

Ask Large Area For Timber Rating

Salem—(UPI)—The depletion rate factor in timber evaluation should be based on the entire Douglas fir area in Oregon or on large regions encompassing several counties, rather than on the county-wide basis now used, the State Tax Commission was told here Friday by a spokesman for Georgia-Pacific Corporation. The company holds extensive timber stands in Coos county.

The recommendation was made by attorney Norman J. Weiner who said that county-wide averages, whether for the figuring of a depletion rate or any other valuation factor, cannot be justified.

The testimony was given during the 21st day of the Commission's public hearings on the timber taxation problems in Coos, Benton, Douglas and Lane counties.

The Georgia-Pacific testimony varied sharply from that of several other timber operators. Some of them supported the county unit system, while others advocated much smaller "operating areas" based on watersheds.

Willamette River Called Dangerous

Oregon City—(UPI)—Clackamas County Sanitarian John Borden Friday declared that the Willamette river is "dangerous" for swimmers because of pollution.

Borden said samples of Willamette river water taken in Clackamas county disclosed a bacteria count so high as to make the water unfit for swimming. He said samples taken from the Clackamas and Molalla rivers indicated those streams were safe for swimmers.

Borden said that without the release of reservoir water in the upper reaches of the Willamette, marine life would be in danger of extinction because of the low percentage of dissolved oxygen due to industrial and domestic pollution.

Non-High Students Asked to Apply

Jackson county parents have been reminded by county school officials that children living in non-high school districts should apply for eligibility certification for attending high school in another district.

Officials said that application is made through the school clerk in the district in which the pupil resides. The original application must be signed by a parent or guardian. Students who were certified last year do not need the school district clerk's signature, but they do need to file a renewal application to show that their residence is the same as that of last year.

Information blanks may be obtained from the county school superintendent's office in the courthouse if the school district clerk does not have them.

Application should be made before school opening to prevent delay in registering, officials said. Registration in most high schools starts early next month.

BUSINESS MANAGER—Jacquelyn W. Myers, business manager of the Medford Health club, is shown at her desk at the club's building, 3 West Sixth st., Medford. The club plans a formal opening Oct. 15, according to Gary Washburn, president of Health-All, Inc., the corporation organizing five such clubs in Oregon, California and Idaho. (Knackstedt photo).

Remodeling Planned By Medford Health Club; Opening Set

Remodeling of the former Acme Hardware company site at 3 West Sixth st., Medford, is expected to start this week in preparation for equipment for the Medford Health club, which will officially open in the building Oct. 15.

Gary Washburn, president of Health-All, Inc., Eugene, said the interior of the building will be completely remodeled to handle equipment and facilities of the club.

The club is one of five planned by the corporation.

Others will be at Klamath Falls, Roseburg, Eureka, Calif., and in Idaho. Plans for the latter three clubs are in the preliminary stages, Washburn said.

Reduce, Relax

Members of the health club will be able to reduce or relax at the club. It will offer steam baths, steam cabinets, massages, an all-year sun-tan room and gymnasium equipment.

Reducing programs will be offered for both male and female members of the club, Washburn said. The woman's program will be in two sections, one for "spot" reductions, and the other for general weight reduction.

Washburn said physical therapy will be offered, but only on a physician's recommendation. The therapy sessions will be available to non-club members as well as club members, he said.

Health-All, Inc., was organized and incorporated by Washburn and Eugene Attorney George Landford, who is secretary. Jacquelyn W. Myers will be business manager of the Medford Health club.

Reports of Threats Denied By Union

Portland—(UPI)—Officials of the United Steelworkers of America, Local 2070, said here Friday an investigation had failed to confirm reports of threats of violence against employees of the American Can company plant who had failed to participate in a recent wildcat strike.

Several employees had told police they received threats of violence for continuing to work during the three-day walkout and one man was treated for injuries he said were inflicted by a striker.

Ken Thorstad, president of the union local, said "We are just as interested in checking these accusations and in prosecuting the responsible parties as anyone else. We think these charges are anti-labor propaganda made from some other source."

Burglary Reported To Law Agencies

A burglary and an attempted burglary in the Rogue River area were being investigated Saturday by Sheriff's deputies, state police and the Rogue River police department.

Thieves broke into Earnie's Builders Supply at Rogue River some time between 5 p.m., Friday, and 8 a.m., Saturday, officers said.

Stolen were two electric hand-saws, a manual hand-saw, claw hammer, several gallons and quarts of paint, some paint brushes and 50 pennies, officers said.

Thieves entered through an unlocked side window, sheriff's officers said.

Thieves attempted to burglarize the R and M Hardware store in Rogue River, but failed to pry a window up far enough to enter, sheriff's deputies said.

Signs of Recovery Seen in Portland

The suit accused the newspaper of maliciously publishing oral testimony given by Langley in a series of depositions taken in connection with the original suit against the "Oregonian."
