

Chrome Mines Would Welcome Program to Get Them to Work

Congressmen Charles O. Porter testified before a subcommittee in Washington, D.C., last week that chrome miners would welcome any feasible program that gets them to work.

He testified before the subcommittee on mines and mining of the committee on interior and insular affairs regarding a bill introduced by Congressman Clair Engle of California.

Porter said he agreed with Secretary of Interior Fred Seaton that "the maintenance of some production will stimulate and give purpose to the research program." The congressman said he thought "this is an important objective."

United Nations, N.Y.—Japanese Ambassador Koto Matsudaira, in offering a compromise resolution on Lebanon to the UN Security Council:

"The responsibility of the council has never been more heavy. The seriousness of the situation in Lebanon and its consequences suggest that these are historical hours."

Jerusalem—Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, on the threat imposed by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser:

"In a complex world situation which is growing more and more complex, it is incumbent on us to increase our strength and guard our independence."

Denver — C. S. Barnes, service station operator who pulled Stephen Oakford, 14, from a plane the youth crashed in a runaway attempt:

"I started looking around for the pilot. I never dreamed that kid was flying."

Chautauqua, N.Y.—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, in calling for conventional as well as atomic weapons:

"We should not become identified as that nation which possesses only the big single stick of massive retaliation."

Porter noted that in 1951, when the chrome stockpile program started, there was no known reserves and the government program called for 200,000 tons of high grade chromite.

"It took 5½ years to furnish 100,000 tons to the Grants Pass stockpile," Porter continued. "It took less than 1½ years to furnish the last 100,000 tons. There is now more than 100,000 tons of high grade chromite reserves that could immediately move into the market."

Become Established

The chrome mining industry is beginning to become established, he said, and is approaching the place that it "will stimulate and give purpose to research." Referring to research, he said "our future mineral supplies depend upon it."

He noted that research has reduced the cost per pound of aluminum, produced oil from what would never have been recovered, and has vastly increased the potential nickel supplies.

Porter pointed out that Engle's bill "is a constructive proposal that places no burden on the government and will put the chrome owners in business without interfering with our policies overseas."

The proposed bill would assure a chrome ore producer's cooperative a market for 50,000 tons of chromium ferro-alloys over a six-year period.

"The population of the West Coast is expanding," he noted. "This means an increase in industry with a burgeoning market for chromium products."

"The airplane industry on the West Coast is planning to convert to higher temperature steels. That will mean an increase in the use of chromite, and the steel plants have plans for expansion in the near future."

"As we have the ore and from every indication a future market, it seems to me H. R. 13280 offers a workable solution to the chrome problem. I understand that the Department of Interior does not approve this program, but favors a subsidy plan. I am sure the chrome miners will welcome any feasible program that gets them to work. This is an important aspect that means a great deal to Southwestern Oregon."

Medford Attorney Bruce Manley, president of the California Oregon Chrome Producers association, presented detailed information concerning the proposed development program, Porter noted.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mrs. B.E.—Bob and his wife should live with us.

Bob E.—They interfere in little ways.

Mrs. B.E.—My son, who is just 23, was recently married. His father and I opposed the marriage, but we were unable to do anything with him. Now we accept it and are trying to take his wife to our hearts like our own child.

We would like Bob and his wife to live with us for a while until they can get on their own feet. We have a big house and the other children have all left. Bob and his wife are both working, but they haven't yet saved any money and will have quite a struggle.

We wouldn't interfere in their lives in any way and they would have the utmost privacy, but they aren't willing to stay with us for even a short time. Isn't that foolish? We are really quite hurt.

Bob E.—My parents have been wonderful about this whole thing and I do appreciate their attitude. I believe my mother is sincere when she says she and my father don't want to interfere with us, but whether they realize it or not they do interfere in little ways.

My wife is very sensitive to everything they say because she knows they didn't like her at first. She says my mother sometimes says little things which annoy her, like, "Why don't you comb your hair before going out?" or "Let me show you how Bob likes his coffee." Mother means well, but Lillian takes it that she is being criticized.

It is going to be very rough going for us, but we feel we would be better off in our own place.

The Council: It takes a great deal of tolerance, self-restraint and general maturity for two couples to live together successfully. We don't believe it could be done in this case.

From Bob's statement, we would judge his wife has a childish resistance against what she supposes is authority. Another way of looking at his mother's remarks would be to see that so much interest indicates love and thoughtfulness. Bob's wife feels it is criticism because she lacks confidence in herself.

Mrs. B.E. should not feel hurt when her son rejects her generous offer. She should realize her plan could not work out well under the circumstances. A antagonisms would be set up and they would last a lifetime.

Left to themselves, Bob and Lillian will probably take their various problems and hardships in stride. They will not be able to blame any of their disagreements or setbacks on any other person. In this way they will develop strength and self-responsibility.

Improvements Bill Slated at Portland

Portland — (UPI) — Alexander G. Brown, Portland city attorney, was ordered Monday by the city council to begin drafting a composite ballot covering a $39,555,000 package of capital improvements to be presented to the voters at the November general election.

The bill is expected to be a combination bond issue-special tax levy covering a variety of capital needs over a 10-year period.

Buenos Aires — (UPI) — Secretary of Commerce Jose Orfila said today the United States has cancelled the sale of 100,000 tons of wheat to Paraguay in accordance with a recent agreement with Argentina for controlled disposal of U.S. farm surpluses. He said the wheat would be provided to Paraguay by Argentina.

