

'Bathyscaph' Latest In Underwater Craft

San Diego — (UPI) — The Navy's newest vessel, a strange-looking diving craft known as a "bathyscaph," arrived in San Diego harbor yesterday for re-assembly.

Having little in common with the conventional "submarine," the bathyscaph has been termed the Navy's version of a space vehicle. It is specifically designed to explore the unexplored depths of the ocean.

The Italian-made craft, dubbed the "Trieste" after the name of the town where it was manufactured, was purchased recently by the Navy from Swiss scientists for use in oceanographic studies off the coast of Southern California.

Can Descend Three Miles

Although it will be used at first for basic scientific research involving acoustical and biological investigations of the Pacific waters in this area, the bathyscaph potentially is capable of diving to depths of more than three miles below the surface and some scientists have described it as the logical forerunner of future deep-diving submarines.

Long range objectives of the vessel call for exploring ocean environment at great depths and to evaluate the bathyscaph's potentialities as both a research tool and a deep-diving submarine rescue vessel.

Two-Man Crew

The blimp-shaped vessel carries a two-man crew in a spherical gondola beneath its main tanks which carry 28,000 gallons of high-octane aviation gasoline—30 per cent lighter than water, giving it its buoyancy.

The ship carries 10 tons of iron pellets for ballast to help control its descent and ascent. Dives are accomplished by bringing water into the tanks, thus compressing the gasoline and reducing buoyancy, while the iron pellets are released at the rate of a ton for each 3,000 feet of depth. In other words, it is the underwater equivalent of a lighter-than-air craft, much like a blimp, operating in reverse.

Capable of remaining submerged for a period of 48 hours, the bathyscaph is equipped with two small windows for wide-angle viewing, a camera with electronic flash, floodlights, an echo-sounder, telephone and numerous instruments and controls for research equipments and operation. It may be propelled horizontally by electric battery-powered motors and two propellers.

Unemployment Roll Reduced

Washington — (UPI) — The Labor Department's weekly unemployment compensation report yesterday contained further evidence the nation was emerging from recession.

The number of persons receiving unemployment benefits, the department reported, dropped by 58,800 in the week ending Aug. 9. The total persons receiving the benefits now stands at 2,282,300—a nine-month low.

Even more important, the number of initial claims for benefits dropped by 36,100 to 228,800 in the week ending Aug. 16—the lowest since Nov., 1957.

Forty states reported declines in the number of persons receiving unemployment checks. The department attributed the drop to exhaustion of benefits, expansion in seasonal industries and reopening of plants closed for vacations.

The benefit rolls have been dropping steadily—except for a two-week seasonal upturn in July—since hitting a peak of 3,363,300 in April.

Anastasia Mansion May Contain Loot

Hackensack, N.J. — (UPI) — The mansion of slain underworld leader Albert Anastasia near here goes on the auction block Monday and the new owner may have to take steps to keep out treasure hunters.

A spokesman for the Bergen County sheriff's office said "plenty of people" believe a fortune in rackets loot may be stashed away somewhere in the $100,000 white Spanish-style dwelling.

State Justices Attack High Court

Los Angeles — (UPI) — The Chief Justices from the 48 states and the U. S. Territories yesterday overwhelmingly approved a controversial resolution criticizing the U. S. Supreme Court.

The resolution approved a 31-page report drafted by a committee of 10 state justices which questions recent decisions of the Supreme Court allegedly invading states' rights.

The approval came on a roll call vote of 36-5.

Chief Justice Charles A. Jones, Pennsylvania, made a lengthy speech against the resolution, declaring it was nothing but a "smokescreen" for "persons who do not like the federal decisions on integration." Other justices present denied this.

There were two abstentions when the vote was called—Chief Justice Milton B. Badt, Nevada, and Chief Justice Gudmundur Grimson, North Dakota. Three other chief justices were absent and did not vote.

Mrs. Neuberger Praises Papers

Eugen — (UPI) — Mrs. Maurine Neuberger, wife of the Oregon senator, is a speech to the Western High School Press Institute here Friday night, termed Oregon's newspapers "enlightened and responsible."

Mrs. Neuberger, a former teacher and three-term member of the Oregon state legislature, said the state was "fortunate" to have newspapers which try to inform the public accurately concerning complex issues of public policy.

Substituting for her husband, Sen. Richard Neuberger, who was detained by the prolonged session of Congress in Washington, she spoke at the press institute banquet sponsored by the University of Oregon School of Journalism.

She said that newspaper handling of news and editorial comment was important to elected officials in Washington, and "particularly important with respect to controversial issues of the type which lend themselves to even demagoguery."

Mrs. Neuberger said issues in this category pertinent to

Oregon might be those affecting the national forests, power sites, highways, postal rates and pay, and others.

She said that issues that could be exploited to stir fear, hate, resentment or minorities of foreigners are a "real test for representative government."
