Buried Treasure

by Pinkney Gage

An Early Colt Is Valuable Property

The wounded stagecoach driver went for his pocket as Black Bart lined up the passengers on the TV screen. There was a close-up of the driver's hand clutching a stub-nosed gun. That was a 31 caliber colt, one of the youngsters said.

There was a lively controversy over how the ten-year-old could know not only the caliber of the gun and its make, but that it was a five-shooter instead of a six.

The answer was that one of his playmates had one and it was down in the basement where they had been playing that afternoon. He went down and brought it up.

Sure enough, it was a 1849 Colt pocket revolver with a three-inch, octagonal barrel. The cylinder was fouled with dust and grime. So was the barrel, and one of the ivory grips was broken off. Nonetheless, one could still read the legend "Address Col Saml Colt New York, U. S." After the revolver had been worked on by a gunsmith who cleaned it thoroughly and restored the missing grip, it was good enough to sell readily for $150. In good working order it would have been worth twice as much.

All of which is by way of saying that any early Colt, just so long as it is recognizable as such, is a valuable piece of property.

LITTLE GLASS HAT EXPENSIVE TO USE AS ASHTRAY

Paul rang for his secretary and asked what had happened to the ashtray on his desk. She didn't know. It had been there a half an hour before and no one else had been in his office except his wife who had left shortly before I arrived.

When we reached Paul's home a couple of hours later, the missing ashtray was there. The little piece Paul had been using was a glass hat. It stood about three or four inches high. Why was she so interested in it?

"Because it happens to be a rather rare piece," she replied, "and also I like the color."

GOOD PRINTS VALUABLE REGARDLESS OF ARTIST

The fact that the name of the artist or maker of a print is not known is relatively unimportant if the picture is a good one.

It is true that a certain snob value may be added when the origin is known, but that is actually only incidental. Especially so in sports scenes and particularly in those involving hunting or fishing.

An example is in a decision I saw a man make recently between two prints. The seller would take only cash. No checks. The buyer had only enough folding money on him to pay for one.

One of the prints was a small Currier & Ives, measuring about 9 by 13 inches and published in 1883. It was entitled "Shooting on the Bay Shore" and it showed a man firing into a flight of ducks through some bulrushes. The print was priced at $175, a very good buy considering its excellent condition and the fact that it is usually offered at $300 or more.

The other, two or three inches larger in each dimension, was a deep blue. The crown of the hat looked like the bottom of an inverted tumbler, a fact which identified it as having been made in a tumbler mold. The brim was that of a wide sombrero, fully an inch wide and waving in a way that made it convenient for holding a cigar or cigarette.

When Paul learned that the value of such pieces runs from $20 to $50, he protested that he was looting the firm of one of its assets. The firm could have it back, she said, whenever it could give formal proof of ownership, but until then she was keeping it.

Resolution to Back Program Planned

Plans for presenting a resolution backing a wage differential program in lieu of overtime pay were discussed at a meeting of the Southwest Oregon chapter of the Oregon State Employees association Wednesday evening at the Medford headquarters of the state forestry department.

The chapter voted to send two delegates to the state convention in November to present the program to the OSEA. If the state group adopts the program it will support it at the next session of the state legislature.

The state forestry department is already working on some type of wage differential pay for the 1959 fire season, according to Doyle Stockton, president of the local OSEA chapter, but nothing is definite at the present time.

Family Council

Mrs. G. L.—Adele is going with a married man.

Adele L.—He wants to marry me.

Mrs. G. L.—My husband and I are frantic with worry about our 20-year-old daughter who is going out with a married man.

They were seeing one another for about six months before we learned he was married. We did not like him from the start because he is a heavy drinker and we thought there was something shifty-eyed about him. Well, we certainly turned out to be right. He has two children and he will certainly have to continue supporting them.

