Beavers and Solons Split; Indians Outlast Salt Lake 14-13 in 13

By United Press International

The Spokane Indians outlasted Salt Lake City 14-13 in a 13-inning fray at Derks Field, Salt Lake, last night despite a parade of seven Bee hurlers who tried to keep the Utahans in contention for the Pacific Coast League flag.

The loss left Salt Lake 4½ games behind San Diego and Vancouver who are tied for the lead, with the Padres holding a single percentage advantage.

The Mounties lost a half-game margin by suffering a 9-3 loss to Seattle at the Rainiers' home field. Portland and Sacramento split a twin bill at Portland, the Solons bouncing back for a 7-5 win in the nightcap after dropping the opener to the Beavers 6-3. Second place Phoenix and San Diego were idle.

A Long, Slow Game

When the Bees came up to bat in the seventh inning, the home crowd of 4,000 fans was ready to go home as the game was a slow one and Spokane led 10-3. But Salt Lake's hitters began connecting. They piled up eight runs for an 11-10 lead by the end of the inning.

Spokane tied it up in the ninth on doubles by Jim Williams and Bob Jenkins. In the 12th, Jenkins doubled and then scored on a single by Norm Sherry. The Bees came back with a run on singles by Pete Naton and Jim Baumer.

Jim Gentile homered for the Indians in the 13th and the Tribe added an important insurance run on singles by Tony Roig and Jim Baxes. Carlos Bernier scored on Dick Barone's single for Salt Lake in their half, but that was all, and the game ended just 15 minutes short of five hours of baseball.

Sacramento saved its split in the double-header with Portland on the three-run homer blasted by Bob Roselli in the top of the ninth. Portland's Dave Melton did the same in the bottom of the frame, but it was not enough. The Beavers took the opener on a neat seven-hit job by Elmer Singleton. He was given a good start with a five-run margin in the first inning.

Seattle bounced the Mounties out of their narrow league lead with a 13-hit attack, overtaking the Canadians in the third with the help of a wild pitch by Gordon Sundin and an error.

Rogue All-Star Nine Faces Camp White

Ex-Medford High school athletes predominate on the roster of the Rogue Valley All-Stars baseball nine which will meet Camp White on Wednesday evening at the Veterans Administration domiciliary's Memorial stadium at Camp White.

Ex-Talent and ex-Ashland high players also are on the squad and a majority of the squad members listed are now attending college.

Ed Reinking, ex-Medford outfielder and member this spring of the Oregon State college varsity, is manager of the all-star club.

He reported that ex-Medford athletes on the crew include Dennis King, Dick McLoughlin, Larry Perkins, Gordon Ousley and Eldon Francis. Gordy Thoreson and Dale Walter are from Talent high and Pete Cotton from Ashland.

Possible Line-Up Told

Walter or McLaughlin could be starting pitcher for the Stars with Eldon Francis or McLaughlin catching. King may be at first base, Perkins at second, Ousley at shortstop and Thoreson at third with Reinking in center field, and Cotton in right. Francis may be in the left pasture if he doesn't catch.

It is hoped to round out the squad with baseballers who have just completed American Legion junior baseball slates.

Of the group King played with the Oregon State Rook squad last spring and McLaughlin saw some duty with the Rooks. Perkins was with the University of Oregon Frosh. Thoreson, Francis and Walter were on the Southern Oregon college crew and Ousley attended SOC.

Game time is 8 p.m.

The tussle had been planned for last week but was postponed because of stormy weather.

Loggers Top Bureau, 8-6, In Softball Tilt Monday

Butte Falls topped the Bureau of Reclamation 8-6 in an extra inning Jackson County Softball association league game Monday night at Camp White after the first game of the evening, Eagle Point vs. the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was called after five innings because it was running late.

The Jaycees were leading the Eagle Point Merchants 21-20 when the game was called after more than two hours. League Director Willie Barnum reported that the final two innings will be played later in the season.

Bill Irwin struck out 12 batters and smashed a triple to help his own cause while going the distance for the Butte Falls Loggers. Teammates George Bray and Harold Lang contributed to the winners' cause with doubles.

With the Bureau team leading 5 to 2 in the bottom of the fourth inning Bud Ash smashed a home run for the losers but in the top of the fifth the Loggers came back to tie it up and force the game into an extra inning.

Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Camp White Memorial stadium the M and W Chain Saw club is scheduled to meet the Rogue Valley Dairy Maids, and at 9 p.m. the Butte Falls Loggers will take on Parson Motors. Action slated for next Monday includes the Cheney Studs vs. the Bureau of Reclamation and the Jaycees vs. the Butte Falls Loggers.

OSC May Leave PCC

Portland — (UPI— Oregon State indicated today that it may drop out of the troubled Pacific Coast conference if Washington and Stanford join three other schools in bolting from the loop.

Dr. A. L. Strand, president of the Corvallis school, said Oregon State would stay in the PCC as long as there were five members. "We will consider dropping out if the number is cut to four." He was here to attend a meeting of the State Board of Higher Education.

