

Roy Harris Doesn't Take Kindly To Getting Beat; Wants Toga Mighty Bad

Until he was 16 years old Roy Harris, now 25, fought barefooted and mostly for the fun of it in and around Cut 'N Shoot, Texas, a town of 192 souls. Now he has won 22 straight professional fights as a heavy-weight and on Aug. 18 will meet champion Floyd Patterson for the title in Los Angeles. This is the first of three dispatches in which Roy tells his story, including why he thinks he can become the world's heavy-weight champion.)

By ROY HARRIS
(Written Expressly for United Press International)

Cut 'N Shoot, Texas—UPI—Can I lick Floyd Patterson? I honestly think so or I wouldn't be going in there to fight him for the heavyweight championship.

None of us Cut 'N Shoot folks, and particularly the Harris, ever took kindly to getting beat at anything. And I want that title mighty bad. Let me tell you a story about my brother, Tobe, who is two years older than me. It may help explain how much I want to be heavy-weight champion. Tobe has quite a reputation around Cut 'N Shoot because when he was only 14 he went back into the swamp alone and caught the biggest bull alligator anyone ever saw in captivity in these parts.

This fellow was 14 feet long and weighed about a ton. Tobe's big and strong, was even then. He looped a rope around that gator's jaw, flung the other end around its tail, and tied it so that the more the gator thrashed about, the tighter the rope got.

The gator overturned his boat and dragged him ashore, but he fastened the big ugly thing to a tree and marched out to get help lugging it home.

From Fighting Stock To me, I guess the heavy-weight championship is like that bull gator. I've been fighting since I was knee-high to a puddle duck, and now I've got a chance to make my dream come true.

I come from fighting stock. My dad, Big Henry, licked Ed Dunaway, the heavy-weight champion of the South, a couple of times back in the '20's. Dad and my uncles, Jack and Bob, were known as about the roughest guys to tangle with in our whole area—what we call the "Big Thicket."

And they didn't usually bother to put on boxing gloves in those days, either. I guess I first started boxing when Tobe traded some ducks for a set of boxing gloves. We set up a home-made ring in the yard and went at it day and night. When we got tired of belting each other, we'd take on other guys from all over the 'Thicket' and even some loud-mouths Dad used to haul back from the honky-tonks in Conroe, the nearest big town, just for laughs. Tobe turned pro and won 24 out of 27 bouts. Then he fell off a horse and hurt his shoulder and had to quit. Our younger brother, Little Henry, is a good prospect, too. He's playing high school football now and has won a lot of amateur fights. One day, he even knocked me down when we were working out.

Proud of Tobe I had 80 or so amateur fights and won the Texas Golden Gloves championship four times — middleweight and light heavy. I got to the finals of the Chicago tournament one year but had to withdraw because I caught a virus. I got a sportsmanship trophy, though, and I was proud of that.

Another thing that happened in Chicago, I was on the Dave Garroway show. He liked the name Cut 'N Shoot so much it got so that, when he announced the temperature in various places in the country, he'd say "Cut 'N Shoot" instead of Houston, 50 miles away.

That's only the beginning of how I hope to put Cut 'N Shoot on the map. It's only got a population of 192—a school, a couple of churches, a sawmill, a service station and a grocery store.

But I don't guess anyone had heard much about Manassa, Colo., either, until Jack Dempsey came from there. Being from a small town didn't keep Dempsey from becoming heavy-weight champ, and like I said, that's what I want more than anything.

(Next: Roy's family)

Medford Cubs Ice Tie For Championship

The Medford Cubs shut out the Ashland Cubs in the Southern Oregon Junior baseball league Cubs division Monday afternoon to insure themselves of at least a tie for the league championship.

The victory boosted the local club's record to five wins and no losses during the season. Doug Kinney pitched two-hit ball for the winners as they won 10-0. He also collected two hits at the plate. Art Ruhl proved the leading hitter when he collected three for four and batted in two runs.

Leland Johnson picked up two for three at the plate for the winners including a double with the bases loaded.

Next Monday the Medford nine will meet the Grants Pass Cubs at Grants Pass to determine the league victor. If the Grants Pass nine wins the two clubs will be co-victors. If the Medford club wins they will be undisputed league champs.

