

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Ray McDonald

McDonald-Hutchins Rites Held at Medford Church

Miss Marie Joyce Hutchins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Hutchins, 2441 Crater Lake avenue, became the bride of Delbert Ray McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert P. McDonald, route 2, box 203A, Central Point, in a ceremony held Saturday, June 11, at the Foursquare church. The Rev. R. H. Mathewson officiated at the double-ring eight o'clock evening rites attended by 100 relatives and friends.

Pink and white gladiolus decorated the church for the event and Miss Velda Krouse played the traditional organ wedding music. Mrs. Lloyd Rasmussen was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of chantilly lace and tulle over tulle fashioned on princess lines. Her tulle and lace veil was waist length and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses encircling a gardenia. Her dress was made by Mrs. Hutchins.

Miss Patricia Hilton was honor attendant and bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Haas and Miss Edith McDonald, Central Point, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Hilton wore a pink sheath dress with chantilly lace overskirt while Miss Haas was in a light violet sheath frock with net overskirt. Miss McDonald's frock was blue. They carried nose-gay bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Phyllis Rasmussen was flower girl and Jerry Rasmussen was ring bearer.

Wayne McDonald served as best man for his brother while Merle Hutchins, brother of the bride, and George McDonald, brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hutchins wore a pink brocade dress with white accessories and pink carnation corsage. Mrs. McDonald chose a blue crepe frock with white accessories and white carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gasparotti, 701 Park avenue. Mrs. Kenneth Keith cut and served the wedding cake assisted by Mrs. Irma Clutter while Mrs. John Keith presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Dan Haas poured the coffee. Miss Joyce Haynes, Grants Pass, was in charge of the guest book and Miss Leah Reavis was at the gift table.

The newlyweds traveled to Crescent City, Calif., on their wedding trip. For her traveling attire the bride wore a pink cotton suit with white accessories. They are making their home at 917 East Pine street, apartment 3, Central Point.

The bride is a graduate of Medford High school. Mr. McDonald is a graduate of Crater High school and is employed as a lumber grader by Fir Ply company, White City.

Potpourri

The wedding of the season in Oregon took place last Tuesday in Portland when Antoinette Kuzmanich, called Toni by her friends, was married to Mark Hatfield, Oregon's secretary of state. This is one of those "they have everything" couples. The bridegroom is handsome, personable and well embarked on a political career in the state. The bride is not only extremely pretty but is blessed with a warm-hearted personality which enchants almost everyone.

The task of giving a huge wedding when the bridegroom is not only a state official, but running for governor as well in an election year, would stagger ordinary people, out the Kuzmanich and Hatfield families seemed to have managed it very well indeed.

Comments, anecdotes and stories about the wedding are already making the rounds. Hinson Baptist church in Portland is designed semi-circle, with several aisles and many of the guests were interested to note that the large wedding party was divided up, with the bride, her father and her honor attending using the main aisle and the other attendants approaching the altar from the side aisles, in pairs.

The 10 ushers in formal attire all stood smartly at attention until toward the end of the ceremony when one just quietly fainted away. Two fellow ushers near-by eased him into one of the pews, loosened his collar and fanned him. One guest is quoted as saying, "Well, Mark is still laying them in the aisles."

The Frank Bashes of Medford were sitting near-by and Mrs. B. said she was so distracted by the mishap that she missed the end of the ceremony. Mrs. Bash commented, as well as did others at the wedding, that the bride's mother was so handsome in her blue-green chiffon gown that she almost outshone her pretty daughter. The bridegroom's mother wore lace of a rose color, the Medford guests reported.

The Oregonian's "Rosalie" noted that the two huge wedding cakes were both devil's food — no white cake was served. Rosalie also commented on the fact that the soloist sang after the wedding party left the church, an idea of which she heartily approved.

Medford guests at the wedding reported that they felt sorry for those in the receiving line. The rites took place at 8 p.m. and at 10:30 a long line of guests still waited to greet the bride and bridegroom and attendants. However, this is good training should Mr. H. become governor, for governors and their wives must endure many a receiving line.

B-Mike of the Oregonian repeated a story about how Dr. G. Herbert Smith, who was best man and charged with keeping track of the bridegroom, found him missing from his assigned spot just before the ceremony began. Looking around he found the secretary of state peering through an opening into the church where the guests had assembled. "Just counting the house," someone quipped.

Potpourri mailed Miss Kuzmanich a questionnaire before the wedding, deciding to give the event traditional treatment in the society section, and it came promptly back, with all questions answered and a little postscript of apology saying that it had to be hand-written since "my typewriter went down to Salem on the van last week!"

Even though we didn't get to the wedding-of-the-year in Portland, we did go out to Hanleylands to the garden party which was given by Mrs. E. B. Hanley and her daughter, Mrs. Heffernan, for the delegates and visitors here for the Oregon postmaster's convention. Hanleylands is an ideal spot for such a large party, and the guests appeared to enjoy themselves very much.

Potpourri happened to be with Mrs. Hanley when Postmaster Moore Hamilton brought up one of the guests, explaining that this big, smiling man was known to everyone as "Yaquina Pete." (His name is really Rasmussen and he is postmaster at Yaquina Bay). Yaquina Pete asked Mrs. Hanley if she had ever been in Alaska, and when she replied "Indeed I have" he reminded her that they had met, many, many years ago when he was working at a salmon cannery in Alaska. Yaquina Pete, who also worked for the Rogue River National Forest service when it still included what is now Crater Lake National park, is a colorful personality and the two had a lively conversation.

Friends of Eugene Bennett, and other artists of the valley, will be pleased to learn that he has returned to Medford to live—for a time, anyway. This artist, who in recent years has received acclaim from critics both in Chicago and other cities, last week was searching for quarters which would be suitable for a studio, since the one on South Grape street will now be too small. Although he sold a large number of paintings at a "bridge burning sale" before leaving Chicago, Eugene B. has about 50 works arriving soon and no place to store or hang them.—O.S.

Save and Read Label On Wash-Wear Clothes

Fargo, N. D. —(UPI)—Save the label that comes with wash-and-wear cottons, says a clothing specialist.

Always read the label and keep it handy when washing, said Thelma Baierl of the North Dakota State College extension service. Give special attention to instructions for bleaching to remove stains, she added.

A perborate bleach should be used on resin-finished garments, she said. Chlorine will weaken the fabric and turn it yellow. Some discoloration can be removed by thorough rinsing. White fabrics may need to be treated with a commercial color remover. These treatment must be applied before ironing, Miss Baierl warned, or they will not be effective.

For Cold Lunch

Italian restaurants feature an appetizer that has many advantages for the luncheon hostess. It is called "antipasto" and consists of paper thin slices of cold meats, raw and cooked vegetables, big ripe olives, strips of pimiento, anchovies, and hard cooked eggs. Cruets of olive oil and wine vinegar are passed to the guests to pour over it. Antipasto plates can be artistically arranged hours ahead of serving, and will stay fresh-looking in the refrigerator. Good accompaniments to antipasto are hot crusty breads, red wine and assorted cheeses.

Onion Sauce

Savory onion butter adds interest to grilled meats and hot vegetables. Stir a teaspoon instant minced onion into an equal quantity water. Soften one-third cup butter; blend in onion along with a teaspoon fresh lemon juice and a little grated rind, 1/4 teaspoon dried dill and a drop or two Tabasco sauce.
