The Little Foxes' Given at Theatre

Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" is being given at the Bridge Bay Summer theatre, 12 miles north of Redding, Calif., on Lake Shasta, through August 10.

Mercedes McCambridge is playing the leading role in the production. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. daily except Saturday, when two performances are given at 7 and 10 p.m. Reservations may be made by writing the theatre at box 1626, Redding.

Canned Meats Good For Summer Meals

Treat your family to canned meats this summer. Handy for camp trips and other outings, canned meats are ready to serve anywhere in the great outdoors.

A glimpse at today's variety of canned meats, tips on selection, care and storage are provided by Oregon State college county extension agents.

Luncheon meat, chili con carne, canned hams, and meat stew account for almost half of all canned meat items packed under federal inspection last year. Spaghetti meat products, beef hash and tamales were other popular items. Babies like meat, too, continue home economists, and their mothers like the convenience of buying ready-to-feed strained and chopped meats.

Price tag on canned meat depends on ingredients used. Some spaghetti and meat combinations, for instance, vary 15 to 20 cents in price. By reading labels, homemakers can tell what makes up the total product, as greatest amounts of single ingredients are listed first on containers.

Most all canned meats have been completely sterilized after sealing so they can be stored unopened at room temperature. However, some hams are not completely sterile and should be refrigerated. Shoppers are advised to read labels carefully.

Rust or dents on cans do not harm the contents unless seams have leaked. Canned meats do not require cooking. Some taste better, however, if served hot. Cover unused portions of meat and store in refrigerator and use within a few days.

Don't wash eggs before storing them. Water destroys the protective film which keeps out air and odors.

All-American Girl Is a Hit At Brussels World's Fair

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
Brussels—(UPI)—The All-American girl is a hit with all who visit the U. S. Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair. And this includes the men who first ask the hostesses for information but stick around to ask for dates.

The information is readily available; the dates are not. "Oh, I have plenty of social life here," said Kaye Karlan, a blue-eyed brunette of 23, from Denver, Colo.

"But most of us date boys we've met through friends, the same as back home. We get plenty of other offers, especially from GIs stationed over here," said Kaye, a graduate of Northwestern university.

"We expect that," laughed Freida Weisblatt, 21, of Fort Worth, Texas, a junior at the University of Texas. "That's part of the American routine."

Too Young
"Only thing is, the GIs are usually younger than we are," said Renee Straus, 22, of Camden, N. J.

The be-friendly-but-not-too-friendly policy is one hostesses have adopted for their summer long job of putting America's best foot forward at the fair, where 54 countries including Russia are exhibiting. All will stay until the fair closes Oct. 19.

I stood for an hour by the U. S. information center, just inside the American Pavilion watching these three cheerfully answer questions from a steady stream of visitors.

My own reaction was one of pride in these girls, all attractive, all looking well-scrubbed and neat in their pale gray two-piece suit uniforms. They are doing a good job of diplomacy at the person-to-person level. And the European reaction to them is friendliness in return.

"So many of them come back to say we are nice," Miss Karlan said.

Oregon Ministers Ask Agreement To End Nuclear Tests

Portland—Basing their plea on moral grounds, 147 Oregon ministers have called upon the United States to secure an international agreement to suspend all nuclear weapons tests.

The announcement was made today, the 13th anniversary of the United States atomic bombing of Hiroshima, by the American Friends Service Committee in Portland.

The ministers represent 71 Oregon communities and 14 Christian denominations.

Asked To Bend Efforts
The appeal was addressed to President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and John A. McCone, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. It asked that each work to bring an end to U. S. tests in the Pacific, and "to bend all possible efforts to secure agreement with the other nuclear powers which will suspend all nuclear weapons tests."

The ministers questioned the morality of continued testing in light of "mounting evidence of radioactive fallout and by the widely held opinion of scientists that harmful effects will be visited upon unborn generations."

Deplores Perfection
"We deplore the perfecting of weapons capable of total and instant annihilation of millions of people in one blow," the statement continued.

"We are saddened that the world believes it can sow the seeds of peace by using implements of destruction."

The statement was a project initiated by the American Friends Service Committee in cooperation with the Rev. George G. Roseberry, First Methodist Church of Medford; the Rev. J. J. Clow, Mt. Olivet Baptist Church of Portland; the Rev. John L. Anderson, chaplain at Lewis and Clark College, Portland; the Rev. Albert F. King, Bethel Congregational Church of Beaverton; and the Rev. Harold Glen Brown, First Christian Church of Portland.

The 71 communities represented by signatories include Ashland, Grants Pass, Cave Junction, Lakeview, Klamath Falls, Prospect and Medford.

TEMPTATION TOO GREAT
San Jose, Calif.—(UPI)—John Henry McNeill did a good job as trustee in the county jail coffee shop, so when he was transferred to the county farm deputies took up a collection to show their appreciation. McNeill, with money to spend, promptly jumped the farm fence and fled.

Women Make Better Drivers Expert Reports

By DAVID TALBOTT
United Press International
Cleveland, Ohio—(UPI)—Summer weekend driving comment:

Let the women take the wheel. For men are more reckless drivers than women. So says Mrs. Mildred Gnaou, head of the Cleveland AAA highway safety program.

"When a man has an accident, it's a good one," said the soft-spoken Mrs. Gnaou, with the city's AAA safety program for 22 years. "But when a woman has an accident it's usually a minor thing."

"A man will try to make a distance record to prove that he can do it. A woman will stop for a cup of coffee rather than think of setting a record."

