9 Convicts Flee State Reformatory in Washington

Monroe, Wash.—UPI—Nine convicts who escaped the Washington state reformatory here Wednesday night after beating two guards into submission were still at large today.

Ernest Timpani, superintendent of the reformatory, said the nine men, from among the "tougher element" of the institution, made their break from their evening exercise period about 8 p.m.

The guards, Robert Field and Lester Sain, were treated at the reformatory infirmary and Field suffered cuts about the face and head and a fractured index finger. Sain was knocked unconscious but suffered only head injuries. Both guards were unarmed.

About three hours after the break-out, Mrs. Dorothy Brain, 27, wife of a reformatory guard, was slugged on the head by one of the escapees who broke into her home.

Mrs. Brain said her assailant was Elvin Gilroy, 19, of Seattle.

Timpani said that a car stolen in the Monroe area was found abandoned at Snohomish, seven miles from the reformatory. The interior of the car was splattered with blood, indicating one or more of the inmates was injured during their struggle with the guards.

Timpani identified the escapees as Roland Osterman, 21; Gilroy; John Emmest, 22; DeWayne Dunlap, 19; Robert Jacques, 23; Donald Frazier, 27; Eldon Spurgeon, 23; William Brown, 18, and Harry Harris, 20.

EVICITION—Mrs. Elaine Hart of Temple City, Cal., stands with her three children outside their former home after being evicted for non-payment of rent. Left to right: Deputy Sheriff Don Dobson; Lenora, 6; Kathleen, 2; Mrs. Hart; and David, 5. The eviction was carried out even though Mrs. Hart's 5-year-old son David is a polio victim and requires a respirator to help him breathe. Neighbors took the family in.

ISOLATED—Nils Olov, 11, of Motala, Sweden, is shown for the first time in Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, where he is to undergo a serious kidney-transplant operation. The youngster has been virtually sealed off from the outside world in efforts to prevent any possible infection.

Goldfine Letters Declared Typical Bid for Favors

Washington—UPI—House investigators today called millionaire Bernard Goldfine's "true facts" letters to nearly 400 congressmen a "typical Goldfine" play for special treatment.

But they voiced confidence it won't have any effect when the House decides whether to cite Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams' gift-giving friend for contempt of Congress. They predicted overwhelming approval of the contempt citation.

Friday Vote Seen
Speaker Sam Rayburn said the House probably would vote Friday on the citation already approved unanimously by both the House influence-investigation subcommittee and its parent Commerce Committee.

If the House also approves, Goldfine would face almost certain prosecution in a federal district court. If convicted he could be sentenced to a maximum of one year in prison and fined $10,000.

The Boston textile tycoon, who lavished vicuna coats and other gifts on public officials, sent identical letters Wednesday to all House members except members of the Commerce Committee. It outlined what a spokesman for Goldfine called the "true facts" about Goldfine's testimony before the influence subcommittee.

Accusation Held Unjust

It repeated his contention it was unjust to accuse him of contempt for refusing to answer 22 questions about his tangled finances. It also repeated his claim the questions were not relevant to the subcommittee's investigation of his alleged influence-for-favors relationship with Adams.

Goldfine also sent along in advance a friendly note to each congressman's administrative assistant thanking them in advance for slipping him the "true facts" letter "near the top of the pile on your boss' desk."

Oil Issues Produce Best Gains on List

New York—UPI—Stocks rallied today after two sessions of decline that followed a rise in market margins.

Oil issues produced the best gains as a group. Traders turned also to farm implements which were active and strong. Coppers came back after a fall on a cut in the custom smelter price of copper.

Railroads produced some substantial gains. Motors ruled steady to firm in active trading. Chemicals made an irregular rise.

Demand for the oils reflected what Wall Street said was an improved statistical position. Gains in the group ranged to three points in Amerasia and embraced all issues, including the international oils.
