Two Reformatory Inmates Die From Duplicator Fluid

Salida, Colo. — Two reformatory inmates died Friday night and 34 others who drank a duplicator fluid containing deadly wood alcohol were hospitalized Saturday.

Doctors at two hospitals where the reformatory inmates were taken from Buena Vista said wood alcohol, a central nervous system poison with no known specific antidote, has a delayed effect. They said the inmates would not be out of danger for 72 hours.

Ceriton Corley, 20, of Houston, Tex., died at the Rio Grande hospital here at 11 p.m. Conrad Johnson, 20, Colorado Springs died soon after. Gilbert Vigil, 23, of Denver, had been in critical condition, but early yesterday was improving. The Rio Grande hospital said his condition was "fair."

Warden Wayne K. Patterson said at Buena Vista, 26 miles north of Salida, that he was not sure all the hospitalized young men had drunk the duplicator fluid. He sent everyone he thought might have done so either to Salida or the Colorado Penitentiary hospital at Canon City. The first inmates were taken violently ill about 2 p.m. Friday.

"We can't figure out why they drank it, how they got hold of it, or how much they drank," warden Patterson said. "We only hope that we got everybody who had any of it to the hospital."

"I'm sure this was no sort of demonstration or attempt to cause trouble," Patterson said. "They just wanted to drink something, though you'd think they would show more intelligence."

"We've sure had a lot of bad luck here," the warden said. "I hope this is the last of it."

Last year during a short-lived riot at the reformatory a guard shot an inmate dead. The inmate was clubbing an unarmed guard.

Recognition Gets Quick Acceptance

Washington — U. S. recognition of the new Iraqi government won quick acceptance Saturday from key members of congress.

The move to recognize the regime that came to power in Baghdad by bloody revolt had been anticipated by congressmen receiving daily briefings from the State Department.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas) said "the question of recognition of a government is a matter of public policy to be determined by the President on the basis of the facts available to him. As I understand the situation, this appears to be the sensible thing to do."

He said "recognition does not imply approval of condemnation" of the new government.

Rep. Edgar W. Hiestand (R-Calif.) said it was his understanding that Iraq has promised to pay compensation to families of the three Americans.

Eyecatcher Nabs Bad Check Passers

Okmulgee, Okla. — With a flair for the unusual, three bogus check passers from Tulsa, Okla., rode through Arkansas and Oklahoma this week in a car equipped with an eyecatcher. Now, they wish they hadn't.

Merion Earl Forster, 20, Alfred Earl Foster, 20, and Clarence Lorenzo Turner, 23, outwitted service station attendants in Ft. Smith, Ark., and three Oklahoma cities—Bartlesville, Okmulgee and Tulsa.

They succeeded in cashing phony checks totaling $700. But two of their victims remembered the eyecatcher.

They told authorities about a sign on the back of the check passers' car.

It read: "If you can read this, you're too damn close." And police were close enough to nab them.

Three Injured in Auto-Truck Crash

Three persons suffered minor injuries as the result of an auto-truck collision late Friday afternoon on Lake Creek rd., east of Eagle Point, according to state police.

Escaped Prisoner Caught Saturday Near Pendleton

Pendleton — An escaped prisoner from the Idaho State Penitentiary's Eagle Island dairy farm near Boise who changed clothes with a woman missionary to escape detection was apprehended by a state policeman near Adams, Ore., yesterday afternoon after a two-hour chase.

A lone patrolman, Melvin P. Hewitt, captured the armed convict, James Finas Aikens, 30, when the man tried to sneak past a police car on a side road off Highway 11 about 20 miles north of Pendleton.

During the chase Aikens stole a car, changed clothes with a woman and tied her up and left her in the car he had stolen.

The woman was Loma Mae Jones, director of education for the Oregon Missionary society, police said. She was en route from Portland to Cove to attend a young people's church camp.

Police said Aikens was spotted east of Pendleton shortly after they received word he was in the area with a stolen car. A police patrol spotted the car a short time later and gave chase but Aikens got away from the car by turning off onto a side road.

That was where he ran into Miss Jones, who had parked along the road. Armed with a shotgun he took three dollars from the woman and changed clothes with her. She was wearing a jacket and a pair of levis at the time. Police said he tied her up, put her in his car and switched on the radio and told her to "listen to it." Then he fled in her car.

She was found by police a short while later and a description of her car was broadcast to all points in the area. Hewitt spotted her car and chased Aikens. The convict turned off onto a gravel road and apparently skidded, and wound up heading back toward the police car. He surrendered to Hewitt.

Police said Aikens was being held in the Umatilla county jail here in lieu of $10,000 bail on charges of assault, robbery and being armed with a dangerous weapon.

King Suspends Constitution

Amman, Jordan — King Hussein Saturday "suspended" the constitution uniting Jordan in a federation with Iraq.

The 22-year-old monarch said the revolution in Baghdad had rendered Iraq "incapable of performing its share of responsibilities" in the union.

Therefore, Hussein said in a royal decree, the constitution joining the two countries cannot "be applied or executed from the practical point of view." Jordan regards it, he said, as having been "suspended."

The "Arab Union" of Jordan and Iraq, which came into effect barely two months before the Baghdad revolt, already had been renounced by the new Iraqi republic.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A NEW RECRUIT could not master the intricacies of close-order drill, no matter how hard the sergeant tried to dim the various moves into his head. The recruit had just cut a gash in his nose while executing a "right shoulder arms," and the "sarge" gave up.

"Jones," he said wearily. "You and General Maxwell-Taylor have one thing in common. Both of you have gotten just about as high as you ever will in this man's army!"

The mother of seven explained to a radio audience how her philosophy had changed through the years.

"When I had my first baby," she recalled, "I summoned the doctor every time he burped. Yesterday my seventh child swallowed a dime. All I did was tell him, 'Okay, smarty pants, that dime comes out of your allowance.'"
