

Concert Set Tonight

Ashland—Clarence Sawhill, nationally known authority on band work, will be guest conductor for a concert tonight in Churchill hall, Southern Oregon college, which will be the final event of the annual Siskiyou Music camp. It is set for 7:30 p.m.

Because of the week of inclement weather, scheduling of the concert has fluctuated between Lithia park and Churchill hall auditorium, but an announcement from the college this morning stated that it will be held indoors.

Mr. Sawhill, who has conducted music camps and band clinics throughout the United States, is director of bands at the University of California, Los Angeles. Tonight's program will open with Schubert's "Mass in G" to be sung by the Southern Oregon College and Community chorus, directed by Louis O. Clayson. Soloists will be Mrs. Virginia Cecil, Ashland; Otis Swisher and Maynard Hadley, both Medford.

The major portion of the program will be devoted to the band numbers under Conductor Sawhill. The band concert will include numbers by Abbott, Respighi, Erickson, a group of old California songs and will close with selections from the current hit "The Music Man."

Summer months are a good time to catch up on that back reading. Assistants at the Jackson County library will help you find books on any subject in which you are interested.

Louis O. Clayson, SOC faculty member, will direct the College and Community choir which will sing the Schubert "Mass in G" tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Churchill hall auditorium. ### Which Pizza For You?

American ingenuity applied to an Italian food specialty gives the cook a choice of four methods for making pizza pie, methods that vary from 15 minutes to two hours for completing. You can start from scratch. Make a yeast dough like the authentic version that is made in Naples. Or, start with the packaged pizza pie mix that saves measuring the ingredients. Biscuit mixes and packaged refrigerator biscuits require much less preparation time, as rising periods are eliminated. Starting with English muffins takes the least time of all. One step all methods have in common is that they must be baked in a hot oven, 400-450 degrees, for at least 10 minutes.

Soften cheddar cheese spread with a little white table wine. Add some mustard and pickle relish. Serve grilled hot dogs on hot buttered rye bread toast and top with a generous spooning of the wine-flavored cheese. You will enjoy this savory sandwich even more with a glass of red or white table wine for a beverage.

American Designer Says Let's Not Copy Frenchmen

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

New York—(UPI)—Let's have American-designed clothes for the American woman and a laissez-faire policy toward any Frenchman who conceals curves, says designer Oleg Cassini.

Cassini takes several digs at Parisian designers and those in the United States who copy any of their "ridiculous" fashions. He is opposed to any design which obliterates "feminine allure by camouflaging it under the guise of a balloon," a reference to one popular silhouette from abroad.

"Anything that takes away from the contours of the body must be condemned as a short-lived fad," said the designer in a recorded talk for use with the opening of his Fall collection. Cassini is one of 30 designer members of the couture group of the New York dress institute previewing new fashions for visiting reporters this week.

Elegant and Earthy
"I feel there is as much talent here as abroad," said Cassini, whose own special knack is in clothes with both elegance and earthy appeal.

"Very few French designers can design for their own trade so they are trying to impress the American market," he added.

"What I didn't like about the French designs was: the body of the woman was not in evidence, and styles were inspired by time past . . . like copying the design of an old car when a new car is being created . . ."

Many of Cassini's daytime dresses follow the general trend to a high waistline, and gently mould the body to the hem. He introduced the "Angelic" silhouette in daytime costumes—a jacket flared like a cutaway, topping a simple dress. The designer likes opulence of fabric for evening—turquoise lace over jeweled satin, for instance. Or black chiffon over a flowery-patterned black and white organza, and black chantilly lace over nude crepe.

Other Designers
Jane Derby is another designer with a mind of her own. She produces conservative, highly wearable clothes and for daytime this season stresses the everything-goes-

Pickle Making Expert Coming

Yang, expert on pickle making from the food and technology department at Oregon State college, Corvallis, will be in Medford for a meeting July 31 at 1 p.m. at the Red Cross building on Hawthorne street. The meeting is planned by the Jackson County Extension committee in response to the many requests from local women for more information on pickle making.

Miss Mary Pat Lucy, Jackson county home economics agent, will demonstrate the pickling process. Dr. Yang will discuss pickling problems and the solution. Women are invited to bring a jar of pickles for constructive criticism.

Anyone interested is invited to attend. No charge will be made.

Tyrell's Home Scene of Picnic

Retired Teachers association held a picnic July 14 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Tyrell on the Lake Creek road. The picnic meal was eaten under the trees by the river.

About 35 were present, including several visitors. One was Mrs. Stella Schuler Bratney, Portland.

A business meeting was held and later Mrs. R. E. Nealon showed colored pictures of the group, taken at the previous meeting held in the colorful garden of Mrs. Sanford Richardson's home on Table Rock road.

The next meeting, September 8, will be a covered dish picnic in Ashland Lithia park.

An Economy Buy

When you shop for cheese, you will find that various kinds of cheese differ considerably in cost. Margaret Spader, home service editor for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers association, suggests that if you wish to economize, compare the cost of a pound package of the different types. A pound of cheese in a large package usually costs less than a pound purchased in smaller units. The style of the package sometimes influences the cost—individual foil-wrapped pieces are more expensive than the same cheese simply packaged. Most imported cheese cost more than those made in this country.

Is The Little Woman Happy?

"Of course, my wife is happy," says the husband. "Isn't she well fed and clothed? And even more, isn't she married to me?"

But is she happy? Would you really like to know?

Every newstand carries at least one magazine featuring an article which advises wives how to keep husbands well fed, happily domesticated, and on a long leash. Few look at the problem from the opposite viewpoint and ask, "Is the little woman happy? Are you, Mr. Husband, doing anything about it?"

Happiness is a cooperative project, depending upon environment, friends, material possessions, and—Mr. Man. You have a lot to do with the Little Woman's well-being. Your part covers more than paying the grocery bill and furnishing new shoes, with 25 cents thrown in for "good behavior." Want to check for danger signals?

IS YOUR WIFE:

1. Usually cheerful, even at breakfast, when you munch toast and mumble behind a newspaper before the mad dash for the door and the office?
2. Anxious to please you, beyond the slipper-and-pipe routine?
3. Honest with you, even about the price of her new and astounding dress?
4. Interested in the children, the home, and you?

AND DOES SHE:

1. Show that she loves you,
