Darkness Said One Of Major Hazards On U.S. Highways

Chicago—The major traffic hazards in Alaska are dog teams, moose and long hours of darkness.

Few U. S. motorists have run into dog teams or moose lately. But darkness certainly is one of their major driving problems, according to the National Safety Council.

Darkness doesn't mean just "pitch blackness." It also includes the "twilight hours" 4 to 8 p.m.

Consider these facts:

1. Three times as many motorists and pedestrians lose their lives at night in auto accidents as during the day.
2. Nearly 3 out of 10 auto accidents occur from 4 to 8 p.m. One out of four fatal auto accidents occurs then, too.

Equally Hazardous

3. In summer months, especially, the succeeding four hours—8 p.m. to midnight—are almost equally as hazardous as the twilight hours. About one out of every five auto deaths charged against U. S. motorists occurs then, the Council says.

Why is darkness such a danger?

For several reasons, the Council points out. Such as:

1. Drivers are tired after a hard day. A trip is a pretty tiring ordeal, even when it's not preceded by eight hours of work.
2. Motorists probably are more inclined to doze at the wheel at night. About 1,850 motorists killed in traffic accidents in 1956 were said to have fallen asleep at the wheel. An estimated 270,000 dozing motorists were involved in that year's traffic accidents.

Harder To See

3. It's harder for most motorists to see at night, and some of them just don't seem to realize it. Too, headlights of approaching cars make night driving difficult for many people.
4. At night it's hard to spot hazards a head—sudden twists in the road, wandering animals, a motorist tinkering with his stalled auto.
5. Perhaps most dangerous of the night-time hazards are improper headlights and over-driving your lights.

That means this: At a speed of 60 m.p.h., it takes at least 366 feet to stop a car. The Uniform Vehicle Code recommends that an auto's bright lights be capable of illuminating an object 350 feet away. Which means if you're driving 60 and see a stalled auto ahead, you probably can't possibly stop before reaching it.

Have Lights Adjusted

The solution to preventing deaths during darkness?

1. Make sure your car lights are properly adjusted. Clean the lenses before driving.
2. Keep your windshield clean, too. It will help reduce fatigue and eyestrain.
3. Slow down when the sun's down.
4. Dim your lights to approaching cars, even if they don't dim theirs. And dim when following a car.
5. Stop periodically on trips for a break.

"It's true that in America we don't have dog teams or moose to contend with," the Council says.

"But it still takes a lot of extra effort by motorists to make night driving safe."

Feeding the Family

Beef Kebabs

Night or day, indoors or outdoors, here's exciting eating. Six generous servings, using two pounds sirloin tips cut into 1 1/2 inch cubes.

Mix four teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon black pepper, one teaspoon oregano, 1 cup burgundy or sherry wine and one-fourth cup salad oil. Pour over two pounds sirloin tips cut into 1 1/2 inch cubes, cover and let stand in refrigerator overnight or for several hours, stirring once or twice. Cut two large onions and two large tomatoes in quarters and one large green pepper into 1 1/2 inch pieces. Add to marinated meat an hour or so before broiling.

When ready to broil kebabs, remove meat and vegetables from marinade; string on metal skewers alternating the meat cubes with the various vegetables. Place in broiler rack close to source of heat to sear quickly, turn and sear other side. Move broiler pan to lower position and broil until desired doneness, turning and basting occasionally.

Or broil on outdoors grill, turning and basting until desired crispness outside, done inside. Plenty of hot French bread, a green salad and chilled melon.

steaks, excepting round steak, are excellent for grilling, barbecuing. Lean ground chuck, coarsely ground is best ground beef for barbecuing. A barbecue sauce rich in oil is best for beef. Pork items most often barbecued are spareribs and ham slices. For pork saucers should be light on oil, heavy on catsup, tomato paste or chili sauce. Lamb cuts for barbecuing are steaks, chops, ribs or whole legs. Lamb likes a barbecue sauce rich in oil and garlic.

Beverages. There'll be a lot more drinking than usual; cool refreshing lemonades, orange drinks, colas, root beer should be ready in the refrigerator. Some lemon, lemonade and orange juice concentrates. Lots of lemons. Tea for iced tea, coffee for iced coffee. Extra milk, chocolate milk, buttermilk.

