

Bashaw Ruled Candidate for District Judge

MISS B. J. LARSEN Came Here in 1952

Medford City Attorney E. Roy Bashaw is the legal candidate for Jackson county district judge, it was ruled today. Circuit Judge Edward Kelly this noon declared Robert G. Danielson ineligible, and filed an order directing Bashaw's name be placed on the general election ballot. Kelly said at noon he has adopted the opinion of Val D. Sloper, Marion county circuit judge, who ruled Thursday in a declaratory judgment case that Danielson is ineligible. Kelly gave his opinion on the case heard earlier stating that the case he heard is a contest case and statute provides the court may order the next highest candidate's name be placed on the ballot. Time Element Considering the objection that action contesting the nomination was not filed on time, Kelly said the time element did not begin until the attorney general's opinion was received. There was no point in the contest until Danielson changed his position from declaring himself out of the race to accepting the nomination, he said. Judge Kelly ruled on the Richard House vs. Danielson case in which House contested the nomination of Danielson as district court judge. Judge Sloper declined to name Bashaw as the legally nominated candidate for judge. The judge disclaimed authority to do so because of the nature of the action, one seeking a declaratory judgment. Danielson is not eligible because he "was not a resident of the county on the date of the election or immediately prior to it," Judge Sloper declared. Declaration Sought The case before the judge was one in which Bashaw was asking the court to declare Danielson ineligible and then name him, Bashaw, the legal candidate as the second largest number of votes. Danielson received 7,537 votes in the May primary and Bashaw received 7,308. Attorneys James A. Redden Jr. and Hugh B. Collins produced three witnesses as they presented the case of Bashaw. First on the stand was Bashaw himself, who appeared solely for the purpose of establishing his eligibility for the district judgeship. The second witness was County Clerk Bereth Hopkins who testified that she issued a certificate of nomination to Danielson after receiving an opinion from the attorney general. He ruled that the duties of a county clerk are administrative only, and a certificate of nomination must be issued to the person receiving the most votes. Final Witness Danielson was the final witness called by Redden. It was established that he moved to the county about Feb. 1, 1958, and that subsequent to that he held for the position of district judge. He steadfastly maintained that he had not moved from the county although it was brought out that he took a position with the district attorney's office in Klamath county on April 1; he closed out his bank accounts in Ashland and opened a new account in Klamath Falls; and he purchased a home in Klamath Falls about May 1. Danielson testified that he remained with the district attorney's office until May 15 and then went into private practice with a Klamath county attorney. He said he commuted between Klamath Falls and Ashland on week ends. Introduced as evidence in the case by Redden was a copy of a letter written by Danielson to the secretary of state's office. In the letter Danielson requested that his name be withdrawn from the voters' pamphlet and that his filing fee be returned because he was moving from the county and would not be eligible for the nomination. Election Laws In explaining this letter Thursday, Danielson said he had not examined the state election laws when the letter was written, but he had believed that actual physical presence in the county was necessary for eligibility. Since that time, he continued, he

Striking White Students Achieve Goal in Arkansas

Van Buren, Ark. (UPI)—White students striking against integration at Van Buren High school apparently achieved their objective today. Not a Negro was seen entering school before classes started. About a dozen girls joined 45 to 50 white boys in the strike today. The boys struck Thursday in an effort to drive 13 Negroes out of the high school. Only three Negroes—two girls and a boy—showed up Thursday. The strikers burned one effigy of a Negro Thursday night on the campus and tried to burn another. They hung one on the flag pole, but before they could set it on fire, a civilian guard drove them away. They hauled another effigy out of the trunk of an automobile and set it on fire. A civilian guard on top of the school building shouted at them and threatened to shoot. Gov. Orval E. Faubus indicated the Van Buren flare-up may cause him to sign anti-integration bills passed by the Legislature's special session last week earlier than he had expected. Three white students at Van Buren telegraphed the governor Thursday, asking him to prevent integration at the school. The bills the governor mentioned will permit him to close any school where he thinks integration is causing strife. Several parents of striking students held a closed meeting in a Van Buren cafe Thursday night but had "no comment" to newsmen's queries. Many of the students in the mob said they had their parents' support, but one woman drove past the school, looked at the boys, and quietly said to a reporter, "I'm ashamed to say that I have a son in that group." Despite the white students' protest, two Negro girls and a Negro boy attended school Thursday.

