

Davenport to Open Appliance Store On North Central

"The store that sewing machines built" will be featured during the opening of the new Davenport Appliance store at 405 North Central ave., Medford, "about the middle of July."

What Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davenport Jr. mean by that is that the new store was built from money earned in the sewing machine business for the last 28 years.

They have been in Medford for approximately eight years. They opened the Davenport Appliance shop at 2101 West Main st. in August, 1950. They have been selling and servicing sewing machines of all makes ever since. Household appliances have been included in their line of retail goods.

Instruction Room
Following up their success with sewing machines, the Davenports have constructed a sewing and sewing instruction room in the shop for customers' convenience.

The new store will feature the White Rotary sewing machines, the Necchi Elma line plus five other well-known brands.

Other electrical appliances to be sold at the new store are household vacuum cleaners, Norge household appliances, Zenith television, Zenith Hi-Fi and Zenith radios. Small appliances of all makes will be sold.

The new store will include used appliances in its merchandise.

Inspectors Receive Merit Certificates

Cave Junction — Five men at the Redwood Highway Inspection station have received their 8,000-hour certificates and merit awards from the Air Defense Command for ground observer corps air watch duty during the past eight years.

The men are Robert Bottel, senior inspector, Bert Johnson, intermediate inspector, Harry Causey, Clint Etherton and Russell Doran. Some of the men have served as air watchers since 1943 at various stations throughout the state. The GOC station was re-organized here in 1950.

The certificates are signed by E. E. Partridge, general commander of the Air Defense command.

NEW STORE—The new Davenport Appliance store, 405 North Central ave., Medford, will hold a formal opening about the middle of July, according to Bill Davenport Jr. The old store was located at 2101 West Main st. Mr. and Mrs. Davenport have increased their stock line in the new store to include more than sewing machines and major appliances.

Institute for DAs Set in Salem; Two From Here Attend

The Sixth annual Institute for District Attorneys gets underway in Salem tomorrow with a welcoming address by Gov. Robert D. Holmes and reports by various study committees.

District Attorney Thomas Reeder and his chief deputy, John C. Anicker Jr. plan to leave today to attend the annual event conducted by the state department of justice in cooperation with the District Attorneys of Oregon.

Presenting reports during tomorrow's morning session will be Winston L. Bradshaw, Clackamas county, duties of the district attorney; Eugene C. Venn, Lane county, the public defender program; Francis Linklater, Washington county, proposed changes in the criminal code.

Special Tour
Following lunch and a special tour of the state penitentiary, Geoffrey C. Hazard Jr., secretary of the legislative interim committee on judicial administration, will report on court reorganization.

The remainder of the afternoon session will consist of a forum on advising county officers in civil matters.

Friday's session will include District Attorney-Coroner Relations by Kenneth Abraham, Hood River county,

Grange News...

Central Point Grange

The lecturer's program Friday night was put on by the Caterpillar Tractor company in cooperation with the National Safety Council showing pictures taken along the Interstate Highway, where road construction had been accomplished and where much was yet to be done.

Sam Jones, introduced by C. H. Moorehouse, presented the program.

Roll call found Chaplain Mrs. Anna Wendt, Steward Fred Kuest and Flora Mrs. Harold Gebhardt absent.

Agriculture Chairman Arnold Bohnert reported little change in the grain markets but growers are expecting a rise in the price of barley.

Bohnert announced the county picnic to be held July 20 at TouVelle park honoring Ben Tucker, who is retiring as county agent.

Delmar Smith reported considerable increase in the growing of alfalfa since the call from Greece for alfalfa seed.

On the display table were old books and periodicals including pages of the Harpers Weekly published during the

Interstate Bridge To Open June 30

Vancouver, Wash. — (UPI)

The Chamber of Commerce announced Tuesday that the new $7,500,000 Interstate bridge spanning the Columbia river between Washington and Oregon will be officially opened June 30 at 10 a.m.

The new bridge, under construction for 26 months, will operate two southbound and two northbound traffic lanes until the old Interstate bridge is remodeled and reopened. At that time, the chamber said, southbound traffic will flow over the new span and northbound over the old.

Civil War. Also displayed were the Sterling Silver rose by Mrs. Gaston Floux and a hybrid lily grown by Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Smith.

The Juvenile room reported that Judy Frink came out second for her essay entered in the State Grange contest.

At another session of the Senate Interior committee, Neuberger questioned Interior Secretary Fred Seaton about failure to include aluminum in the minerals stabilization program proposed by the Administration.

Because of Soviet efforts to undermine the world market for aluminum, Neuberger said it was "incongruous" that it was left out of Administration plans for stabilizing the mineral-producing industry.

Federal Program For Stockpiling Chrome Urged

Washington, D. C.—A five-year Federal program for stockpile purchase of ferrochrome to prevent severe dislocation of the domestic chrome mining industry was urged before the Senate Interior committee by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon.

Neuberger told the committee that chrome mines, of which about 40 are located in Oregon, face "almost inescapable" closure unless the Federal program is revived, since domestic producers are unable to compete with foreign imports.

The Oregon Senator told the committee he supported the proposals of Hollis M. Dole, director of the Oregon Department of Geology and Minerals Industries, for establishment of a cooperative ferrochrome processing plant by chrome miners through a Federal loan.

Come to Standstill
"Chrome mining in the past few weeks has come to a standstill," Neuberger declared. "Unless there is action by Congress, the domestic chrome mining industry, for the present at least, will make no further contribution to the nation's economy. In view of the decline in lumber markets, it is imperative to states of the West that the mining industry be given every opportunity to fill the gap which has been created in our economy."

Neuberger said he had conferred with William Gardner of Canyon City and Bruce Manley of Medford about legislation needed to revive the chrome mining industry. He emphasized that continuance of mine operations was necessary to keep skilled workers and mine facilities available in the event emergency conditions cut off the supply of foreign chrome.

At another session of the Senate Interior committee, Neuberger questioned Interior Secretary Fred Seaton about failure to include aluminum in the minerals stabilization program proposed by the Administration.

Because of Soviet efforts to undermine the world market for aluminum, Neuberger said it was "incongruous" that it was left out of Administration plans for stabilizing the mineral-producing industry.

Cattle Killed as Large Truck Overtakes

Government Camp — (UPI)
Five head of cattle were killed and many others were injured so bad they were later destroyed when a large truck overturned near here Tuesday, state police reported.

Officers said a truck operated by Howard W. Hardesty, Madras, had pulled off the road so he could check the load of about 40 head of cattle. The soft shoulder apparently gave way and the truck overturned.
