

Backstairs: Ike Forestalls Maneuver

BY DAYTON MOORE
United Press International
Washington — (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: President Eisenhower made double sure the Russians wouldn't steal his thunder at the U.N. General Assembly meeting on the Middle East. He decided to address the emergency session three days before it began—but held up any formal announcement until the eve of the meeting to forestall any possible Soviet maneuver to overshadow his appearance.

That was also the reason for waiting until just 30 minutes before the President spoke to distribute advance copies of his text. Normally, texts of the President's major speeches are given out hours in advance. Work on the President's speech actually began late last month when it appeared there would be a summit meeting of the U.N. Security Council on the Mideast crisis.

Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and their top aides at that time started drafting a peace program to present to such a meeting. C. D. Jackson, vice president of Time, Inc. was called in to head up a speech-writing team composed of White House and State Department Aides. He coordinated the work of getting down in words the peace plan ideas advanced by the President and Dulles.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev reversed himself by scuttling a summit meeting and calling for an emergency session of the General Assembly instead. It was not certain at first whether the U.S. peace plan would be presented to the General Assembly by the President or by Dulles. The President's first thought appeared to be to let Dulles present the proposal since heads of government would not normally attend special Assembly sessions. However, he changed his mind after urging of Congressmen of both major political parties and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Arriving home Wednesday morning was Miss Lillian (Ticky) Rawhouser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mason, who has been in Gardena, Calif., the past six weeks, also with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Carvso. Miss Claire Ladd is visiting her brother, Alden Ladd, in Eureka, Calif., while she is recovering from injuries sustained in a car accident in the Siskiyou last week. Also recovering from minor injuries is Mrs. Edward Brautlact of Klamath Falls, who was injured in a car accident south of Yreka last week. Mr. and Mrs. Brautlact are at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Brautlact.

Fire Damages St. Helens Dock

St. Helens — (UPI) — Fire swept the St. Helens city dock and a Columbia River Packers association fish receiving plant Sunday doing an estimated $30,000 damage. The blaze, which started in a fisherman's net rack shed, spread rapidly before a brisk north wind and destroyed two buildings, a car, two fishing boats, a sand bunker and several fish nets.

All available volunteer firefighters from St. Helens aided by a truck and crew from Scappoose and two tankers from the state department of forestry fought the fast-moving blaze. Firemen prevented the fire from spreading to the huge Pope and Talbot lumber mill, some 300 yards away from the blazing dock. Hundreds of thousands of board feet of lumber lay unprotected on the mill dock. Water was sprayed on the high stacks of lumber and on the roofs of mill buildings to prevent the spreading of the blaze. A serious explosion was averted by a quick-thinking police sergeant, Clyde Buddington, who broke open a building leased to Dahlgren Feed and Building Supplies company and aided by four other men, carried some 350 pounds of dynamite from the path of the flames.

Eugene Inventor Killed in Crash

Springfield — (UPI) — Robert M. Riley, 36, of Eugene, was fatally injured in a collision involving a Springfield city police patrol car in which he was riding and another auto early Sunday morning.

Riley, a nationally-known Eugene inventor, was working as a merchant patrolman at the time of the crash. Riley and Patrolman Rodney Brester were chasing a car at speeds of 75 to 80 miles per hour when a car coming from the opposite direction started a left turn in front of them.

The two cars collided, the police car flipping end over end and shearing off a power pole about 12 feet from the ground.

Riley was thrown from the wreckage. He was rushed to a Eugene hospital where he died about an hour later from head and chest injuries.

Driver of the other car, Gerald Keith Wilson of Eugene, was not injured. Police said the car being chased was not apprehended.

Patrolman Brester was taken to a Springfield hospital with minor injuries. Riley, the only licensed private detective in Lane county, was the inventor of a mechanical duck decoy that was in demand nation-wide.

Hollywood — (UPI) — Milo Frank left work late one day at MGM and, noticing a new drive-in telephone, decided to try out the new gadget as well as let his wife, actress Sally Forrest, know he'd be late for dinner.

He won't do it again—at least not with the car radio going. Miss Forrest said it might have been the car radio but that it sounded like a juke box at the corner bar.
