City People Outnumber Those Living in Country

City people outnumber country people in Jackson county today by approximately a 4-3 margin.

Seven of the county's 10 incorporated cities have grown since 1950 and three have become smaller.

Five of the seven growing cities boast gains of more than 10 per cent since the turn of the decade.

These are some of the significant points in the report issued last week by the Oregon state board of census.

The biggest disappointment, local observers agree, is that Medford has apparently not reached the 25,000 mark after all.

A report from city hall July 28 estimated Medford's population at 25,274.

The official census board, while noting a 40.4 per cent increase in the city since 1950, sets the present figure at 24,300.

Here are the official figures, including the percentage of change in the past eight years: Ashland, up 13.7 per cent to 8,800.

Butte Falls, down 3.2 per cent to 360.

New Fire Insurance Rates Take Effect

Portland—(UPI)—New rates on fire insurance were in effect in Oregon today with cost on dwellings reduced in areas where fire protection is available and increased in areas where it isn't.

The rates were approved by the State Insurance Department on application of the Oregon Insurance Rating Bureau. They went into effect at midnight Tuesday.

Other changes saw rates increased on home contents and on extended coverage such as protection against wind, hail and blast damage.

$50 Deductible Available
Extended coverage also was altered. Some things previously protected such as television antennas, outside awnings, signs, etc. were eliminated from standard coverage.

The new rates will be effective today on all new business or renewals written on or after that date. They also apply to policies written before today if they go into force on or after Dec. 1.

The extended coverage endorsement will now cost $1.62 for each $1,000 of insurance on a three-year policy on either the dwelling or contents with the $50 deductible. The old rate for full coverage without a deductible clause was $1.08 for each $1,000 of insurance. Without the $50 deductible, with the insurance company paying all the loss under extended coverage, the policy will now cost $2.70 for each $1,000 of insurance on the dwelling and $1.78 on contents.

In fire protection districts reduction in fire rates will range from 5 to 14 per cent. The increase in unprotected districts ranges from 15 to 20 per cent, according to A. J. Snow, rating bureau manager.

The market made its lows about mid-season, then rallied. At the lows prices showed losses running to more than a point.

Britain's Cyprus Plan in Effect; Unity Threatened

London—(UPI)—Britain's "partnership" plan for bloodstained Cyprus went into effect at midnight despite violent Greek opposition that threatened NATO unity and new violence on the Mediterranean island.

Under the plan, Cyprus becomes a territory technically ruled in partnership by Britain, Greece and Turkey for a seven-year period. A permanent solution would be found later.

One-fourth of the population of Cyprus is Turkish, and the Turks were going along with the plan. Three-fourths are Greeks who demand union with Greece, and Greece was having no part of the plan now.

On Cyprus itself the powerful EOKA, Greek Cypriot extremist organization, ordered a 24-hour general strike today to coincide with the start of the plan. Police maintained an extra large guard against possible violence.

The EOKA distributed leaflets saying Greek Cypriots would not bow down before "the Anglo-Turkish conspiracy."

Both Turkey and Greece were to have appointed a commissioner to serve on the "partnership" government but Greece refused.

And because Britain refused to reconsider the plan, Greek representative Michel Mellas walked out Tuesday on a NATO conference in Paris which was trying to achieve a compromise to avert an open rupture among the NATO partners.

Nationwide Alert Seeks Escapee From Alcatraz

San Francisco—(UPI)—A nationwide alert was out today for the arrest of Aaron Burgett, 28-year-old gunman from St. Louis, Mo., who may have been the first man to escape from Alcatraz prison.

Although Alcatraz officials believed Burgett was either hiding somewhere on the "Rock" or drowned in the swift tides of San Francisco bay, the FBI acted on the possibility he had reached the mainland.

Had "Waterwings" It was known that Burgett had equipped himself with a pair of waterwings fashioned from a plastic bag.

"We've got to assume he's still on the island," said Warden Paul Madigan, "until we get some definite proof otherwise. If he did swim for it, we don't give him much chance."

Burgett's companion in the escape, Clyde Johnson, 40, a Memphis, Tenn., bank robber, was captured two hours after the two overpowered a bound guard Harold Miller on Monday afternoon.

Johnson was found shivering in the cold waters of the bay, a few feet off the rocky shore of the island prison.

"We've got to proceed on the possibility that Burgett has left the island," said Webb Burke, FBI agent in charge.

Description Broadcast Taking no chances that Burgett had escaped, the FBI distributed all-points bulletins to the nation's police departments carrying his description.

Meanwhile, 75 Alcatraz guards and FBI agents continued their search of the caves fringing the shore of Alcatraz, hoping they might find Burgett still in hiding.

Six of the larger caves at the northwest end of the island were bombed with tear gas to no avail.

Coast Guard patrol boats and prison launches made incessant patrols around the fog and wind-swept island.

The 285 convicts at Alcatraz remained locked in their cells as guards and FBI men scoured the island.

The platform at the top of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, built in 1887, is 895 feet from the ground.