Senate Hopefuls Schedule Debate

Sacramento — (UPI) — California's two candidates for U.S. Senator, Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and Rep. Clair Engle, have agreed to a debate before a meeting of United Press International editors.

The two men will meet in October before a group of southern California UPI editors.

The idea for the debate came from the Oceanside, Calif., Blade-Tribune, in an editorial July 13. The editorial said it would be a "symbolic commemoration" of the Lincoln-Douglas debate from Aug. 21 to Oct. 15, 1858.

Neither Knight, a Republican, nor Engle, a Democrat, have ever met face to face in a debate. So far as known, no other such meetings have been scheduled before the November general election.

Knight said in Sacramento he would be "delighted to attend."

"This is in the best tradition of American politics and good government," he said.

Engle declared his readiness to meet his rival in a telegram from Washington, D.C. He specified that the editors must be allowed to ask him and Knight any questions they wish.

Iraq Evacuees Due in Tehran

Tehran — (UPI) — A group of about 30 American evacuees from Iraq arrived today at Abadan, the big oil center in southwest Iran.

The Americans were due here later today. An American spokesman said that they would be flown to New York aboard a chartered plane.

The revolutionary government of Iraq permitted the departure of the Americans, mostly women and children, following the safe arrival in Rome Monday of the first plane load of American evacuees—36 women, 54 children and two men.

The Americans reaching Abadan are dependents of the Morrison-Knudson International Corp., who have been working on Iraqi development projects at Basra, 400 miles from Baghdad.

They were met at the Iranian border by American consular and Iranian government representatives.

Judging Begins in Miss Universe Test

Long Beach, Calif. — (UPI) — Judging begins tonight in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium for selection of this country's representative in the seventh annual Miss Universe Pageant.

The judges will select 15 finalists from 45 domestic beauties, representing 43 states, the District of Columbia and the city of Philadelphia. Miss Alaska was declared a "foreign entrant" because Alaska had not yet approved statehood.

The finalists will compete Wednesday night for the title of Miss United States and the right to represent their country in the Miss Universe judging, beginning Thursday and ending Friday night with selection of the winner.

Birgitte Bardot Heads Art List

San Francisco — (UPI) — French actress Birgitte Bardot headed a list of the world's 10 best undressed women drawn up today by a group of art students.

The students, who attend the San Francisco Academy of Art, chose Miss Bardot head and shoulders above the others on the list because of her "graceful symmetry."

The other winners were Janet Leigh, Miti Gaynor, Gina Lollobrigida, Esther Williams, Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor, Debbie Reynolds, Jeanne Crain and Anita Ekberg.

The 150 students and 20 faculty members hastened to explain they were not privileged to view the winners in the altogether. What they did was to use their "trained eyes" and artistic imagination.

The list was limited to motion picture actresses because they are known all over the world. However, they pointed out there are several models at the school "who could easily qualify."

Six Courses Set In Siskiyou County

Yreka — Six post session courses have been scheduled by Chico State college, Chico, Calif., to be offered in Siskiyou county in July and August, the Siskiyou county superintendent of schools has announced.

Courses offered are field problems in natural science at McCloud elementary school; evaluation of pupil progress at Yreka High school, curriculum development and seminar in curriculum problems at Grenada elementary school, history of northern California at McCloud elementary school, developmental reading at Yreka High school, and audiometry at Yreka High school.

The courses carry residence credit for two units, the superintendent said.

The Goldring organization, started in Louisiana in the 1890s by his father, David, operates 40 leased fashion departments, most of them in men's clothing stores, and two stores, in Shreveport, La., and New Orleans.

Flood Damage in Missouri, Kansas Nears $10 Million

United Press International
Flood damage in Missouri and Kansas mounted today to the $10 million mark today with the mighty Missouri river rolling over its bank from mid-Missouri almost to St. Louis.

The floods, triggered by a battery of torrential thunderstorms that began 11 days ago, have inundated about 360,000 acres of land in the two states.

Damage Estimated
Army Engineers estimated damage to towns and farms in the path of the floodwaters at more than $9 million.

Col. Lee Laurion, Kansas City district engineer, said about 100,000 acres of fertile farm land were under water along the lower reaches of the Missouri. Damage in that area was estimated at $2,500,000.

The Missouri was not expected to crest until Wednesday at St. Charles, Mo., at six feet above flood stage. The river was expected to hold the crest for 24 hours, inundating more farm land.

Thunderstorms Continue

In Northwest Missouri, damage was estimated at $2,800,000 along the Grand river where 95,000 acres were flooded, Laurion said.

The Fort Scott, Kan., flood last week inundated 85,000 acres with a loss of $1 million.

Scattered thunderstorms continued during the night from Missouri through the Ohio River valley into Pennsylvania and south to the Gulf states. An isolated downpour dumped 2.34 inches of water in Lexington, Ky.

AGC, Engineers To Resume Talks

Portland — (UPI) — Federal Mediator LeRoy Smith said negotiations would resume today between Associated General Contractors and the Operating Engineers Union to try to halt a strike which has tied up heavy construction in Oregon and southwest Washington.

Smith said considerable progress had been made in recent talks with engineers and the Teamsters Union, which also is on strike against AGC.

The strike started July 9 in southwest Washington and spread to Oregon the next day. It has tied up highway, dam, military and other construction work. AGC asked other members to halt work on jobs where members of striking unions are employed, saying "a strike against one is a strike against all."

Firearms Approved For Defense Civilians

Washington — (UPI) — The Senate passed and sent to the White House Monday a bill permitting Defense department civilian employees to carry firearms when on investigative or law enforcement duties or when carrying secret information.
