Little Rock Eyes Private Buildings

Little Rock, Ark. —(UPI)—The Little Rock Private School Corporation announced today that it will open private, segregated schools in private buildings next week if it can't use four closed high schools.

At the same time, the corporation appealed for public contributions to operate the schools and asked citizens to report any suitable private buildings around Little Rock that might be used for schools.

Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the corporation, announced the corporation's plans at a news conference.

Copco's Big Bend Plant Dedicated This Morning

The California Oregon Power company's Big Bend plant on the Klamath river below Keno, the first of eight hydroelectric plants the company plans to build in the upper Klamath river basin, was dedicated this morning.

The Big Bend plant is the largest in the Copco system with a capacity of 80,000 kilowatts.

Construction of the project started in July, 1956, and at the peak of construction about 700 men were employed on the project. Final cost of the project is estimated at $12,400,000, Copco officials said.

Power generated by the Big Bend plant is fed into the company's system at Klamath Falls and Medford over a 230,000 volt transmission line

The Great Leap Forward

Report From Red China

(This is the fourth of five articles on Red China today by the London Observer Far East chief correspondent. He has just completed an extensive tour of Communist China and is writing from Singapore to escape censorship.)

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH HTNS—London Observer Service

Singapore—The Chungking Iron and Steel Works looked as if they had been struck by the blast from an atomic bomb. Three furnaces were brick ruins and the internal railway system was largely unusable, blocked by a metallurgical litter of abandoned castings, rusty overturned trucks and buckled plates. But "We are producing 500,000 tons of steel this year," the works manager told me, "but in 15 months' time we will treble that output."

I stared at him in frank disbelief. In 1955 the Chinese were already in the grip of a mania for industrialization and I was treated then to some very fancy figuring. But the spectacular advances made under the first Five Year Plan are now regarded as mere plodding and statistics for the second seem to have grown wings.

'Great Leap Forward' Urged

China's leaders have urged their 640 millions to make a "Great Leap Forward" to "catch up or overtake Britain" industrially in 15 years or less. The Chinese have been made aware of their country's tremendous possibilities, of coal reserves estimated to be more than 1,000 times those of Britain, of hydro-electric potential greater than that of all the major countries of the Western world put together.

There is not only a sharpening of the appetites of 1955, but a radical, perhaps dangerous, change in policy. Condemning the "vulgar theory of balance," Chinese economists now claim that disequilibrium between the various sectors of productive activity is normal. Production should never be slowed down in order to achieve a balance. Any such adjustments should be made "upwards." The speed of a convoy is the speed of its fastest ship.

According to original estimates, for example, seven million tons of steel would be produced this year, 12 million tons by 1962. Then, a few months ago, it was decided that production could be made to leap to 17 million tons in 1959. Now it is claimed that even this year's production may top 1 million tons. The figures for next year have therefore already become incalculable.

Workers Permitted to 'Volunteer'

The Chinese say that results like this can be achieved by building new plants and enlarging existing ones, by using new and revolutionary techniques, and by permitting the enthusiastic workers to "volunteer" for extra chores. But there are other factors. The mixture of frenzied activity and appalling disorder at the Chungking Iron and Steel Works is typical of all China. Economic development has become a crash operation, and despite admonitions to produce "more economically" as well as "faster and better," everything is sacrificed on the altar of the production target.

The Chinese slash designing time by ruthlessly copying foreign designs. Machines are run at unprecedented speeds, temperatures raised well above accepted limits in heating operations. At Chungking technicians were claiming to get 90 tons of steel out of furnaces with a 50-ton capacity, and in Shanghai I saw three rolls of sheet being fed simultaneously into plastic processing machines made to take only one.

LARRY SHEEHAN Named by Democrats

Rogue River Man Named Candidate For Sheriff Post

Larry Sheehan, Rogue River businessman, last night was named the Democratic candidate for sheriff of Jackson county.

He was nominated by the Jackson County Democratic Central committee to fill the vacancy created by the withdrawal of Earle Fichtner from the race.

Sheehan, who was the runner-up for the Democratic nomination in the primary election, receiving 2,333 votes to Fichtner's 2,922, is a former Democratic central committee chairman and has long been active in party affairs. He signed a certificate of acceptance for the nomination today, which was filed with the county clerk's office. It is understood there is still time to get his name printed on general election ballots.

Jim Redden, chairman of the Democratic committee, said Sheehan was the only name proposed and considered by the committee in making the nomination.

The Republican candidate is Joe Walsh, now chief criminal deputy sheriff.

Sheehan's campaign manager will be Medford Attorney Russell DeForest.

Men Arrested on Woman's Complaint

Basil Kenneth Boswell, Los Angeles, and Robbie Wharton, Spokane, Wash., were arrested by Medford city police Tuesday afternoon following a complaint from a woman that the men had attempted to sell her oil service for her roof.

The men, arrested on charges of operating in the city without a business license, were lodged in city jail on $50 bail each. Police reported that Boswell was later released upon payment of bail and was scheduled to appear in municipal court today at 8:30 o'clock. He did not appear, police said.