Mrs. Gnaou, one of the few women leaders in highway safety, believes more women are needed in her field. Women More Cautious

"Many women are frightened away from the field because they think that anything to do with an automobile is a man's work," she explained. "But the truth is, highway safety work is a natural for women. For they are more safety conscious than men, because they're naturally protective. And often they have insights that a man would not."

"I think that the major importance of women in highway safety work is this—women are not as callous to road death as are men. By nature, a woman is more cautious and careful. Then too, women's organizations are a terrific tool for getting safety legislation through."

Asked whether the safety consciousness of women might be a factor in some accidents, Mrs. Gnaou laughed.

"I knew that was coming," she said. "Many times a woman driver will seem confused as to what she is going to do next. Actually, she's not confused but only being cautious. She can't make up her mind whether she is going to do the safe thing."

Pre-School Start
Mrs. Gnaou pointed with pride to the two women instructors she had on the staff of the AAA driving school.

"The women are more patient and understanding than men," she said. "At first we thought we might have trouble with male students but it has been the opposite. No man has ever refused a woman as an instructor, but sometimes a woman will say she prefers to have another woman as an instructor."

When should driver training and safety training begin? "It should start with the pre-school child," said Mrs. Gnaou. "Children, no matter how small, constantly pick up information and they are going to grow up in an age on wheels."

The schools are doing an excellent job of safety training. But sometimes the example set at home on weekends is pretty bad. The child sits as a silent observer while his father gets out on the wrong side of the car or mother dashes across the street against traffic.

Cakes will rise more evenly, and pies and biscuits will brown better if baked in a shiny pan instead of a dark one.

Remove fruit stains by pouring boiling water over the spot. Bleach if necessary, but do not use soap.

To clean clogged steam irons, fill the iron with distilled vinegar, heat it until it steams a few minutes, and let stand overnight. Then empty the vinegar and rinse the iron with distilled water.

An easy way to shape hamburger patties: roll ground beef on a flat surface and cut into rounds with a large cookie cutter.

Nurse 'Sits' For Diaper Set at Disneyland Park

By RON BURTON
UPI Correspondent
Anaheim, Calif.—(UPI)—Pretty Patricia Krauth always wanted to be a nurse and take care of children, but she never dreamed that she'd be ministering to between 100 and 200 infants daily.

The 31-year-old brunette may have the country's most unusual nursing job. She manages the baby station at Disneyland Amusement park. This is a small but very important corner of Walt Disney's "Magic Kingdom," where only babies count.

And there's very little that isn't provided for a baby's comfort at the station.

"You should hear some of the things that people have to say about our station after they've brought in their wet, hungry, furious babies," said Mrs. Krauth.

Stroller Parking
"We have a diaper changing room with hospital-type equipment, real small toilets, a fully equipped kitchen for parents to prepare food, a feeding room, high chairs and a screened off area for mothers who breast-feed their babies. And it's all free."

Mrs. Krauth is particularly proud of the neat, tidy rooms in her domain. The interior is a pastel green and there are lots of cartoon characters on the walls and curtains. There's a reception room where fathers can wait if mothers are handling babies, and outside a visitor finds stroller parking lanes carefully marked on the road by the curb.

"We've planned the station in such a way that an infant makes a trip through it without having to double back. Keeps things going more smoothly, but mothers never get the feeling of an assembly line."

Appreciative Comments
"We supply fruit juices, tissues, disposable diapers, baby powder, disposable cups and spoons—I guess that's about it. We've found that most parents bring their own milk."

Mrs. Krauth said she assists here and there when necessary but that otherwise she merely guides mothers through various phases of the station.

"I'd hate to count the diapers we've given out since we opened last July," Mrs. Krauth said. "We've had more than 12,000 babies from every state and 31 foreign countries. Most are from California, of course, and then New York state."

Mrs. Krauth, who lives with her husband, Frederick, a former Navy flier from Cincinnati, Ohio, in nearby Garden Grove, said many mothers are startled when they learn that the makers of a baby food (Pablum) are footing the bill. She said the guest register reflects their thanks and includes comments such as:

"Real cool."
"Wonderful and thanks."
"The best ride yet."

MARK OF ZORRO
Tampa, Fla.—(UPI)—Police, seeking a solution to the $631 burglary of a drug store, felt sure today the job was done by juveniles. Their reason: written on the floor of the store in shaving cream were large letters spelling out: "Zorro."

Art Workshop To Start Monday

Klamath Falls—A workshop in painting, offered cooperatively by general extension division of the Oregon state system of higher education and the Klamath Art association, will begin Monday, Aug. 11.

The 11-day workshop on the campus of Oregon Technical institute will be under direction of E. Nelson Sandgren, associate professor of art at Oregon State college.

Participants in the 1958 annual workshop will have intensive experience in the use of oils, water colors and other media used to develop creative expression.

Students attending full-day sessions may earn three hours credit; those attending half-day sessions may earn two hours credit. Fee for three credit hour registration is $37.50; for two credit hour registration, $25.

Additional information may be obtained by writing to Klamath Art workshop, post office box 955, Klamath Falls, Ore.

Tug-O-War Slated At Jubilee Days

Cave Junction—A tug-o-war between the Illinois Valley volunteer firemen and the Illinois Valley loggers will be one of the main features of the annual Labor Day Jubilee here.

Included in the Jubilee will be a five-act timber show during the three-day event. Ten trees will be used in falling and bucking contests. Other timber acts include chain saw, log chopping and axe throwing contest.

The Jubilee will be held along the sidewalks in Cave Junction, with events centered around the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall.