LINESCORE:
Ashland Cubs 000 000 0-0 2 2
Medford Cubs 200 143 x-10 11 1
Doster and Allen; Kinney and Ruhl.

Holmberg and Olmedo Victors In Tennis

Philadelphia — (UPI) — Alejandro Olmedo of Peru and Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, N. Y., won the men's doubles title at the Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis championships Monday by defeating Mal Anderson of Australia and Gardner Mulloy of Denver, Colo., 16-14, 4-6, 6-3.

Olmedo, 22, the University of Southern California star who recently won the national intercollegiate title for the second time, did not suffer a service break in the well-played match. Each of the others lost his service once.

Althea Gibson, Wimbledon and U.S. champion from New York, won the women's singles final Saturday and teamed with Karol Fageros of Miami to win the women's doubles crown.

Tom Heath Leaves Bed
Portland — (UPI) — Tommy Heath, Portland Beaver general and field manager was released from Good Samaritan hospital Sunday.

Doctors said Heath will have to wear a brace for at least two months to prevent re-injury to his back. His back was hurt when he fell down a flight of steps at a beach cottage.

Arch Kingsley, president of the Portland club, said Heath won't be back at work for some time yet.

Heath may go to his home in Sacramento for a couple of weeks in an attempt to regain his strength, but Heath added that his doctor would have the final say.

Everybody Happy in Meet Between U.S. and Russia

Moscow—UPI—East is east and west is west, especially when it comes to figuring out who won the dual track and field meet between the U. S. and Russia.

In the aftermath of the historic two-day athletic competition everybody was officially happy.

The Americans were happy because they won the men's meet against a strong Soviet squad by 126 points to 109.

The American women were happy because they won four out of ten events against the "invincible" Russian Ladies and only lost by 44 points to 63 although they feared they might be swamped.

Reds Are Happy
The Russians were very happy indeed because by adding up men's and women's scores they found they had beaten the U. S. 172 points to 170.

Not even this quaint claim by the Russians, who previously had promised the American team in writing that it would regard the competition as two separate meets could erase smiles all around.

"Let them claim it if they want to," said U. S. Coach George Eastment.

"What's the difference? We aren't going to make an issue of it," said Dan Ferris, honorary secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union.

A few American eyebrows shot up when the electric scoreboard of the efficiently-run 103,000-seat stadium began to lump men's and women's scores.

But the Russians have gone out of their way to be helpful, friendly and hospitable and officials of the American team decided to let them "have their fun."

"We know who won," smiled Eastment.

Gavril Korobkov, the Russian coach, evaded a direct reply to a question of the scoring dispute.

"It would be better for American development for the next Olympics," he retorted, "to adopt joint scoring as we do to encourage their women."

The two countries clash in a return match in Philadelphia in July, 1959.

The incomparable Rafer Johnson set a new decathlon mark of 8,302 points—breaking the old record of 8,014 in the ninth event.

If the Russians have any regrets at all it is that Rafer is a Californian and not a Russian.

Water Ski Entries Mounting

A number of entries for the Western Regional Water Ski championships have been filed with Crater Lions club of Medford within the past several days.

The Lions are sponsors of this regional event of the American Water Ski association and it will be held Aug. 8, 9, and 10 at Gardener lake northeast of Medford.

Entries include those of Bob Norris, San Diego, Calif., national veterans trick champion, Chuck Stearns, Los Angeles, 1957 United States overall champ, Vicki Van Hook, Los Angeles, last year's junior girls overall victor, and Martha Ann Williams, 1957 second in tricks in the nation in junior girls rivalry.

Others are Floyd Vance, Sacramento, Calif., vets class world jump record holder, his daughter, Vickie, the Abben family of Sacramento, Gloria, Garry and Philip, Lance Lenbeck, San Diego, Calif., and Larry Penacho and Bob Penberthy, San Diego, No. 1 and No. 2 contender, respectively for the junior boys' honors.

Trophies On Display
The meet is expected to attract more than 100 expert skiers in 11 western states.

Sixty trophies for the tournament are on display at Lawrence Jewelers.

