HORN BROOK College Plans Discussed

By KATHERINE CHAPMAN of the society. Hornbrook - The proposed Siskiyou County Junior college was the subject of a special meeting held Wednesday evening at the Grange hall. Harry Beck of Mt. Shasta, administrative assistant of the college board, explained the aim and purpose of the Junior college system in the state, and pointed out the reasons for the need of such a school in Siskiyou county. Using a painting of the artist's conception of the proposed college, he described the physical plant. As planned now, the college will be built for an initial enrollment of 500 students, but will accommodate up to twice that number without further addition to the plant. It is to be located on a plot of ground west of the south end of Weed, off the old county road. He explained that a school bond in California can be floated only for an amount not to exceed $2,500,000. The estimated cost of the proposed college is about $2,234,000. Tax cost to the public will amount to 39 cents per $100 assessed value of property for the first year, and as the bonds are retired the tax will decrease. Prior to assuming his present position, Beck was principal of the Butte Valley High school at Dorris, Calif., for 17 years. A disappointingly small group attended the meeting. A special bond election for the financing of the junior college has been called for Sept. 16. At the close of the meeting on the junior college, a discussion was held concerning the naming of streets in Hornbrook, but no conclusions were reached, and the subject was tabled for future consideration. Recent guests at the home to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Watt Jr. were her sister-in-law, Mrs. James E. Shelton and daughter, Dorian, of Kennewick, Wash., Mrs. Hope Meyers of Portland, who was en route to Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Swanson of Turlock, Calif. Mrs. Swanson and Mrs. Watt grew up together and attended school in Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robertson of Sacramento arrived in Medford by plane Friday and were met at the airport by Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin. That evening the group had dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rukovina and daughter, Cynthia, at the Plaza apartments in Medford. On Sunday the Robertsons and the Rukovinas were dinner guests at the Griffin home in Hornbrook. Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Rukovina are sisters, and Mrs. Griffin is their mother. Sgt. and Mrs. E. T. Beck of Red Bluff, Calif., spent the week end here visiting her brother-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Ike Dooley and three sons. Beck is the Air Force recruiting officer for northern California. New residents in Hornbrook are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leoni, who moved here recently from Oxnard, Calif. Leoni is a retired Navy man, and he and his wife have been hunting-season visitors here for a number of years at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Breceda. Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin attended the Herb society picnic Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Able on Hillcrest rd. in Medford. Mrs. Griffin is a charter member

County 4-H'ers Receive Awards

Several Jackson county 4-H club members have received ribbons for exhibits at the Oregon State fair in Salem. Charla Jo Meyer of Central Point received a blue ribbon for her main dish meals exhibit; and July Frink, Central Point, received a red ribbon for her easy meal in Class C. Carol Foote, Central Point, Joyce Gunther, Ashland, and Rose Marie Trauman of Jackson county received red ribbons for exhibition in easy meals, Class A. Susan Wright of Medford won a blue ribbon for her Class E overnights in outdoor cooking exhibit. Ruth Ellis of Central Point and Maryeda Frost, Rogue River, received blue ribbons for exhibits in class I of the frozen foods exhibit, and Marlena Coffman of Central Point received a red ribbon or her exhibit in class II of frozen foods. When making frozen pop-sicles for youngsters, use fruit cocktail straight from the can. The children will love the gay polka-dot color and five-fruit flavor. Golden canned cling peaches and blueberries make a memorable flavor combination. Arrange cling peach halves in individual serving dishes and spoon sweetened blueberries over them. Serve with thick cream.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors. Bennett K. - I want to be a philosopher. Mr. L. K. - We won't support him in that. Bennett K. - I am 18 and planning to enter college in the fall. My parents have always wanted me to be an engineer and I always went along with them on it - until recently. After reading several books on the subject I became very interested in philosophy. I think it is unusual for a boy of my age with no training to be able to understand as much about these books as I feel I do. I would like to be a philosopher, but if I can't I would like to teach the subject. The school program is entirely different for prospective engineers than it is for the regular liberal arts students, so I must make my choice and stick to it. My parents say they don't want even to help me through college if I major in philosophy. Mr. L. K. - We don't know how Ben got this crazy notion into his head, but we're pretty sure it will go the way of all crazy notions if he just gives it time. The trouble is that he may realize too late how foolish he has been. We have given Ben a lot of advantages only by sacrificing our own interests. Naturally, we aren't looking for any return. All we want is that he do the best thing in his own interest. We want him to be able to make a decent living. He isn't the kind of guy who likes to walk around in baggy pants spouting philosophy. He likes good clothes, new cars and lots of money in his pocket when he goes out on a date. If Ben wants to be a philosopher, I say go ahead - start now, but don't expect help. The Council: Mr. L. K. is far too rigid in what he feels is his concern for Ben's best interest. Ben's "notion" may or may not be a crazy one. It is impossible to tell at this stage. If he is discouraged before he has put the idea to any sort of test, Ben will not be able to enter any of his studies with the necessary enthusiasm. The fact that up until now Ben has shown a keen interest in clothes, cars and money in his wallet is no indication that he wouldn't later enjoy life best in baggy pants. He might even find a way of wearing good clothes and being a philosopher at the same time - if this is what he really wants. Young people do need guidance and sometimes direction in choosing careers, but insistence is neither guidance nor direction. Mr. L. K. should try to enter into Ben's way of looking at things if he wants to be of real help. A flat no closes the subject instead of opening it. Most colleges give their students a year or two before making a definite choice of a major. Ben should avail himself of this opportunity. He should take some courses that lead to the engineering degree and some in the philosophy department, and try to give both studies his full interest. It is quite possible that his teachers will help him arrive at a decision by giving him some encouragement or words of warning about his potential abilities. Even if he loses a year or so by experimenting with his program, it will be worthwhile for Ben to find what he really wants and to enter that field wholeheartedly. OFF-BEAT SANDWICH

Scoop out the soft centers of hamburger buns and stuff with the following filling: 1 cup finely chopped corned beef, 1 cup grated American cheese, 1/4 cup minced scallion and 1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper. Use Mayonnaise or sour cream to bind the ingredients together and season with salt and pepper. Fill the buns and wrap individually in wax paper or foil. Heat for about 20 minutes in 325 degree oven. Serve the sandwiches piping hot with potato chips and a crisp salad. Yield: 8 sandwiches, P.S. The buns may be frozen. Add an extra 10 minutes to the heating time.

PICNIC TREAT

New York—Serve potato salad with a creamy dressing for your next picnic supper. Combine 4 cups of cubed, cold boiled potatoes with 1 small onion, chopped, 2 tablespoons of chopped parsley, 1 cup of chopped celery, and 1 teaspoon of salt. For delectable and light French fried onion rings, plan to soak onion rings in milk for a hour or two before frying. The Medford public library has current magazines and newspapers which will help you keep informed.
