

It's Still Man's World Says Religious Director

BY HARRY PRINE
United Free International
 New York—(UPI)—Men restrict women to the lowest aid level when it comes to running religious organizations, says a veteran civic leader.

"It's still a man's world religiously. Many groups feel they have shown their liberality if they put one woman on a board of 25 trustees," said Miss Jane Evans, of New Rochelle, N.Y., executive director of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, which has 100,000 members in the United States and abroad. The group works for the blind, helps further youth education and international relations, and pioneered in leadership training courses.

Jewish Braille Institute of America, is on the faculty of the New School for Social Research in New York, and has headed delegations to sessions of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration — UNRRA — in the U.S., Canada and Europe. She also served as consultant to the U.S. delegation when the UN charter was drafted, was president of the National Peace Conference, and now heads a UN committee on technical assistance.

In her spare time, she is a "seeing-eye human" for her blind dog, and "most ardent gardener, deeply engaged in a battle with insecticides and fungicides."

"Men mustn't think that if they put a few women in these places, it proves how much they believe in equality for women. I'm not an ardent feminist and never have wanted to indicate there's a battle of the sexes, but I think men will have to come to grips with themselves if we are to reach the ideal state in which the emphasis is put on the individual, not on the sex," said Miss Evans in an interview.

U. S. Women Organized
 "The great womanpower of the United States, which has made socially useful contributions, is unparalleled in the world. No other woman gives as much time or energy to church or synagogue than the American woman. She is the delight and despair of all other women of the world," Miss Evans said.

"We go to meetings to take part, not to be entertained. With the selective twist of the dial, we can have better entertainment at home than can be offered at social clubs or meetings," she added.

"Business and professional women also can participate along with the housewife in clubs that meet now and then in the evening."

Miss Evans, who started as an interior architect, has directed the federation for 16 years and was the youngest person to be chosen as head of a national organization. She also is treasurer of the

Day-Runstad Rites Today

Medford relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Day are in Seattle today for the wedding of the Day's son, John P. Day and Miss Jill Runstad. The rites are set for tonight at Mount Baker Presbyterian church, with reception to follow at the Rainier club. Five hundred guests are expected to attend.

In Seattle for the event are Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Day, the bridegroom's grandparents; Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Day Jr. and children, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hearin, Mr. and Mrs. Myers Jones, Mrs. T. W. Daily and Mrs. Robert Shepherd Sr. Arthur Ekerson of Medford is to be the bridegroom's best man, and among the ushers are Dr. Martin Johnston and Robert Shepherd, both Medford.

The rehearsal dinner last night was to be hosted by the bridegroom's parents, his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Frame of Los Altos, Calif., and a cousin, Hugh Brady, also of Los Altos. It was planned for the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur H. Johnston.

The pre-wedding festivities also included a luncheon which Mrs. Day gave for her future daughter-in-law at the Sunset club. Mrs. Paul Barlow gave a luncheon for Miss Runstad, and another was given by Mrs. David G. Mason and Mrs. Eugene F. Griffin at the Seattle Tennis club.

Family Returns From California
 Mrs. George Rode and four children have returned to Medford following a vacation trip to southern California. They were accompanied by Mrs. Paul Bulkin of Shady Cove.

The group visited Disneyland and Knotts Berry Farm, and Matthew and John Rode went deep sea fishing.

While away the Rodes were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Althens, Torrance, Calif., who formerly lived near the Rode's home in the Griffin Creek district.

Help Yourself To Happiness

This column is one of a series on marriage and family problems which appears weekly in this paper. It presents problems of everyday living and attempts to bring you the most expert opinion in this area. By combining clinical experience, research, and common sense, we hope to assist you in helping yourself to happiness.

Readers are invited to present their problems. All queries will receive individual attention and should be accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope directed to Mary Harris Seifert, M.A., Department of Education, The American Institute of Family Relations, 5237 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles 21, California.

Is Your Marriage Glamorous?

What is glamour in marriage? "Glamour," says one authority, "is surprise and suspense, a sense of knowing, yet not knowing, how greatly loved you are. It belongs to two people who enjoy being married."

"All marriages," says Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, "start with the same ingredients, and all turn into problems of homemaking, child-raising, and paying the grocer. But some people manage to give to certain events a breathlessness which bathes them in a radiance of their own. Outsiders may not see this illumination, but the man and the woman know that theirs is a glamorous marriage."

Glamour in marriage is far more than the radiance of moonlit dates, of adolescent obsessions, and young passion. It is an inner radiance which springs from love, firm and secure, which touches the couple and their marriage and warms their world with its glow.

Here are eight ways of securing glamour in your marriage:

1. Express your appreciation of your mate in many ways.
2. Take frequent honeymoons.
3. Feel, and show that you feel, confidence in each other's powers and abilities.
4. Be extra nice when the man leaves for work in the morning, when he returns and at bedtime.
5. Share problems and plans.
6. Try to match and surpass your partner's giving, patience, tolerance.
7. Prepare unexpected gifts and surprises.
8. Share the limelight.

Lions, Auxiliary Representatives Attend Meeting

Representative of eight Lions clubs and their auxiliaries in Jackson county are in Eugene for the annual state convention which opened yesterday and closes tomorrow night. About 2000 delegates and visitors were expected to attend the sessions.

Mrs. F. L. Thompson, Eugene, president of the state auxiliary, will preside for business sessions, which will be held in Erb Memorial Union building and the University theater. Scheduled were a fun breakfast, circus luncheon, and a coffee Saturday to honor president-elect of the various auxiliaries.

Joint functions with the men include a fun night, a luncheon at the Eugene hotel and the annual governor's banquet and ball Saturday night.

Mrs. Verne Conwell, Milwaukie, chairman of the Walter Dry Professional Development fund, will report on the seven scholarships given this year to persons working with the blind and for the purpose of furthering their education in this field.

A report will also be made on the Summer institute for the parents of pre-school blind children, financed by the Oregon Lions club auxiliary. The institute will be held in Salem in August. Funds to finance the project are contributed by the 79 auxiliaries of Oregon.

Edward G. Barry, Little Rock, Ark., president of Lions International, and Mrs. Barry are attending the convention.