High Tides, Waves Expected on Coast

New Orleans (UPI)—Anxious coastal residents of Texas and Louisiana fled inland today from tropical storm Ella, still 400 miles south of Corpus Christi, Tex. The storm, its winds still below hurricane strength, was being watched carefully by hurricane experts and coastal interests were cautioned to be ready to move at a moment's notice. New Squally Area The Miami Weather Bureau, meanwhile, reported a new suspicious squally area has formed in the Atlantic about 200 miles east of the Windward Islands. A weather plane was sent into the area, at the entrance of the Caribbean just north of South America. A new storm would bear the name of Fifi. Ella threw fears into the hearts of Cameron, La., residents who lived through hurricane Audrey last year. That hurricane killed more than 500 in the Cameron area. Cameron Residents Flee Approximately 75 per cent of the 3,500 residents of Cameron already had evacuated their homes. The Coast Guard station at Port Aransas said the evacuation of between 1,000 and 1,200 persons was under way there today. The Corpus Christi Weather Bureau said a four-foot tide would put all of Port Aransas, located on the upper tip of Mustang Island, under water. The Corpus Christi Naval Air Station began flying all its planes out at 7 a.m. today. Tides Above Normal Tides four to six feet above normal were expected along the Central Texas coast. Forecasters said tides up to four feet could be expected at other coastal sections from Western Louisiana to Brownsville. Small craft were warned to stay off the choppy waters from Brownsville to New Orleans. Gusty winds were whipping up waves six to eight feet high in some areas. Rain squalls also lashed most sections of the coast.

Ike Urged To Consult Congress On Quemoy Moves

Washington (UPI)—Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said after a conference with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today that the United States has "definitely" decided to help defend Nationalist Chinese-held Quemoy and Matsu islands against any Red Chinese invasion. Washington (UPI)—Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) urged today that President Eisenhower consult Congress through his leaders before being "carried away" in a decision to defend the off-shore China islands of Quemoy and Matsu. The assistant United States Democratic leader told United Press International that defense of the Nationalist-held islands would be a matter of "face-saving, prestige and psychology" rather than military importance. Far East Expert Mansfield is considered one of the Senate Democrats' outstanding spokesmen on Far East affairs. His comments came in the wake of Thursday's meeting at Newport, R.I., between Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. After that conference Dulles issued a formal statement warning that Eisenhower "would not hesitate" to use American force if needed to safeguard Formosa from the Reds. The statement said that Quemoy and Matsu were "increasingly become related" to the defense of Formosa. Warning to China A high official explained at a briefing at Newport following the Dulles statement that Chinese Red airfields and bases on the mainland might be hit by U.S. bombers if the President ordered American forces into action. He emphasized, however, that no decision to intervene would be made as long as Nationalist forces on the off-shore islands proved capable of repulsing any Red invasion attempts.

Administrator at Hospital Submits Her Resignation

Miss B. J. Larsen has announced her resignation as administrator of Rogue Valley Memorial hospital. Her resignation was accepted by the hospital's board of directors and will be effective Oct. 31, unless a successor is named earlier, according to L. O. Boomer, secretary of the board. She has said she plans to be married in the near future. Miss Larsen, who came to Medford in 1952 as administrator at the old hospital on East Main st., was responsible for much of the work involved in moving to the new plant on East Barnett rd. May 1. She expressed her gratitude yesterday for the "loyalty and cooperation" of the hospital staff. "We've felt like a hospital family," she said. Miss Larsen came to this country from Norway in 1925, when she was 7 years old. She majored in hospital administration at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., and worked as credit manager at Augustana hospital in Chicago. "We hate to lose her," Boomer said yesterday. "We are very appreciative of all her services to the hospital, and have accepted her resignation with regret." He said no successor had been decided on as yet.

Communist Bloc To Support China, Izvestia Asserts

Moscow (UPI)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said today the entire Communist bloc including Russia would rush to the support of Communist China if war develops in the Far East. Izvestia and the Communist Party organ Pravda said Russia would aid Peiping with all possible means "just as if its own fate were being decided." Pravda accused the United States of planning aggression against the Chinese mainland and said Russia "cannot remain inactive." It was the second warning to appear in Pravda this week and it came after diplomatic sources said Premier Nikita Khrushchev had cut short his Crimean vacation to return to Moscow and take care of "urgent matters." Pravda said the United States had assigned Formosa the role of main base in "its aggressive plans" against the mainland and earmarked Quemoy and other off-shore islands as the "springboard for attack against the Chinese peoples republic." Pravda said the Chinese Communists are strong enough to counter any aggression and are backed by "all the Asian, African, Latin American and European peoples." It said Russia would give the Chinese Communists "every kind of aid and cradle the adventurous war provocateurs who have grown insolent and rash."