Adele doesn't seem to understand what she is letting herself in for. She says we have no right to run her life and that she is old enough to know what she is doing, but we know she is so much in love that she just doesn't see straight anymore. How can you stop a young girl from wrecking her life?

Adele L.—My parents were prejudiced against Frank from the first minute he walked into the house. They didn't like the way he was dressed to call on me, but it happened that he came straight from work and didn't have time to change.

After that, they never even gave Frank a fair chance. They didn't listen to anything he had to say. Frank tried to explain that he was married at 18 and more or less roped in by an older girl, but my parents wouldn't listen to any of that.

Frank had had a miserable life. He is only 22 now and feels that he can't let the rest of his life go to pot. We are in love and he wants to marry me as soon as he is free. Must a person be condemned for the rest of his life because of one mistake?

The Council: It is very hard for parents to have to watch at the sidelines while their children engage in bloody, unnecessary and often disastrous battles with life, but we know of no magic formula that will prevent such mistakes. The individual who appears hell-bent on destruction is driven by forces far more powerful than any rational considerations.

Parents can take some consolation in the following facts: 1. Parents can be wrong too—or at least not as right as they think they are. 2. Children sometimes do see their errors in the nick of time. 3. Few errors are totally disastrous. The ability to profit by mistakes is a big advantage.

All of this may seem to be small consolation to the G.L.'s, but perhaps it will help to cool off their frenzy to the point where they will be able to lend a somewhat more sympathetic ear to Adele's point of view.

If they can keep their heads cool and show her they are willing to understand her problems and to accept any aspects of her arguments that make sense, she may be able to see the holes in her own reasoning.

As long as the G.L.'s maintain an attitude of violent opposition, Adele is driven into Frank's arms for sympathy and comfort. Even if she finally begins to see that she may be making a mistake, pride will keep her from acknowledging that "Mother and Dad knew best." She may force herself to go through with her plans against her own better judgement.

On the whole, we know of no better advice for the G.L.'s than to sweat it out, keeping eyes, ears and hearts open.

RESOLUTION No. 944
A RESOLUTION proposing to permit adjacent property to use a water main as a lateral water main; to levy an assessment on the property fronting on the street wherein said water main is laid; setting a time and place for protest thereto and providing for notice thereof.

WHEREAS the City of Medford has heretofore caused to be laid on Black Oak Drive from Country Club Drive to Walden Place and the Council being of the opinion that said water main may be used by the property fronting on that portion of said main on Black Oak Drive from Country Club Drive to Walden Place in the City of Medford, Oregon;

WHEREAS said water main has not as yet been put in and it appearing to the Council that the use of said water main as a lateral water main by said property last above mentioned will not materially interfere with the use thereof for the purpose for which it was originally laid, now therefore:

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MEDFORD, OREGON:
SECTION 1 That it is the opinion of the Council that that part of the aforementioned water main laid in the City of Medford described as follows: to-wit:
As laid on Black Oak Drive from Country Club Drive to Walden Place in the City of Medford, Oregon.

May be used by the property fronting thereon as a lateral water main without materially interfering with the use thereof for the purpose of a water main, the purpose for which it was originally laid, and the Council proposes to permit the owners of adjacent property to use the same for lateral purposes as aforesaid.

SECTION 2. It is the intention of the Council to assess the property fronting on the street wherein said water main is laid hereinbefore last described its proportionate share of so much of the cost thereof as equals the special benefit which will result to said property from the use of said water main as a lateral water main of such size as would be required to supply the property fronting on said street in case said water main was not so used and the Council has and does here determine that the sum of $2.25 per front foot is the amount of such special benefit and the proportionate cost of such a lateral water main to such property as aforesaid and intends to assess said amount against such adjacent property on account thereof.

SECTION 3. The Council will meet at the hour of 7:30 P.M. at the Council Chamber in the City Hall on the 18th day of September, 1958, at which time it will place all protests of said assessment, as hereinbefore provided for, will be heard.
