STRATEGICALLY LOCATED in Middle East, with valuable oil fields and pipelines, Iraq is latest trouble spot calling for sending of U. S. forces to avert possible war. Marines have landed at Beirut, Lebanon, adjoining Syria.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor, and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Albert H.—I don't know how to reassure my wife.

Editor H.—He has a tendency to stray.

Albert H.—I am a married man of 33 and have four children. A few years ago I became involved in an affair with another woman and my wife found out about it.

The whole thing was a mistake. I was wrong. I admitted it. I said I was sorry and I haven't done anything wrong since that time. But it looks as though I'll never hear the end of this thing.

Ethel H.—Al has a way of talking very sincerely and always makes me believe him for the moment. Then I remember how sincere he seemed when he was carrying on with the other woman and I get sick at heart.

Sometimes I feel that although Al loves me as a person, he is not really attracted to me very much as a woman. I do know he has a roving eye and never misses a nice-looking face or figure. When we are with company he'll often tell an off-color story and that leads me to feel that he has a tendency to stray away from me. Maybe it's silly but that's the way I feel.

Ethel H.—I don't want reassurance. I want love.

The Council: Ethel has stated her own case in a nutshell. She craves love and not reassurance, and she can't help feeling short-changed as long as Albert doesn't find the means to show her she is really desirable to him as a woman.

Ethel H.—The fact that Albert roved once certainly lent fuel to Ethel's feelings of insecurity on this score. What was just a passing fancy to him was a deep wound to her and he should realize she cannot possibly get over it as easily as he could.

Ethel appears to have some cause for her uneasiness. Men who are entirely satisfied in their married lives do not go in much for off-color stories, and although they may enjoy looking at an attractive woman, they don't do it in such a way as to cause annoyance to their wives. There is such a thing as a detached pleasure in beauty.

Ethel H.—Ethel won't get over her wound until she can feel her husband is loyal to her because he deeply cares for her. If he deeply cares for her he will not do things that arouse her fears and he will not offer glib reassurances in place of positive actions of devotion.

By pushing his own feelings to the side a bit and trying to understand his wife's feelings, Albert may build up a greater reservoir of feeling for her.

Ethel H.—Ethel will undoubtedly sense it when she becomes the complete object of her husband's love.

OLD PERSIAN BOWL
Fails To Impress

Kansas City, Mo.—(UPI)—Police were thrown in a tailspin recently when a Persian ceramic bowl made in 1603 disappeared mysteriously from a hotel corridor here following an exhibition of Iranian art at an exclusive Kansas City store.

The disappearance was solved when Ellen K. Haugen, an entertainer, told investigating officers she had picked up a package outside her hotel door, believing it to be an inexpensive lamp she had purchased from the store.

Miss Haugen unwrapped the package, revealing the 350-year-old art treasure which its owner, San Francisco art dealer C. R. Mayeri, had left in the hallway.

Miss Haugen was not impressed when she inspected the bowl, valued at $3,000.

"I'd rather have my $3.98 lamp than that thing," she remarked.

OCCUPATIONAL HAZARD
Watertown, N. Y.—(UPI)—Dr. Rudolph J. Haas slipped and fell as he was en route to a hospital delivery room here. After dusting himself off, he continued on to the hospital, delivered a son to Mrs. Gilbert Crosbie and then went to an X-ray room where he found out he had broken his shoulder in the fall.

THOROUGH WAY
Westport, Conn.—(UPI)—James W. Johnson made his daily commuters' train on schedule, despite the fact that en route to the station his car rolled over twice. He climbed from the wreckage unhurt and got a hitch to catch the train.

Number of Motels More Than Tripled In Past 20 Years

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL
United Press International

New York — (UPI) — The nomads of the American highway have turned an ancient industry into a booming billion-dollar business in the postwar period.

Boom is the only word that can describe the growth of the U. S. motel industry. The number of motels has more than tripled the past 20 years and new ones are being built at the rate of 3,000 a year.

Each night, industry sources estimate, more than 1,300,000 Americans pile out of their cars and into the nearly 60,000 motels, motor hotels and motor inns dotting the highways from Maine to California.

Long Established
These travelers spend close to $1,500,000,000 a year in motels of all shapes and sizes.

Motels have been around in one form or another ever since man began roaming the countryside for the fun of it. Centuries ago they were called inns. Some of the earliest ones in this country cropped up at stagecoach stops.

Stephen W. Brenner, vice president of Helmsley-Spear, Inc., noted that the motel business began to grow when the automobile arrived on the American scene.

"At first — in the 1920's — they were simple, utilitarian and scarce," he said. "But by 1935, they had grown to 10,000 and in 1939 totaled approximately 13,500."