29,000 Persons See Shakespearean Plays

Ashland—The Oregon Shakespearean Festival closed a six-week run of nightly performances here last night. More than 29,000 persons witnessed this year's four plays, as compared to 24,000 in 1957. Except for two nights, there was good weather throughout the 39-night run. On one evening, rain delayed show time and on another evening forced postponement of the play until the following afternoon. "The Merchant of Venice," directed by James Sandoe, took top attendance honors with more than 9,000 attending 10 performances. On Saturday, Aug. 23, "Merchant" set an all time high for single audiences, attracting 1,245. Popular Play Second in popularity was "Much Ado About Nothing" directed by Robert Loper, which played to more than 8,000. Loper's staging of "King Lear" was performed before more than 7,000, and Sandoe's "Troilus and Cressida," the play by which the Festival completed its staging of the entire Shakespearean canon, was viewed by 4,000. Producing Director Angus L. Bowmer has announced the plays and directors for the theater's 1959 season. James Sandoe will be on leave next season, but Robert Loper will return to direct "King John" and "Twelfth Night." Allen Fletcher, who has directed

MacLaren's Policy On Leaves Won't Change--Reed

The statewide policy of MacLaren training school for boys on week end and extended home visits will not be changed for some time, according to Amos Reed, school superintendent. "It is not the policy which is in error," Reed stated at Woodburn this morning. "Merely a misunderstanding arose," he explained during a telephone conversation. Reed was on vacation from the school when Jackson county juvenile authorities charged Aug. 27 that boys from the Woodburn school were being shoved into this community long before they are ready for parole. This is being done through extended home visits, officials here said. Policy Will Continue "Our policy will continue on granting extended home leaves only in case of an emergency and when the juvenile court approves it," Reed said. Reed said the misunderstanding arose when he and Juvenile Court Judge Edward Kelly were not fully informed. "I would have wished he would have called this to our attention first," he said. "Then we could have taken immediate action. I have the utmost respect for Judge Kelly." Reed said there were a few months when there had been inadequate parole coverage and 3 1/2 months when no parole coverage was available since the school's field representative had left his job. Present field representative, Ed Daley, has been on the job for only a month, he added. There have been times when juvenile court judges have asked extended leaves be granted, Reed said. Some of the judges have refused to accept the youth back into the community until they visited home for a month, Reed stated. Judge Kelly said this morning five different boys had been granted extended visits in this community during the last two or three months without notice being given to officials here. Of the five, three boys got into trouble and two of these were recommitted to MacLaren, the judge said. One boy was turned over to district court. "This practice is not fair to the youngsters," Judge Kelly said. "It is not my policy to embarrass Reed."

Park Commission Formed by City

A municipal park and recreation commission was created by unanimous approval of the Medford city council at its meeting last night at city hall. Mayor John W. Snider said after the meeting that he hopes to announce appointments to the commission in the near future. The nine members are scheduled to take office Oct. 1. The council also placed a first item of business on the new commission's agenda: consideration of how to dispose of three excess lots owned by the city in the Laurhurst addition. City Manager Robert A. Duff had previously recommended that the lots be sold. The commission's primary function is to make recommendations regarding the general supervision and control of all parks and recreational facilities and programs of the city. It is also empowered to advise the mayor and council regarding establishment of a park and recreation department, and regarding employment of personnel for such a department. The sum of $5,000 earmarked for "development of recreation" was included in the city's 1958-59 budget as a transfer from the general fund.

Council Decides Against Approval Of Yard Permit

The city council last night officially informed Ray Forbes, owner of Speedway Auto Parts, 1395 Hilton rd., that it intended to disapprove his application for a 1959 wrecking yard license. The council also turned down a request that Dr. Florian J. Shasky's property on the southwest corner of East Main and Cottage sts. be rezoned from multiple family to commercial to accommodate the establishment of a service station. Immediately after voting on the Speedway matter, the council decided to refer a determination as to whether wrecking yards should be permitted anywhere in the city to the planning commission. Present Zoning The present zoning ordinance prohibits them. Speedway Auto Parts entered the city via the annexation of Grandview. Speedway came to the attention of the council by a petition signed by more than 100 residents objecting to its existence on grounds of unsightliness, bad odors and its effect on local property values. Councilman Robert Van Sickle said he opposed discrimination against Speedway if the city's ban against all wrecking yards were not to be similarly enforced against others. He and Councilman Paul Meyers voted against the council's decision on Speedway. Councilman Donald Hansen stated he thought wrecking yards might have a legitimate place in Medford, possibly in heavy industrial zones. He sponsored both the motion on Speedway and the one referring the general determination to the planning commission. "If we approve Forbes' license application," Hansen said, "we are in effect authorizing a non-conforming use in a residential area." A wrecking yard license is actually issued by the state, but the application must be approved by the city in which the yard is located. Hansen pointed out that since the affirmative act of approval was required, the situation of wrecking yards was different from other non-conforming uses, which can exist but are restrained from further development.
