

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a radio personality and a community leader. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems and offers suggestions by responsible agencies and individuals.

John F.—I think I acted too hastily in throwing out Mona's fiancé.
Bertha F.—He should have been thrown out years ago.

John F.—My wife and I disagree on what to do about our 27-year-old daughter, who recently broke an engagement with a man she had known for about 10 years.

For many years she said her friendship with this man was not serious. They say one another off and on. At last Mona said she decided she was really in love with Bill and wanted to marry him.

We didn't care for Bill. He is of a different faith from ours and he has a lot of personality quirks we don't like. But we figured Mona was old enough to choose.

However, their engagement turned out very badly. They fought all the time. Finally I put my foot down and practically threw the guy out of the house. Now Mona is so brokenhearted that I'm sorry, and feel I acted too hastily.

Bertha F.—I think John acted too late, rather than too hastily. Bill has been hanging around for too many years, taking up Mona's time to no purpose at all. I would like to have thrown him out five years ago, but at that time they did seem to be very much in love and it seemed a shame to interfere.

Of course, now it's pretty tough for Mona. Most of her friends are married and she

Boy Scouts

Eighteen scouts of Troop 3, sponsored by St. Mark's Episcopal Church, spent the week end at 26 Glover's cabin, Rocky Point, on the Klamath lake.

The outing was capped by the Scouts each collecting 800 pounds of newspapers in a recent drive for the support of the troop. The outing was spent fishing, swimming, boating and water-skiing.

Scoutmaster Elwood Hestander, assisted Scoutmaster Joe Fritch, and committee members Pat Sweeney, Ed Glover, Phil White and Harry Sweeney accompanied the boys.

John F. Hestander, Scoutmaster of the Rogue River Troop, was the first time in history Sunday. The boys had the usual of a picnic, July 19.
