

Newlyweds Make Home In Medford

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Webster are making their home at 2191 Meals drive, Medford, following their return from a wedding trip to southern California. Mrs. Webster is the former Bonny Gay Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Artie Holmes, 324 Crater Lake avenue, Medford. Mr. Webster is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Webster, 4425 South Pacific highway, Medford.

The Rev. Raymond Walters officiated at the 4 o'clock afternoon wedding held June 13 in the Park Wedding chapel in Reno, Nev.

The bride wore a white waltz length gown of hand clipped chantilly lace over tulle fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her fingertip length veil was held by a crown of pearls and she carried a white orchid encircling white carnations on a white Bible. Her pearls were a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Richard Dolan, Phoenix, attended the bride. She wore a baby blue waltz length frock of net over taffeta with white accessories. She carried a pink rosebud bouquet.

Richard Dolan served as best man.

Following the ceremony a supper was held for the members of the wedding party at the Lawtons Resort Motel dining room in Reno.

The couple traveled to southern California and Disneyland on their wedding trip. For her traveling attire the bride wore a melon colored chemise frock with white accessories and white orchid corsage.

The bride attended Prospect schools and is employed as payroll clerk for Sierra-Cascade Pine company. Mr. Webster attended Phoenix schools and is employed by Dean-Taylor Pontiac in Medford.

Paul E. Geddes To Speak Monday

Paul E. Geddes, Republican nominee for Congress from the fourth district, will be the featured speaker at the monthly luncheon meeting of Jackson County Republican Women's club, Monday, July 21, according to Mrs. Lester Adams, president.

The Roseburg attorney will speak on "The High Cost of Inept Congressional Representation," Mrs. Adams said.

Also on the program, which will be held in the Girls Community club in Medford, will be Miss Susan Baker, who will report on Oregon Girls' State, which she attended. Miss Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Baker of Medford, was co-sponsored by the Republican Women's club.

Although reservations for the luncheon have been closed, anyone interested is invited to hear Mr. Geddes speak. He will probably begin to speak about 12:30 p.m., the club announces.

Pocahontas Lodge Installs Officers

Mrs. Ben Ashton was installed as prophetess of the Pocahontas lodge recently. Mrs. Lola Grigsby, deputy great inchoonee, conducted the ceremony.

Also installed at the ceremony were Mrs. Walter Wilson, Pocahontas; Mrs. Carroll Zachary, Wenonah; Alex Stevens, Powhatan; Mrs. Floyd Lewis and Mrs. Orvil Hayes, scouts; Mrs. Charles Dooms and Mrs. Richard Singles, runners; Mrs. Arthur Bateman and Mrs. Robert Ayers, councilors; Walter Wilson, guard of the teepee; Orvil Hayes, guard of the forest; Jack Dooms, Roland Wickes, Lewis Thompson, and P. M. Aldredge, warriors; Mrs. Noel Ershine, musician, and Mrs. Ashton, reporter.

Potpourri

We're always hearing that the best stories are never printed, and the best pictures never taken. We're sure the best pictures of the Fair Oaks drive street dance were never taken—they would have been available before or after the party.

Five couples on Fair Oaks drive, the Stanley Starks, Bill McLaren and his wife, Jane and Jim Shaw, the Fred Lewises and the Don Jacksons, dreamed up the bright idea of giving a party in the street. It is a "dead end" street which widens out at the end like a ball on the end of a curved stick, and proved to be a very good place for an outdoor party.

There is something new under the sun, after all, for not only was the idea of a street dance unusual in this city, but the hosts procured their decorations from Harold's club in Reno, of all places. One of the hostesses had heard this bright idea in Eugene, and sure enough, the club management obligingly shipped to Medford a number of funny signs, tricky little aprons and a quantity of other material, some usable and some quite unsuitable for this particular party.

The signs bore such statements as "Don't talk with strangers—they may be lawyers," or "Don't spit on the street—it leaks."

But back to the pictures—Saturday night Mr. Stark suggested that we should have been on hand that morning, when the five hosts and hostesses, wearing shorts and in their bare feet, were swabbing down the street in preparation for the party. Sunday, we hear, the clean-up campaign had many more picture possibilities since 120 guests, more or less, leave considerable debris after a picnic-type party, and the 10 "givers" worked really hard to make the attractive neighborhood neat and pretty again.

Tudor guild must have made a tidy sum of money for the actors' fund Sunday afternoon and evening, for the large crowd seemed to be in a spending mood. The Heyday proved a good place to renew acquaintances. We met Robert and Rae Dodge, formerly of Ashland and now of Eugene, where Mr. D. is on the faculty of the university. Mrs. Dodge, who introduced her attractive daughter and son, said that they had read in the Eugene Register-Guard of the Heyday date, and lost no time in making preparations to attend. Also in the throng were Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Buonocore, their daughters and Mrs. B's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Tickton, who arrived not long ago from Great Neck, New York, with their children, Judy, Diane and David. The trip west was interrupted by a misadventure when Judy Tickton was thrown from a horse during a stay at a dude ranch, suffering injuries which hospitalized her for a time. (Note—Mrs. Buonocore says that residents of Great Neck are really and truly referred to as Great Neckers.)