Corn on cob, of course. Potatoes for baking and roasting, potatoes and onions for salad making; radishes, onions, celery, cucumbers and green peppers for relish trays, salads. A variety of lettuce for green salad tossing. Tomatoes, no bargain, but often essential.

Melons and Fruits. Watermelon, cantaloupes, maybe an elegant Cranshaw or honeydew. Apricots, peaches, nectarines and plums mostly for eating out-of-hand. Berries beckon.

Shopping Check-list. Paper napkins, paper plates, cups and dishes. Plenty of mustard, mayonnaise, pickles. Plan at least one potato salad and a satisfying macaroni salad. Consider one or more cold plate meals of cold cuts, canned meats and cheese with eye breads, relishes so each eater makes his own assortment. And don't forget the ice cream!

Picnic Lemonade

Ready to take or ready to serve, this picnic lemonade is cold refreshment for replenishing pep and vitality; makes a dozen tall glasses of sheer drinking delight.

Squeeze two cups of lemon juice; add four teaspoons grated lemon peel and one and one-half cups sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved and pour into glass jar with tight top. Toss in a few thin lemon slices for decorative effect if you like.

At home or elsewhere, pour one-quarter cup of lemon syrup over ice cubes in each glass and fill with cold water; stir well. Or combine in pitcher and pour.

Coffee Cooler. Add chocolate or coffee ice cream to icy-cold strong coffee. Beat, shake or stir and there will be sighs of contentment.

Turkeys, Chickens

Head Holiday Lists

The long week end ahead takes reasonably careful planning if the budget isn't to suffer. Most families will plan to get two or more good meals from one meat purchase. Roast today, sandwiches tomorrow; turkey, broilers or fryers hot one day, cold the next. Baked ham one day, a ham loaf another. Well concede that every bite of barbecued meat probably will be consumed on the premises at the time. It seems that outdoor appetites are heartier.

Turkey and Chicken. Turkey is a good buy; the bigger the better the buy. Turkey pieces and turkey quarters satisfy the white-meat, dark-meat fanciers and can be barbecued, roasted, baked, braised, oven-fried. Fryers are good barbecuers. Broilers are best broiled. Poultry takes a delicately seasoned sauce, mostly oil and herbs.

Meats for Barbecuing. All steaks from T-bone and porterhouse to cube or flank

House Ignores Plea To Restore Cuts

Washington—(UPI)—The House ignored a new plea by President Eisenhower Wednesday and refused to restore $75 million of the $872 million cut from his foreign aid program.

It rejected, 120 to 971 the first of a series of Republican amendments aimed at increasing a pending $3,078,092,500 bill recommended by the House Appropriations Committee.

The rebuff came only three hours after the President accused the committee of "taking reckless risks with our safety" by making the big cut. The President said he was sure the American people "will demand" congressional approval of his full program calling for $3,940,000,000.

Agreement Reached On Road Widening

The county court has reached an agreement with property owners on the widening of Orr dr., the court reported yesterday.

The county reached an agreement with Mrs. Pauline Jordan, who purchased property on the east side of Orr dr., and the seller, Mrs. Grace M. Orr.

The thoroughfare is to be widened from 40 feet to 60 feet by taking 10 feet on either side of the road.

High Court Returns Reversed Judgment

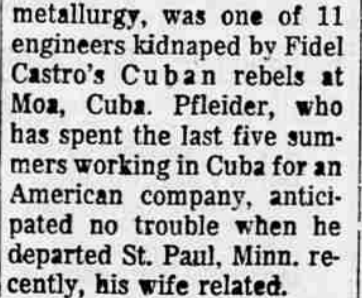

Salem—(UPI)—The State Supreme court Wednesday reversed a $5,000 judgment for Edward McNealy in a personal injury case appealed by the Portland Traction company.

McNealy was injured when he struck an interurban car just south of Milwaukie, but the court said he was guilty of contributory negligence in failing to see the interurban car.

The court also reversed a personal injury case in which Joe M. Long received a judgment from the Springfield Lumber Mills. Long was injured while dumping logs into the Springfield mills' pond.

In a Lane county case involving the estate of the late Joseph Strome, the court ruled that trust income accumulated but not paid to a life beneficiary belonged to the beneficiary rather than the trust. The opinion upheld the Lane County Circuit court.
