Attitude of College Students Reflected in Choice of Clothes

The enthusiastic and serious attitude of today's college students is reflected in their choice of clothes, reports the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear.

Arriving on campus, almost every man is clad in a rugged tweed or Shetland sports jacket worn over a button-down shirt and with flannel slacks that may be part of a flannel suit (the approved choice for weekend dates and dress-up functions).

Unpacked first, on arrival, will be chino slacks or other neat knockabout trousers, perfect for the first informal meetings. With the chinos, the college man wears a white button-down oxford shirt, white bucks or tennis shoes, adding a Shetland crew-neck sweater for warmth.

A lightweight poplin raincoat, cut on classic balmacaan style, is worn over chinos, flannels and Shetland, rain or shine.

As a freshman he will probably have more of the informal togs—holding back on a more complete wardrobe until he is more certain of what he needs.

Not until his junior or senior years does style-individuality become noticeable—selecting more sophisticated subtly striped flannel suits, as well as soft finished worsteds in muted herringbone patterns.

Sports jackets and suits most in demand are the three-button, single-breasted models with natural shoulders, flap pockets and center vents.

Trousers and slacks are generally worn with plain, unpleated fronts. "Low rise" trouser models with or without back straps suit the typical youthful physique. In addition to flannels, in high favor are whipcords, coverts and the new worsted hopsackings.

Popular Shirt
Most popular shirt style is the oxford button-down collar style in white or light blue, stripes of blue, gray or brown on white backgrounds. Round pinned collars and tab collars are new style favorites.

Ties are in rich, not strong, colors, and subtle patterns prevail in foulards and wool challis. Knits and rep stripes are highly favored.

A student attending college in the country or small town will require a waist-length zipper jacket for everyday wear. Toggle coats rank high for stadium wear, for mountain locations and rough weather in New England.

The urban college student will most certainly require a top coat. One popular model is the raglan sleeve balmacaan in tweed or gabardine. Also popular is the single-breasted slightly fitted chesterfield model with fly front, in chevrot herringbone, plain twills and hopsack weaves.

Tyrolean Model
When hats are worn, the college man frequently chooses a rakish Tyrolean model, either in a rough finish or a luxurious velour. Another preferred model is the full English weight felt, with plain raw edge and simple center crease. With sports clothes, the cap is a must.

If you want to look like the man of the world that you're going to be when you complete your college education, you've got to have at least one college-going suit. So many young fellows wear sports jackets and slacks that they have forgotten what a suit really is. It's a two-piece outfit, usually with jacket and pants that match. It's used for business purposes, church, weddings, and other such occasions.

The most practical suit for college is probably the medium-to-dark wool flannel. It's good for all occasions! Something different, however—is one of the very-new dark tone chevrot suits. They're typically college yet have that relaxed "suburban look." And, of course, the same "Ivy" cut of your sports jacket is the proper cut for your suit coat!

Combinations This Fall Are 'Daring'
It's a season of color in fashion, the most brilliant in many years. Vivid tones take their cue from glowing autumnal landscapes, precious gems, stained glass, Scottish moors and sparkling wines.

The blazing palette of fall foliage is the biggest news. Rich russet shades, sumac reds, maple leaf golds, burnished oranges and forest greens appear alone or in combination.

"Daring" color combinations are, in fact, a leading feature of this colorful season. Expect to see orange and red, blue and green and other two- and three-color combinations.

Among the well-recommended colors are teal and other blue-greens, "hot pink" and purple, in a shade referred to as ultra-violet as well as winter violet and wild plum.

Reds, from clear and bright to gem-tone blue reds and wine shades; greens, from emerald to moss; blues in all hues and browns, ranging from rich coffee bean shades to greenish bronze, have great importance. Fashions in black benefit from the general trend to color, since they stand out with added drama against the many varied and vibrant hues.