The Justin Smiths, home from Alaska, brought a number of interesting anecdotes concerning the celebrating which followed the announcement that the territory had been voted statehood by the congress. The Smiths were in Fairbanks at the time, and one of the ideas there was to dump chemicals into the rivers to make the water "run with gold." The chemicals used were identical to those in survival kits for use at sea and the schemers found to their dismay that they didn't work in fresh water as they did in the salty ocean water. The rivers turned green.

One Medford family has been intensely interested in the statehood news. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris lived in Anchorage for a number of years and their daughter, Sylvia, was born there in 1941. Mr. Morris' brother and sister-in-law, the V. H. Morrises, still live in Anchorage and sent the Medford family copies of the Anchorage Daily Times special edition printed for the statehood celebration. It had a red flag imprinted across the front page type, and the big headlines were in blue.

Mrs. Morris, her daughter and Potpourri found the advertisements, particularly those of food, most interesting. Having always heard that prices in Alaska were simply scandalously high, we read with interest that Folgers coffee was 89 cents a pound, frozen strawberries were selling four packages for 89 cents and frying chickens for $1.19 each.

Sally Champlin, wife of Medford police chief, whiled away the hours spent in the new Rogue Valley Memorial hospital recovering from an appendectomy by keeping a diary. Sally C. decided at once that the hospital was wonderful and dubbed it "The Waldorf of the Rogue River valley." She wrote that the food was wonderful, even for a patient on a soft diet, soon became accustomed to a disembodied voice answering her bell and loved her electrically controlled bed which glided smoothly up and down at the touch of her hand on the switch.

Mrs. C. was amazed to hear roosters crowing in the very early morn, but found out that the chickens might just as well wake her up since the official waking time was 5:30 a.m. anyhow. (This routine has never been satisfactorily explained for many a patient.)

Sally C. also wrote that she was frightfully curious about the other patients and wondered what had brought them to the hospital; she also wondered if the nurses realize that their voices carry right up from the parking lot below so that the patients can hear everything they say; her third wonder was why wasn't the second floor air conditioned, since the others were. She also decided the wallpaper designers didn't know his flowers since he had drawn carnations with zinnia petals and rose leaves.

The patient concluded by writing that after three days she began to "feel the spirit and pulse of the hospital" and said that the staff is "dedicated and sympathetic."

Quotation from a speech by President Eisenhower on April 16, 1953, (published by the Committee for World Development and World Disarmament) "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and not clothed."—O.S.

Methodists Attending Annual Camp

Five Medford women will attend a school of missions and Christian service sponsored by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church in Oregon this week. It will open today and continue through July 25 at Camp Magruder north of Tillamook.

The Medford women are Mrs. George Lawless, Oregon conference secretary of student work; Mrs. T. J. Johnson, Mrs. George Roseberry, wife of the pastor of First Methodist church; Mrs. John Poage and Mrs. Geneva Schwann.

The theme of the school for this year is "Prepare Ye the Way" and is designed to help women prepare to teach the study courses in local churches this year to lead in various fields of work sponsored by the organization. Mrs. L. D. Wrentmore, Portland, is dean of the school and Mrs. George Blinkhorn, Eugene, is registrar.

Two classes are based on interdenominational mission studies. The home mission study is titled "Christian Concerns of North American Neighbors," and the foreign mission study "The Middle East." These classes will be taught by Miss Marion Derby, secretary from the New York office of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, and by Mrs. Verne Bain, Portland, secretary of missionary personnel for the Oregon conference.

A Bible study titled "Isaiah Speaks" will be taught by Dr. Gertrude Boyd Crane of Pacific university, Forest Grove. "Understanding Other Cultures," a Christian social relations study, will be led by Mrs. Wayne Stauffer, Eugene, secretary of that line of work for the Oregon conference.

A group of 16 high school and college girls, four selected from each of the four districts in the state, will attend the school with Mrs. Orville Covault, Oak Grove, serving as dean of girls. A special workshop will be conducted on the work of the Woman's society and clinics will be held in 11

Mrs. Renne Grosh, Ashland, grand gila monster of the Department of Oregon, Military Order of the Lizards, presided over the eleventh annual convocation of the group in Corvallis July 15. The order is a subsidiary organization of the United Spanish War Veterans.

A peddler's knowledge of vitamins

To sum it up... probably zero. The professional people who know about vitamins and nutritional supplements are doctors of medicine and registered pharmacists. The peddler's "knowledge" probably consists of a prepared sales talk which he memorized. Which may or may not give you all the facts. So, don't buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from door-to-door peddlers. Get them from a registered pharmacist who knows what he's selling—and gives you what you pay for.