Wharton was transferred to Jackson county jail following information received from California that he was wanted on a felony charge of fraud in that state. He is currently being held for California authorities.

Fire Danger High In Southwestern Part of Oregon

Hunters Asked to Use Extreme Caution

Fire danger in southwestern Oregon was rated as high today by state and national forest agencies.

Curt Nesheim, warden for the southwest district, Oregon department of forestry, and Carroll Brown, supervisor of Rogue River National forest, asked hunters and others going into the forests to use extreme caution with any type of fire.

They stressed extinguishing warming and camping fires before leaving the scene, and asked people to watch smoking. Areas which are closed to travel in the regular season still are closed since the season has not officially been declared ended, the pointed out.

The said closures are limited to small areas of high fuel such as slash areas. Most of the areas will remain closed until after the next rain. People going into the mountains may check on closed areas by contacting either the state department of forestry or the forest service.

Nesheim and Brown said the forests are dryer now than they were prior to the last rain about Sept. 15, and fire danger now is higher than during the average summer day.

East winds and low humidity have resulted in the high fire danger. The winds have been general over this area, they noted.

Trickery Charged By Sen. Morse

Washington — (UPI) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) accused Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today of "trickery" and "deception" which he said violates a 1955 "understanding" that the Senate could ratify any proposed defense of Quemoy and Matsu.

Morse reiterated his demand for "impeachment" of President Eisenhower and Dulles if they persist in what he called a "warlike course of action" over the China offshore islands.

The Foreign Relations Committee member said that Dulles entered into an "understanding" with the committee's 1955 chairman, the late Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.) in order to secure ratification of the mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China.

"It was distinctly understood by the Senate at the time that any proposal to include the Quemoy and Matsu in the defense obligations of the United States was to be brought back to the Senate for ratification," Morse said in a statement.

Ike Reaffirms Plans To Oppose Aggression

PORTER VISITS—Rep. Charles O. Porter, who arrived in Medford today, spent some time this morning greeting "the man on the street" as part of the activities of his two-day campaign visit in the area. He is shown above talking with Central Point resident Kenneth Lamb and his daughter, Susan, 3. Lamb told Porter that in spite of being a registered Republican, his vote would go to Porter because of the delegate's interest in the Rogue river flood control project. Porter planned to visit a number of sawmills in the area today and will be present at an open house at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Norton, Phoenix, tonight. He will also hold office hours Thursday morning at the office of attorneys Kelly and Kelly in the Goldy building, Medford.

Porter Arrives Here On Campaign Tour

Congressman Charles O. Porter, Eugene, arrived in Medford last night for two days of campaigning.

He began by accusing his Republican opponent, Paul Geddes of Roseburg, of violating the "Code of Fair Campaign Practices" in at least nine instances, and called upon Geddes to sign the Code, as Porter has done.

The Code, adopted by an inter-party committee, is designed to make the public aware that candidates signing it intend to conduct their campaigns in the American tradition of fair play, the Democratic congressman said.

Among other things, the Code condemns the use of campaign material which misrepresents, distorts or otherwise falsifies the facts regarding any candidate, and it is this section which Porter said Geddes has violated at least nine times.

The instances cited by Porter include allegations by Geddes that he (Porter) has lost important military bases in Latin America by his activities, that he has advocated stopping H-bomb testing before Russia does, that Porter wants to appease Red China, imports on one hand and that he is a "tool" of labor bosses on the other, that he had the duty to press the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding freight rate changes, that he had carried a gun in the halls of congress, that he is unpopular with his colleagues, and that he had voted for the omnibus farm bill.

Each of these is either untrue or a distortion of fact, Porter declared.

The congressman arrived here late last night after meetings in Grants Pass, and this morning was campaigning on the streets. He scheduled a visit to the labor temple, and to Wilbur Gardner, the Medford shoe repairman whose campaign for proper labeling of shoes Porter has assisted.

This afternoon he was to visit mills in the area, accompanied by Mark Norton, Phoenix, his county campaign manager.

An open house, to which the public is invited, will be held between 7 and 9 p.m. tonight at the Nortons' home in Phoenix.

Tomorrow he will hold office hours at his Medford office, in the suite of the Kelly and Kelly law firm in the Goldy building, from 9 a.m. to noon, and in the afternoon he will meet with groups and individuals, and will visit Camp White.

Tomorrow between 7 and 9 p.m. he will attend a "Coffee With Your Congressman" at the Democratic headquarters at the Esquire theater. The coffee is open to the public.

On Friday he will take a "day off" from his strenuous campaign schedule, and go fishing on the Rogue river with friends.

Friday evening he will return to Eugene, but will be back in Jackson county again before the November election.

In his campaigning, Porter said he is emphasizing the "positive side of his accomplishments—the things which he has been able to do for the Fourth district during his first term in Congress. He cited such things as a reactivation of preliminary studies for Rogue Basin development, port work along the coast, saving of lower Rogue scenic areas through a Forest Service trade, helping obtain federal assistance for construction of the new Josephine county airport, and a number of other accomplishments in other parts of the district.

