

Special School for Non-Judicial Workers in Juvenile Courts Set

Eugene — Special training for non-judicial workers in the juvenile courts is seriously needed, according to Judge R. E. Renne, president of the Oregon Juvenile Judges association.

Judge Renne today announced the start of the first Oregon juvenile court summer school, to be held July 19 to 23 at the University of Oregon, to help fill this need.

Joint Sponsorship

The summer school is sponsored jointly by the newly formed Oregon Juvenile Judges Association and the university, and will be under the direction of Dr. Roy E. Buehler, associate professor of psychology and director of the clinical-counseling training programs at the university.

The five-day session will be devoted to problems closely related to juvenile court, correction and prevention of juvenile delinquency. Authorities in these fields have been secured from both state and national levels. Recruitment for students is being made from county juvenile departments, from students interested in entering the field of correction, and from lay people serving the juvenile courts on advisory councils.

To date 35 students have enrolled. A diploma certifying completion of the course will be awarded to those in full time attendance.

Governor To Speak

Gov. Robert D. Holmes will address the school Friday, July 25 on "Improvement of Juvenile Rehabilitation in the State of Oregon," and on the same day, O. Meredith Wilson, president of the university, will speak on "The Role of the University in Providing Training Resources to Oregon Juvenile Courts."

"The Juvenile Advisory Council's Role in Mobilizing Community Resources" will be discussed by a panel of laymen including Richard W. McDuffie, chairman, Lane County Juvenile Advisory Council; Thomas J. Murray, chairman, Lincoln County Juvenile Advisory Council; J. V. McGoodwin, Medford, vice-chairman, Jackson County Juvenile Advisory Council, and William Pond of the Washington County Juvenile Advisory Council.

Step Cited

In discussing the summer school, Judge Renne said, "This training endeavor reflects the serious mindedness with which the juvenile courts in Oregon conceive our mission with needy children and youth. It is a step toward becoming acquainted with the host of ideas and skills yet beyond our grasp."

He added the summer school is planned as a yearly project, with hopes for expanding and increasing the training opportunities for court aides. "The field of counseling as related to our courts requires a unique background of knowledge from the fields of law, sociology and psychology. As yet few colleges and universities offer training specifically planned to prepare workers for this growing profession. In all areas of our nation it is necessary to give special inservice training to court workers, and the Oregon Juvenile Judges association is proud to place this state in the group of progressive states pioneering in this field," he said.

Hoover said the 631 violations of the federal bank robbery law during fiscal 1958 were reminiscent of the gangster era of the 1930s.

Not since 1932 when there were 606 violations against banks has there been "such a tremendous wave" of this type of crime, Hoover said.

Uncut Wheat Burns In Eastern Oregon

Pendleton — (UPI) — Umatilla county ranchers were plagued with fires Monday during wheat and barley harvests. Two blazes destroyed nearly 300 acres of choice uncut wheat.

One fire destroyed 85 acres of wheat and some grazing land near Helix.

While fire fighters were controlling this blaze, the scene shifted to an area northwest of Pendleton, plagued by fires the past week.

Flames raced through 250 acres of standing wheat and 300 acres of stubble on the Glen Simpson ranch 15 miles northwest of Pendleton.

Pickup trucks and a bulldozer caught fire momentarily, but the fires were quickly quenched.

Eight different fires in the past week have destroyed nearly 2000 acres, about 800 of which was standing wheat and barley.

Powells Lose in Court of Appeals

San Francisco — (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has refused to prevent the sedition case of John and Sylvia Powell from coming to trial on Sept. 22.

The Powells and their co-defendant, Julian Schuman of New York City, claimed it was impossible for them to have a fair trial because the government will not let them bring nearly 1,000 witnesses and many exhibits to San Francisco from Red China.

The government says they accused the U.S. government of waging germ warfare in Korea. The Powells published a magazine in Shanghai during the Korean war.

The appeals court noted the matter of dismissing or abating a proceeding "is entirely within the control of the presiding judge of the district court, and this court has no power to control his actions."

The court also noted that the Powells could appeal the verdict if they were convicted.

Lebanon, Ore. — (UPI) — A stubborn fire Monday night destroyed the re-saw section and a quantity of stored lumber at the B & O Lumber Company mill in the northwest part of Lebanon.

The fire was discovered about 6:30 p.m. and the entire Lebanon fire department turned out to battle the blaze.

Fire Chief Vern Reeves said his men were hampered by the lack of water, which had to be trucked to the scene.

Firemen were forced to spray nearby gasoline and oil storage tanks to prevent a possible explosion threat, witnesses said.

Damage was estimated at $25,000 by lumber company officials.

Trahan and a companion, David L. Neitling, 22, also of Stayton, were attempting to scale the 10,493-foot-high mountain Sunday when a huge boulder hit him and knocked him down a steep snow slope, killing Trahan.

Neitling narrowly escaped death by sliding to the opposite side of a jagged ridge as the boulder roared past.

The rescue party reached the body at the 8,500-foot mark and began a tortuous descent shortly afterward on Monday.
