

Woman Editor To Speak Here

Emily Kimbrough, managing editor of the Ladies Home Journal, will open the 1958-59 season for Rogue Valley Knife and Fork club. Miss Kimbrough will speak at a dinner meeting Tuesday, October 7, at Rogue Valley Country Club.

In addition to her work, first as fashion editor for Marshall Field in Chicago and later as fashion editor and managing editor of the Journal, Miss Kimbrough is probably better known as an author. Her book, "Forty Plus and Fancy Free" was written after a trip through Europe with three friends, the four being described as "youthful grandmothers" and later she teamed up with the actress, Cornelia Otis Skinner, to write "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

The book was made into a movie, with the two authors as technical advisors.

Mrs. Richard House, secretary of the dinner club, states that reservations must be made by October 3. Members are to make checks to Rogue Valley Country Club, and mail them to Mrs. House at 15 Corning court. She emphasized that no reservations will be accepted after October 3.
