Grange News... Eastern Oregon Cities Hear of West Coast Plans

Upper Applegate Grange Plans for Booster Night, which is scheduled Friday, Oct. 10, were announced by Lecturer Anna Scott when Upper Applegate Grange met Sept. 12.
 A Country Fair, featuring produce of all kinds, handicrafts, and such other items as members may wish to bring, will be held in conjunction with the special program, it was decided, and the evening will conclude with a silent auction. Committees to have responsibility for the various aspects of this event will be named by the lecturer.

By vote of the Grange, the offices of assistant steward and lady assistant steward were declared open, and Forbes and Lulu Brown were named by Worthy Master George Redhead to fill the stations for the remainder of the year, succeeding Robert and Elma Christean, who are unable to attend meetings due to business obligations.
 Marie Louise Nordwick was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Maude Bachmann as a member of the finance committee.

A note of greeting from the Bachmanns, who are now residing in Oxnard, Calif., was read, together with a request for demits. These were granted with regrets.
 Fred West and Gail Buffington were named members of a special committee to investigate types and prices of gas heaters suitable for heating the Grange dining room and kitchen. They will report at the next meeting Sept. 26.

Permission was granted the Upper Applegate Home Extension Unit for its meeting on the same basis as last year.
 Home Economics Chairman Edna Sawyer announced a cooked food sale for Saturday, Sept. 13, in Jacksonville, and a rummage sale for Sept. 26 and 27 in the Eagles hall in Medford. She also stated the theme for the display table at the next Grange meeting will be Oregon rocks and mineral specimens.

A square dance with potluck refreshments, coffee to be furnished by the Grange, was announced for Saturday evening, Sept. 13, by ways and means committee chairman, Ethel West. Lunch was served by ladies of the Grange at the auction of the Ruch mill Sept. 11, she said, but since all bills were not yet settled, no final report could be made until a later date.
 Since September is education month, the literary program opened with community singing of "School Days" led by Chaplain Mildred Redhead, following which each of those present told where he or she started school and incidents which they could recall which happened at that time. The most amusing of these was related by Lloyd Nordwick, who said he started first grade at the age of five, but because he ate the teacher's lunch, he was suspended until he was six years of age.
 Ten of the 35 members present stated they had entered first grade in Jackson county, eight of them being enrolled in schools in Ruch and the Upper Applegate area.

A humorous reading entitled "Teaching a Calf to Drink", presented by Veva Saltmarsh, concluded the program following which refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee were served with Pearl Whitney and Verna Culy heading the hostess committee, assisted by Omar and Irene Culy.
