SMILING NEWLYWEDS Bill Moss, a Texas oil man, and Ann Miller, singer-dancer, leave the church in La Jolla after their wedding was solemnized last Friday night.

Reduced Payrolls Seen If Freight Rates Continue High

If southern Oregon lumbermen have to continue to pay a lumber freight rate higher than that paid by northern California lumber shippers, production and payrolls in this area will be greatly reduced, according to a local mill executive.

In 1956 Oregon lumbermen shipping into California were paying approximately $135 per car more than were California lumbermen shipping within the state. "This resulted in more than a million dollar loss, absorbed by mills in Oregon," Russell Hogue, vice-president and general sales manager for Medford Corporation said Monday.

Hogue was discussing past and current developments in rail rates on lumber at the weekly Jackson County Chamber of Commerce roundtable luncheon at the Jackson hotel.

Disparity in Rates

There has been a disparity in rates paid by southern Oregon lumbermen and northern California lumbermen shipping to southern California since 1952, the speaker noted. The problem, he said, is that the Interstate Commerce Commission sets freight rates for interstate shipping and generally the state Public Utilities Commission sets intrastate freight rates.

In 1952 the Southern Pacific railroad reduced its rates to northern California lumber shippers by 9 per cent. Subsequently, from 1954 to 1957 the Interstate Commerce Commission approved three general rate increases dealing with shipping between Oregon and California.

Hogue said that following the one million dollar plus loss in 1956 Oregon lumbermen absorbed a $744,000 loss in 1957. The reduction in loss was attributed to lower production.

Current Hearings

The current Interstate Commerce hearings in San Francisco and Portland in which the Southern Pacific railroad is attempting to get a freight reduction resulted from an agreement between the railroad and Oregon lumbermen in late 1956, Hogue said.

The Southern Pacific has requested the rate reduction so it can compete with other lumber shippers, he noted. However, the northern California lumbermen are fighting the reduction because they don't want to let go of the "bonanza dropped in their laps."

Results of the hearings will have a "tremendous effect in this area as far as winter employment is concerned," Hogue predicted. If the reduction is approved it will reduce shipping costs to southern Oregon lumbermen by $240 per car and will save them more than two million dollars per year.

Next Roundtable

The next roundtable luncheon will be Monday, Sept. 8, at which time Frank Van Dyke, local attorney and head of the chamber of commerce public affairs division, will discuss the chamber's business-education day.

B-E day is scheduled for Sept. 11 and is designed to acquaint teachers and local businessmen with the problems each is confronted with. On Sept. 11 about 260 Medford teachers will visit various offices, shops, and plants in the area to learn the problems of the businessmen. In November the businessmen are to visit the schools to note the problems involved in running a school.

Chamber Manager Don McNeil said that the organization plans to make the visits a yearly affair as another program for bringing the community closer together.

Republicans Must Oppose Johnson in November Elections

By RAYMOND LAHR
UPI Correspondent

Washington—(UPI)—The GOP must run this fall against Lyndon B. Johnson, even though its campaigners may sound like they are running against Harry Truman, Walter Reuther or Orval Faubus.

As Democratic leader of the Senate, Johnson has done more than any other individual to write the record of his party during the first 19 months of the Eisenhower administration.

To his critics, he is a slick operator, a southern New Dealer too free with the taxpayers' money, or an unprincipled compromiser too willing to go along with fellow Democrats from the South.

To his admirers, he is a peerless strategist, a worker of legislative miracles, or even the greatest congressional leader in the history of the Republic.

Master Strategist

His success in developing a program on which most Senate Democrats could unite has convinced some of them that is the best thing that has happened to the Democratic party since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It was Johnson who rode into town after sputnik last fall to flick a whip at the administration in the race for control of space. It was Johnson who seized the initiative last winter to turn congressional attention to the business recession and to mould a program of the type he thought was needed to deal with it.

And it was Johnson who led the Senate to an almost unanimous vote for a labor reform bill which the labor movement could swallow, but which died in the House. Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.) wrote the bill but Johnson got it passed.

His footwork on the labor bill was similar to that he displayed last year in getting the Senate to pass a Civil Rights bill for the first time since the reconstruction era.

The Johnson legislative program also has been tailored to provide help for Democrats running for Congress this fall. In mid-term elections when the White House is not at stake, state and regional issues have more impact than national issues on the results.

Little Partisanship

While developing a program that he thought was good for Democrats, he refrained from partisan shots at the Republican administration, particularly on foreign policy or defense issues. When he was elected to the leadership job six years ago, he repudiated the doctrine of the late senate GOP leader Robert A. Taft that the business of the opposition party is to oppose.

Teamed with his fellow Texan, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Johnson led Congressional Democrats in making a record which enabled them to regain control of Congress in 1954. They retained control in the 1956 elections in the face of President Eisenhower's landslide reelection and expect to enlarge their slender majorities next Nov. 4.

As a dominant figure in his party, Johnson is viewed as a possible contender for the Presidency. But, as Taft learned, political parties do not often turn to their party symbols in Congress for presidential nominees.

Medford Youth III In Paris Hospital

Walter H. Knight, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Knight, 452 Fairmont st. Medford, is reported seriously ill with typhoid fever in Paris, France.

The patient was attending school in Paris during the past year under an exchange program with Lewis and Clark college, Portland, where he was a student in 1956-57. Knight was graduated from Medford High school in 1956.

Persons wishing to write him should address letters to American Hospital, Room 43, Paris, France.

Ex-Medford Woman Dies in Eugene

Mrs. Corabelle Goodman, formerly of Medford, died at her home in Eugene Sunday. Mrs. Goodman and her husband, Duane, had lived in Medford for many years before they moved to Euegne last summer.

Mrs. Goodman is survived by her husband, and a son, Richard, who is stationed in Boston, Mass., with the Army.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. in the Pool-Larson chapel, Eugene.

Hearings Scheduled On Wilderness Bill

Washington—(UPI)—Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D.-Ore.) announced today that a special Senate interior subcommittee will hold hearings on a wilderness area preservation bill at Bend, Ore., on Nov. 7, at San Francisco on Nov. 10, and at Salt Lake City on Nov. 12.

Under the bill, introduced by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D.-Minn.) and co-sponsored by Neuberger, existing wilderness areas would be given permanent status. It also would provide procedures for establishing similar regions in national forest areas in the future.

Prowlers Lassoed By City Policemen

Three city policemen lassoed a pair of prowlers early Sunday morning in the alley behind the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, 145 North Bartlett st., it was reported today.

The prowlers, according to the police report, had been "snooping around the area." They were escorted to city jail. Their names were not given — the prowlers were goats.