Southern California, California and UCLA already have announced plans to bolt the PCC. Washington's board of regents has given the Seattle school a go-ahead to withdraw although no official word has been forthcoming from it as yet.

Washington's withdrawal would leave Oregon State, Oregon, Washington State, Idaho and Stanford in the PCC.

Dr. Strand was of the opinion that Stanford probably would go along with the other California members of the conference. In that case, he said, "the rest of us might as well disband. We have just about had it." He said the other schools probably would go along as independents.

Dr. O. Meredith Wilson, president of the University of Oregon, had "no comment" on Dr. Strand's satement.

Eugene—(UPI)—Greg Willener, all-state end for South Eugene High school last fall Saturday disclosed plans to enroll at the University of Oregon.

Cardinals Stop Braves 5-4 In 14 Inning Game, Redlegs Whip Chicago

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

Bill Wight, a pitcher both Baltimore's Paul Richards and Cincinnati's Birdie Tebbets gave up on within the span of a couple of months, shaped up today as the relief hurler St. Louis Cardinal manager Fred Hutchinson has been seeking all season.

Wight, a 36-year-old left-hander from Rio Vista, Calif., who's knocked around the major leagues with indifferent success since 1946, pitched six shutout innings Monday night that enabled the Cardinals to beat the Milwaukee Braves, 5-4, in 14 innings. It was the best relief job turned in by a Cardinal pitcher all season.

Rookie Curt Flood, obtained from the Cincinnati Redlegs last Dec. 5, broke up the game when he homered off Lew Burdette in the 14th. It was the eighth loss of the year for the 1957 World Series hero, who went all the way and had a 4-3 lead in the ninth when Wally Moon tied the score with a homer.

Move Into Fifth

The Redlegs whipped the Chicago Cubs, 9-4, in the only other major league action of the day or night and vaulted from last to fifth place in the National League. Harvey Haddix went all the way for the Redlegs to register his sixth victory.

The Braves jumped off to a 3-0 lead as they routed Lindy McDaniel in the first ining but the Cards pecked away a run at a time and finally tied the score at 3-3 in the top of the seventh when rookie Ruben Amaro scored after knocking the ball from Burdette's glove during a run-down between third and home.

Joe Adcock homered in the bottom of the inning to put the Braves back in front but Moon's ninth-inning blast sent the game into overtime.

Wight took over for the Cardinals in the eighth inning and limited the Braves to four hits over the last six frames. Double plays helped him out of jams in both the 11th and 13th innings.

Record 16 and 16

The Braves collected 16 hits, including four by Bill Bruton and three each by Hank Aaron and Adcock but left 16 runners stranded.

George Crowe's two-run fourth inning double and Bob Thurman's three-run seventh-inning homer were the big blows for the Redlegs, who dealt rookie Marcelino Selis his first defeat.

The Cardinals' victory over the Braves gives the San Francisco Giants an opportunity to "make hay" tonight when they have a suspended game, which they are leading, to complete before playing the Philadelphia Phillies in a regular game.

In the American League, the runaway New York Yankees are in Detroit protecting an 11-game lead. The Yankees stand only 6-9 against the Tigers for the season but are 14-7 in the West so far this year.

Havertown, Pa.—(UPI)—Tommy Bolt walks a temperamental tight rope today all because of a golf course built by 500 pounds of sugar and the breaking of a golf club fashioned from a tank's radio antenna.

There are other ingredients which contribute to Tommy's reputation as a "Thunder" Bolt. They are two five-gallon GI cans which were filled with golf balls, a dozen and a half Number 10 tomato cans and the partisan heckling of a horde of Italian fairway enthusiasts.

All of them were concerned in the branding of Bolt as "terrible tempered" Tommy.

The story of Bolt's tribulations started when Dugan Aycock, golf professional at the Lexington Country Club in North Carolina, swapped his cleats for khaki and shipped out as sergeant in the 605th Ordnance attached to the Fifth Army. Aycock managed to crowd five sets of golf clubs into the duffle and packed 400 golf balls into the potato pots.

Arabs Paid In Sugar

Then came the day when a semblance of peace reigned in Casablanca and Aycock set about building a golf course even though he had nothing to do with Special Services. Dugan laid out fairways and, paying the Arab laborers off in sugar, used 500 pounds in getting his fairways mowed by hand. The tomato cans from the mess shack were used for cups and sand greens were dressed up with motor oil and ground cork.

The course was such a smashing success that, when Aycock's outfit finally moved on to Rome, he was given permission to build another course. The greens were there, this time, but the fairways had grown wild. Equipment was getting scarce, too.

"We finally got the course into some kind of shape," he recalls, "and had a windfall when we found 20 putter heads in a bombed out building near the course. But we had a maintenance outfit which could do anything and it fashioned shafts out of tank radio antennas."

Enter Bolt

One of the horde of 285 contestants was a young GI named Tommy Bolt who was awaiting replacement with an infantry outfit.

