Marilyn Monroe Taken to Hospital

Hollywood - (UP) - Actress Marilyn Monroe was under observation today at Cedars of Lebanon hospital for an undisclosed condition.

The blonde, breathless film star entered the hospital Saturday night after a flight from San Diego with her playwright husband, Arthur Miller.

She left the location of the film "Some Like It Hot," co-starring Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon, on Coronado Island to return to the hospital here.

Her physician refused to discuss what might be wrong with the beauty but friends reported she was suffering from "nervous exhaustion."

She was expected to stay in the hospital for "four or five days" for a checkup. Miller has made frequent trips from the East to see Marilyn since she came to Hollywood in July to make a picture.

Since the start of shooting of the actress' first Hollywood film since 1956, Miss Monroe has been frequently late on the set and too ill some days to appear at all.

SHADY COVE-TRAIL Brush Fire Controlled

By EVALYN P. WATSON

Shady Cove-Trail - The Chubb family, George, Carolyn and Susie, of Shady Cove have expressed their thanks to those who helped put out the grass fire Tuesday afternoon and which looked at first as if it would consume their rental house and barn.

The fire did burn down a small combination chicken house and barn and burned over a three acre area. Special thanks, too, go to the Shady Cove-Trail volunteer fire department, the Shady Cove sawmill and crew, Ben Nork logging, the State Forestry department, Elk Lumber company, Al Cooper logging, Ralph Smith of the Shack, and to George Stout, whose quick action in using the bulldozer helped a great deal.

Sharon Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orage Houston of Trail, has returned home after spending the summer visiting with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Garlen White of Chula Vista, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Sullivan of Shady Cove are parents of a baby boy born Sept. 8 at Sacred Heart hospital in Medford. The baby, who weighed 8½ pounds, is the couple's second child. Gerry's mother, Mrs. Sullivan of Denver, Colo., is staying with them for a while to help Ruth.

A meeting of Our Lady of Fatima club has been set for Wednesday evening, Sept. 17, at the church hall. All women of the parish are urged to attend so that a discussion on coming fall events may be held and final plans made.

Unit No. 3 of the club is planning to hold a rummage sale the latter part of this month and it is hoped that the biggest part of the rummage can be collected by the end of this week. Anyone having rummage can leave it at the home of Mrs. Pearl Adair, Shady Cove, or Mrs. Eva Segessenman or call either one of the two women to have it picked up.

Mrs. Peg Anderton entered the Ashland nursing home, 142 North Main st., last Saturday instead of the Glen Cove nursing home in Medford, as previously reported. She may have visitors.

Last Friday noon, Del Logan of Meadow Lane, Shady Cove, received a phone call from Mrs. George Field, also of Meadow Lane, saying that she had a strange snake on her lawn and would be please come and look it over. Upon arrival at the Field residence he asked where the snake was and she pointed to a small garden flat in the middle of the lawn and said "Under that box." Upon removing the box, he saw a large rattlesnake with nine rattles and a button. The big question was, how did she get it under the box?

What Is The Law?

This column is prepared as a public service by the College of Law, Willamette University, Salem, to explain basic legal principles, not to provide legal advice. The reader is cautioned not to apply these cases to his own problems without an attorney's advice, for differing facts may change the outcome.

Malicious Intent in Cases Of Murder

A man could be guilty of murder if it can be shown that he acted with malice aforethought in killing another.

Take the case of John Doe, for example. Doe sees Sam asleep and decides to kill him. He covers Sam with straw, throws cinders on him, and Sam is burned to death. Doe would be guilty of murder.

On the other hand, a verdict of manslaughter would probably be reached in a case like this:

Doe had no thought of killing or injuring Sam. He merely wanted to frighten him. He thought that the straw would protect Sam from the burning cinders until he had a chance to get out from under it. The element of malice would be lacking in this case and it would probably be adjudged as manslaughter, not murder.

Sufficient Evidence

If Doe intended Sam to be burned seriously enough to be kept in the hospital but had no expectation of the fatal consequences, Doe would be guilty of murder. An intent to do serious bodily harm may be substituted for the intent to kill as an ingredient of malice aforethought. An intent to kill or to inflict great bodily harm without justification, excuse or mitigation, is sufficient for malice aforethought.

In some instances other circumstances might mean a charge of manslaughter rather than murder. For example, while Fred is conducting himself properly, Richard attacks him with a knife and inflicts a severe and painful wound. This so enrages Fred that he instantly kills Richard. Fred admits that, while he was inflamed by passion, he knew what he was doing and intended to kill Richard.

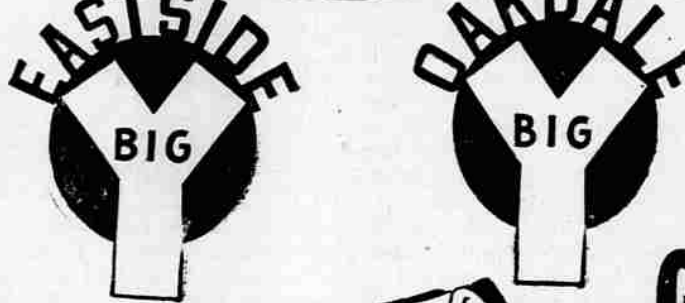

Provocation Applies

This case would probably be manslaughter because the rule of provocation would apply. This rule is a concession to the frailty of human nature. An intent to kill, even without justification or excuse, is not with malice aforethought if it is suddenly formed in the heat of passion caused by great provocation.

In another case, Fred may have administered a light blow on Richard but Richard was so enraged that he stabbed Fred with a knife inflicting a severe and painful wound. Fred in turn kills Richard.

Fred, in this instance, would probably not be guilty of murder. He would be entitled to the rule of provocation. The retaliation for a mild blow may be so out of proportion that the person assaulted becomes the assailant.