Applications for absentee ballots are being accepted by the county elections department, County Clerk Bereth P. Hopkins reminded residents today.

Mrs. Hopkins added that absentee ballots have been sent to the printers and will be mailed as soon as they are received by the county.

Voters pamphlets will again be mailed and addressed locally, the county clerk said, and will include a facsimile of the sample ballot and a list of polling places for the area.

She explained that the reason for including the list of polling places was to enable the elections department to reach all registered voters in the county. It has been found in the past, she said, that the polling information has not been received by all the voters.

Schools of instruction for election boards in Medford have been completed, it was reported. Mrs. Hopkins will conduct the schools in Ashland today with other schools scheduled in Ruch, Rogue River, Shady Cove, Eagle Point, and Central Point.

Man Arrested for Paying in Cash on Gambling Device

Central Point—Henry A. Dittmanson, 221½ North Holly st., Medford, was arrested by Central Point city and state police yesterday afternoon on charges of operating and paying off in cash on a gambling device.

Central Point Police Chief Wallace Bowen said Dittmanson was arrested at the Valley Billiard hall, 220 East Pine st. His arrest, Bowen said, resulted from numerous complaints from parents that teenagers were losing their high school lunch money on pinball machines.

Dittmanson posted $200 bail and is scheduled to appear in Central Point municipal court Oct. 10. The machine involved was confiscated by Central Point police. Bowen said he closed the pool hall, and it will remain closed until he decides when it should again open.

Made 50 Payoffs

Bowen said Dittmanson, in a statement to city and state police, told them he had been employed at the hall about seven weeks, and had made about 50 payoffs in cash from pinball machines. Amounts of payoffs ranged from 5 cents to $10, Dittmanson told officers.

A 17-year-old boy told officers he had been paid off about 20 times in the past few months from machines in the pool hall, police reported.

To Enter Hospital

—Said he will enter Walter Reed Army hospital this week end for his annual physical checkup. He said he was announcing it himself because he did not want anyone to get the idea that his presence at the hospital was evidence of new illness.

Forest Service Puts Out Mt. Ashland Fire

Forest service crews yesterday morning extinguished a two-acre timber fire along the Mt. Ashland Loop rd., on the edge of the Ashland Watershed, forest service officials said today.

The fire, which they said apparently was man-caused, was spotted about dark Monday night. Crews were at the scene all night. Exact cause of the blaze was not determined.

Hunting Season To Open on Schedule

Salem —(UPI)—Gov. Robert Holmes said today "the hunting season will open on schedule."

The announcement giving hunters the green light for the Saturday opening of deer season was made following consultations with game and forestry officials on the condition of forests.

Withdrawal of Nationalists Seen As One Solution

President To Have Physical Checkup

Washington —(UPI)—President Eisenhower today reaffirmed U.S. determination to oppose Communist aggression in the Far East. He said this country will not retreat in the face of force.

The President told his news conference that withdrawal of Chinese Nationalist forces from Quemoy and Matsu has been considered as one possible solution to the Formosa crisis. But he said he was not sure this was the final answer on which everyone could agree.

Chiang Seen Unwise

He said that he, like Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, believed Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had been unwise in committing such large forces on the offshore islands.

The President emphasized, however, that people should not become so preoccupied with specific geographical aspects of the China crisis as to lose sight of the major danger which lay in the broad Communist threat to the entire Free World.

Eisenhower was asked twice during the conference to say whether he believed "demilitarization" of Quemoy and Matsu or reduction of the Nationalist forces there offer a possible solution of the crisis.

Must Avoid Retreat

He replied twice that he could conceive of no possible solution which the U.S. and its allies had not considered, but that the basic issue remained to avoid retreat in the face of force.

The second time he replied that if there is a cease fire at Quemoy, there will be an opportunity to negotiate in good faith. But he was not certain that demilitarization was the final answer on which everyone could agree.

The chief executive, in response to questioning, made it clear that the U.S. had not altered its firm opposition to admitting Red China to the United Nations.

The President also:

—Announced that the atomic submarine Seawolf had now been submerged for 54 days, going far beyond the previous record of 31 days. It is still going strong, he said, and on the way to a new record that would be hard to beat.

To Enter Hospital

—Said he will enter Walter Reed Army hospital this week end for his annual physical checkup. He said he was announcing it himself because he did not want anyone to get the idea that his presence at the hospital was evidence of new illness.

Criticized a pathy and complacency within the Republican party in this election year, calling for a strong GOP effort on all levels of the party to further the moderate aims of his administration and keep government out of the gutter.

—Said that at no time had he instructed anyone to request the resignation of Sherman Adams as his assistant although there was no doubt that others had advised Adams in strong terms to get out even weeks and months before Adams made his actual announcement.

Eisenhower, in discussing the crisis over school integration, avoided specific reference to school closures, pointing out that he had stated his position on this previously.

Washington —(UPI)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower drove through a cold rain today to the National Presbyterian church to join in special prayers for peace and an end to class hatred and racial antagonism.
