

Jim Bunning Tosses First Major League No-Hitter of 1958 Season

Sensational Hill Work Marks Day

By FRED DOWS

United Press International
Jim Bunning, 26-year-old fireballer from Southgate, Ky., pitched the first no-hitter of the major league season Sunday in the peak performance of a day marked by sensational hurling.

Bunning, a 20-game winner last season who got off to a bad start this year, hurled his masterpiece to give the Detroit Tigers a 3-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader. Only three batters reached base as the Red Sox suffered their first no-hitter at Fenway Park since 1928.

A 6-3, 195-pounder, who once boasted he knew how to handle Ted Williams, Bunning completed his masterpiece by retiring the great Red Sox slugger on a fly to right field. He struck out 12 batters, including Gene Stephens and Ted Lepcio in the ninth, to take over the American league strikeout lead with a season total of 108.

No fewer than six other hurlers turned in performances that must have had slugger Frick had secretly ordered the return of the dead ball.

Delock Wins Tenth

The crowd of 29,529 at Boston still was buzzing over Bunning's performance when Ike Delock gained the Red