The San Francisco office of the AWSA has sent, to 1000 of its members, notice of the time and place of this year's tournament. Don McNeil, manager of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, enclosed pamphlets describing Southern Oregon and what to do, where to go, and places to eat and sleep while visiting here.

Lon Skinner, chairman of the water ski meet and president of the Gardener Lake Ski club, delivered these pamphlets, questionnaire forms and invitations to the San Francisco office for distribution.

As the forms are being returned, official entry blanks are being sent out with a brochure about the meet and directions for registration.

The sun shines in San Francisco 66 of every possible 100 hours, according to the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Bureau, Loggers Grab Softball Victories

The Bureau of Reclamation and the Butte Falls Loggers turned in victories Monday night at Memorial Stadium, Camp White, in Jackson county softball league games.

The Bureau turned back the Cheney Studs 9-6 behind the homer unit hitting of Al Dover and Rich Hagen. Winning pitcher Les Booth also helped the cause with a triple.

With the Bureau nine leading 5-4 going into the bottom of the sixth inning Steve Wiesley smashed a two-run homer for the Studs to put them back in the lead. The one-run margin proved insufficient however when the Bureau came back in the seventh with four runs.

The Loggers outlasted the Jaycees 10-7 in the second tilt. After the losers jumped off to a four run lead in the top of the first they were held scoreless until the fifth. In the meantime the Loggers, who sprang back from a 3-2 loss at the hands of Parsons Motors Thursday, collected two runs in the second and three in the third and one in the fourth to go ahead for good.

LINESCORE:
(first game)
Bureau of Reclamation 000 212 4-9 9 1
Cheney Studs 003 102 0-6 12 2
Booth and Bishop; Tonn, Amison (4) and Green.
(second game)
Junior Chamber of Commerce 400 010 2-7 7 4
Butte Falls Loggers 025 113 x-10 12 3
Keys and Gilbert; Eirwin and Ferguson.

Camp White Nine Slates Two Games
The Camp White baseball team will host the Butte Falls nine in a non-league encounter at Memorial Stadium, Camp White Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Friday evening the Camp White club will travel to Klamath Falls to take on the Cubs of the Northern California league in another non-league game.

York Harbor, Maine—(UPI)—Harold C. Richard, 73, of New York, a banker and industrialist who served as chairman of three companies, died Monday at his summer home.

Big Name Golfers Start Tourney Today
Chicago—UPI—A field of big name pros — including Sam Snead, Dow Finsterwald and the Hebert brothers—tee off today in a $2,500 prelude to the Chicago Open golf tournament.

The two-day pro-amateur prelude to the tournament, opening Thursday, was arranged after John E. McNulty president of the Geneagles Chicago Open Committee, cancelled qualifying rounds for the big event.

McNulty's gesture for the Chicago Open, first of its kind, automatically made all the 170 players entered eligible for the 72-hole open.

Hunt America Time Plans Outlined by Waltonians
Chicago — A campaign to help America's 12 million hunters upgrade the standard of hunter conduct afield—and win the confidence of the nation's farmers and ranchers—was announced today by The Izaak Walton League of America, national conservation organization.

The 1958 theme is "Respect Private Property — Save Hunting!"

The IWL with financial aid from the National Sporting Goods association will provide state and local League units with complete kits of materials.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

Hunt America Time Plans Outlined by Waltonians

Chicago — A campaign to help America's 12 million hunters upgrade the standard of hunter conduct afield—and win the confidence of the nation's farmers and ranchers—was announced today by The Izaak Walton League of America, national conservation organization.

The 1958 theme is "Respect Private Property — Save Hunting!"

The IWL with financial aid from the National Sporting Goods association will provide state and local League units with complete kits of materials.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed in recognition of research findings that yellow is a better hunting safety color than the traditional red, and because Hunt America Time more accurately describes the scope of the program than the old title.

The program is described as successor to Red Cap Month, a hunting safety and manners program sponsored by the League nationally in 1957, and in turn derived from a similar successful program initiated by Oregon Izaak Walton leaders as Red Hat Days. A statement in the "Outline for Action" explains that the title was changed