He said World War II, with its crowded factory towns and training camps, fostered further expansion of motels as temporary homes for workers and families of servicemen. By 1946, there were 20,000 motels.

Today, Brenner estimated, more than $5 billion is invested in nearly 60,000 motels, some of them ranging in size up to 400 rooms or more.

Motels now offer a host of "extras" for the guest, ranging from air conditioning and television to restaurants, bars and swimming pools.

With more and more people staying at motels, rather than driving into crowded cities looking for a hotel room, the big hotel chains such as Hilton, Sheraton and Knott have gone into the motel field with the construction of luxury motor hotels.

Booming Around Airports
Right now, motel development around airports is booming. Industry spokesmen explain that people arriving at airports late at night do not feel like traveling into cities for a place to sleep.

While motels have built up their trade by catering to travelers, many also are beginning to gear their activities to community life. Dining rooms are open to local residents and rooms are available for private parties, meetings and other local activities.

But the picture is not all rosy. The federal highway program has more than one motel operator biting his fingernails. A new highway can divert traffic away from old roads where motels have been built, leaving them stranded high and dry. It's already happened.

Investigators said she had been unable to stop the car and was pinned to the ceiling.

Bicycle Rider Crushed by Truck

Vancouver, Wash.—(UPI)—Virgil Lyle Peters, 23, Vancouver, was killed Wednesday afternoon when he apparently lost control of his bicycle and was crushed by a truck on the new West Interstate bridge.

Driver of the truck, John G. Teuscher of Portland, told police that Peters was riding along the sidewalk when his bike skidded off the sidewalk and threw Peters and the bicycle under the dual wheels of the trailer section of the truck.

The accident was the first fatality recorded on the recently dedicated bridge.

Woman Crushed by Elevator on Farm

Forest Grove—(UPI)—Mrs. Petronilla Schmidkofer, 56, was crushed to death in a chicken house elevator Wednesday when she became wedged between the car and the second floor ceiling.

She rode the elevator to the second story to collect eggs at her sister's farm and attempted to get off.

Investigators said she had been unable to stop the car and was pinned to the ceiling.

ILLINOIS VALLEY Group Holds Swim Party

By RUTH RAUSCH
Cave Junction — The Job's Daughter and DeMolay swimming party at the Lester Hoff home recently was attended by about 20 youngsters. A weiner roast completed the outing. It was agreed to have much more summer gatherings.

Week end guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Collman were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Clayton and son, Gary, of Sutherlin, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Clayton and baby from Applegate, Ed Boling from Applegate and the Collman's daughter, Judy, was home from Medford. On Sunday, the Don McClures joined the party for Sunday dinner.

Mrs. S. B. Cordell and four children are visitors of the Cobra farm here and will be joined by Mr. Cordell this week for an extended stay.

The Cordells have operated a reptile farm for 12 years, their last pit, located 17 miles south of Garberville, Calif., was burned to the ground July 8. Their present plans are to rebuild the pit at the same location and will start work on it when they return from their visit here.

Valeria Rauber, who is employed at the Oregon Caves resort for the summer was home this weekend and reported that the bonfire entered

BRIDGE OFFER

Newfane, Vt.—(UPI)—Newfane selectmen voted to give the old covered bridge spanning Smith's Brook to anyone who would cart it away. They decided the structure had outlived its usefulness. It will be replaced with a steel and concrete bridge costing $40,000.

The Hal Moores of Kerby were surprised by the visit of their son, John Moore, of El Sobrante, Calif., who, with Dr. John Spidell, of Berkeley, flew in for the week end Friday.

An Saturday, the party took off by jeep to Cyclone mine and hiked into the rugged country to Strawberry lake where they made a good catch of eastern brook trout.

Sunday they were joined by the Hal Moore Jr. family of Medford for good fishing along Sucker creek. Dr. Spidell and John returned to California Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis had as guests over the weekend their daughters, Miss Judy Busch, Mrs. Bob Mitchell and family and Mrs. Richard Nielson and children, who plan to stay on for a week.

The Illinois Valley High school junior class will stage another in their series of summer car wash days Saturday, July 19, at Ted Rogers Shell station in Cave Junction.

The proceeds from these car washes will be used by the junior class in financing the Junior-Senior prom next spring.

Harold Crowl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Crowl, with their pet, a bird and a dog, from Medford, are guests at the Crowl home this week.

A DAY OFF

Sprague, Conn.—(UPI)—Pupils had a day off when the board of education forgot to renew the registrations of school buses before they expired. Police refused to permit the buses on the highway and, as a result, classes were cancelled.