"We also let in a few of the top Italian players," Aycock recalls. "One of these was a fellow named Ugo Grapposoni. Naturally the Italians wanted him to win the tournament and they were as excited as chickens with a weasel in the henhouse when it looked like he would. So, when Bolt began to close in on Ugo, they began to give Tommy all the heckling they could.

Bolt blew his stack. On one green he snapped one of those precious putter shafts made out a tank antenna.

A writer with Stars and Stripes saw him do it and "Thunder" Bolt was born. When Tommy marched home it was his misfortune to play in a tournament covered by the same writer, now back on the home front sports beat. "Thunder" hit the headlines to stay and people have been heckling him to explode and "throw it" ever since.

"Tommy's temperament made it easy for him to oblige them," Aycock says.

Now he'll have to control himself, however, for he is under indefinite probation for "conduct detrimental to the game."

"If he's smart and controls himself, he'll be one of the most colorful players since Walter Hagen," says Aycock. "But he proved to me when we were in service, and I gave him what for because he broke that precious putter, that he could."

It's been a long road from Rome. Aycock now is "home club professional of the year." Bolt, as winner of the U.S. Open, is in the running for "Golfer of the Year" honors. And it all goes back to that sugar, those tomato cans and a tank antenna which would have been safer in battle.

PACKS HEAVIEST LOAD

Patterson-Harris Theatre Television Fight Tickets Go On Sale at Craterian

Tickets are now on sale at the Craterian theater here for the television presentation of Floyd Patterson-Roy Harris heavyweight title boxing bout.

Challenger Harris goes against champion Patterson on Monday night, Aug. 18 at Los Angeles. There will be no home television of the fight.

Robert Corbin, manager here for Oregon-California theaters, general admission tickets at the Craterian will sell for $3 and center section and loge seats will cost $5. The amounts are higher than the prices for two previous bouts but considerably less than what fans will be paying in other communities.

Will Take Orders

The Craterian will fill mail orders if checks or money orders in the correct amounts are included. Also reservations will be taken and tickets will be held through Friday, Aug. 15. If these tickets have not been picked up and paid for by that date, they will be put back on sale.

On the basis of attendance at the two Carmen Basilio-Ray Robinson fights shown here previously, a sellout is expected for the heavyweight event. The two middleweight tussles were great engagements and the video picture was good, showing the action adequately. Corbin stated that the same equipment and operator will be employed here as for the last of the two Basilio-Robinson scraps.

Doors at the Craterian will open at 6 p. m. and the fight will begin at 7 p.m. (PST).

Favorites Win In Oregon Coast Tourney

Astoria—(UPI)—June Robinson, a 17-year-old blonde from Tillamook, fired a one-under-women's par 73 Monday to cop medalist honors in the women's division of the 48th annual Oregon Coast Golf tournament at the Astoria Country club.

Leading the pack in the senior men's division was Joe Herron, Portland Golf club. The 53-year-old veteran carded a 74, two over par to pace a field of 38 golfers.

Favorites in the men's championship flight posted first round victories Monday, all without mishap.

Chuck Hunter, the University of Oregon golfer from Tacoma, rallied from a one hole deficit on the 17th hole to defeat two-time champion Bob Anderson of Astoria, 1-up.

Junior men's medalist Ralph Dichter of Astoria trounced Hal Laman of Portland Golf club, 6 and 5. Keith Gubrud, University of Oregon, whipped Bob Smith of Waverley, 4 and 3.

Men's play continues today with the women getting the day off.

The tournament runs through Saturday.

Louis Kurz Stock Car Race Victor

Ashland—Louis Kurz was victor in the main event Saturday in stock car races at Valley View speedway.

His car was one of five to finish the race out of a starting field of 14. Kurz was followed to the checkered flag by Cecil James and Lon Gay. Other survivors were Earl Stevenson and Jack Keck Sr.

Although the gals in the powder puff derby had a few precarious moments they managed to stay right side up. Helen Kurz was winner with Opal Jenkins second and Juanita Bunker third.

In the trophy dash Louis Kurz was not quite able to take the hardware away from the McGilvray family. Red McGilvray was first across the line to get the Copeland Lumber Yard of Medford prize. This is the third straight time one of the McGilvray brothers has taken home the trophy.

Sletten Spill Thrills

Ted Sletten was first in the opening heat with Jerry Weir next and Cliff McGilvray third. Jack Keck Jr. won out the battle for fourth spot and a place in the final heat. Red McGilvray, James and Harold Silver were one-two-three in the second heat, and Red McGilvray, Sletten and Kurz in that order in the final heat.

Sletten put the crowd to its feet in the 12th lap of the main. His car blew a tire and executed a 1¾ roll. Kurz barely missed the big Lincoln but Red McGilvray damaged the right front end of his car and the front end of Silver's car totaled out. Lon Gay had at least two wheels in the air to avoid being involved. Sletten suffered a bruised shoulder.

Jack Keck Jr., who got a wheel hub repaired after breaking it in the time trials, blew a piston and burned out a main bearing in the main event.

The track was fast and action was the keynote Saturday. Drivers seemed to be going all out to give the fans a show.
