

Live a "regular" life —without laxatives

What wouldn't you give to throw away every laxative in your medicine chest? To live a "regular" life again—normally, naturally? Here's how you can do it!

Medical science now has found a miracle substance—available as REGUTOL—that corrects constipation...not with laxatives but with natural colonic moisture!

Doctors say most constipation is due to waste losing moisture in the colon—becoming hard and dry. To give relief, laxatives and "bulks" have to force action in some unnatural, often uncomfortable way.

REGUTOL tablets work differently! Entirely non-laxative, they simply make the moisture in your colon softer, dry waste more effectively. Normal elimination follows naturally!

Thus REGUTOL corrects constipation and restores regularity as no laxative can—usually in just 3 days! Try it; see how much better you feel. 30 tablets, only $1.00.

English Glamour

Jean Simmons and Stewart Granger don't talk or live like Jean Simmons gets a visit from husband Stewart Granger while filming "Home Before Dark." The couple leaves their Arizona ranch only to make money to keep it going.

This shaggy monster is a long way from English mutton, but the Grangers love him. Not all the ranch is so rugged, though—it offers two swimming pools, for instance.

Goes Western

pioneers, but they're an attractive addition to the Arizona scene.

by Peer J. Oppenheimer

OUT WEST, mister, when you talk about "pregnant cows" and call a calf a "cuhve," you'd better smile.

And if you smile as prettily as Jean Simmons, even those weather-beaten cowhands may soon be saying, "Let's head for the ranch, Pehter."

To a degree, that's what has happened at Yerba Buena, the Arizona ranch purchased by Stewart Granger and wife Jean Simmons, two veddy-veddy English stars who have become U. S. citizens and film favorites.

Granger, a long-time lover of the wide open spaces, is responsible for bringing the couple into the land of "yeps" and "wahoos." He was first intrigued by the Tucson area when he and Jean were married there in 1950, at the home of a friend. At that time, his new bride showed none of his enthusiasm for ranch life so he waited for a more opportune moment to suggest a change of residence. That occurred three years ago via a long-distance telephone call, which went something like this:

Stewart, from Nogales, Ariz.: "How are you, dear?"

Jean, in Hollywood, feeling the effects of pregnancy: "Terrible."

Stewart: "That's too bad, really. Say, I just happened to be at a 10,000-acre ranch we might be able to get at a good price."

Jean, indifferently: "Yes, of course, dear. That's wonderful. Good bye."

When Stewart walked into their house 24 hours later, Jean faintly remembered the phone call. "What was that you said about looking at a ranch near Nogales?"

"Since we both agreed, I bought it!" he exclaimed.

When the Grangers moved to Nogales, Jean knew nothing about horses and less about cattle. Their neighbors were taking bets on how long the young actress, born and raised in London, would last in the rugged desert.

Jean fooled them all—quite possibly because life at Yerba Buena wasn't all that rugged. At least not for her.

The old homestead—already equipped with two swimming pools—was completely redecorated, refurbished, and air-conditioned. Jean, with a cook and a maid to help out, doesn't have to supervise the housework, plan menus or shop. That's her husband's domain "because he loves to do it." In fact when they were first married, it was the consensus in Hollywood that Stewart pretty much ran her life as he pleased. If this is still the case, a lot of women would readily trade

Looks right at home, eh? Jean is, too, with the help of the ranch's most placid horse.
