sponsoring Rogue River Boosters club, said plans are being made for 300 entries in the contest.

The club president pointed out that $500 is awarded in prizes, half of it to the first place winner. The champion crower is the bird which crows the largest number of times during a specified 30-minute period.

Jones said the club is making preparations for 5,000 spectators at the crow itself.

On the calendar for Sunday afternoon is the Catfish Derby, to be held at Touville State park. Miss Pat Newbury, Medford High school sophomore, will reign as queen of the event. Her court consists of Medford High school princesses Dona Miller, Mollie Barker, Monica Setey and Linda Lowrey.

Howard Veal, chairman of the Derby this year, announced the following events and prizes for the day: Sack races, father and son three-legged races, bubble gum blowing and pie eating contests, prizes for the fattest woman, baldest man, oldest car, newest newlyweds and longest-married couple present.

In the fishing contest, prizes will be awarded for the largest catfish, oldest and youngest contestants, largest number of fish entered by one contestant, and a grand sweepstakes trophy for the best all-around fishing ability displayed.

150 Postmasters To Attend Convention
An estimated 150 postmasters from throughout Oregon will be in Medford July 8, 9 and 10, for the annual convention of the Oregon chapter, National Association of Postmasters. Hope Brader, postmaster at Chemult, is state president.

E. George Siedle, assistant postmaster general, bureau of transportation, Washington, D.C., will attend the convention, as will S. G. Schwartz, regional operations director for the region including Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho and Alaska.

Prizes will be awarded for the largest catfish, oldest and youngest contestants, largest number of fish entered by one contestant, and a grand sweepstakes trophy for the best all-around fishing ability displayed.
