For the past few years the women's editor of The Tribune has followed the custom of introducing some of the reporters who have turned in exceptionally good copy or who have been of unusual service to the groups they represent.

During the school staff members will discuss the proper preparation of copy, a question and answer period will be held and the program will close with a tea.

Son Here

James Lattie spent the week end in the valley with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lattie, North Phoenix road. The young man, who formerly was with Station KBES-TV as a photographer-reporter, is now serving as a public relations man for Congressman Hubert B. Scudder of California. He plans to return to Jackson county following the general election.

Annual Mission Institute Conducted by Church Women

Books which women of Protestant churches will study this fall and winter were reviewed at the annual mission institute of Medford Council of United Church Women, held September 26 in Eastwood Baptist church. Mrs. Everett Faber, Central Point, president, and Mrs. William Ricken opened the program with devotions.

Those briefing books and books discussed were: "Middle East Pilgrimage," Mrs. William Ricken; "New Voices, Old Worlds," Mrs. William Piper; "The Lands Between," Mrs. Lyle Schoppert; "A Tool in His Hand," Mrs. Fred Daugherty; "Caught in the Middle," Mrs. C. Weldon Kline; "Multitudes in the Valley," Mrs. Reta Miller; "Pearls Are Made," Mrs. Fred Mast; "They Live in Bible Lands," Mrs. Maurice Tuttle; "The Thirsty Village," Mrs. Leon Yandell.

These books were concerned with peoples of the Middle East and others considered Christian concerns of North American neighbors.

Books under the second heading and women who briefed them were: "Concerns of a Continent," Mrs. Everett Lasher; "The Shadows They Cast," Mrs. George Roseberry; "This Is North America," Mrs. C. C. Stearns; "This Is the Migrant," Mrs. C. L. Miller; "What Concerns American Youth," Mrs. G. C. Corum; "Always an Answer," Mrs. J. Claude Sparks; "Ten Pairs of Shoes," Mrs. John Reed; "Leo, of Alaska," Mrs. William Root; "Flaco, of Mexico," Mrs. Wayne Troxell; "Mateo, of Mexico," Mrs. Charles Thompson.

Maps and several children's books were grouped as a unit and presented by Mrs. Wayne Troxell.

At noon the Rev. Richard Jones of the hostess church, gave the table devotions. Mrs. Harlan P. Bosworth Jr. told of the United Nations activities and announced meetings to be held soon.

Mrs. Wayne Troxell, chairman, conducted the program hour held in the sanctuary of the church. The Rev. Richard Jones gave the opening devotions and Mrs. Charles Champlin sang, accompanied by Mrs. A. Anderson.

The newly arrived minister of the Zion Lutheran church, the Rev. H. C. Coovert, was the afternoon speaker taking as his topic "Alaska" where he spent the past six years at Juneau.

The Rev. Mr. Coovert stated that the Lutheran and Catholic churches have done most of the work which has been carried on among the Eskimos. In most of Alaska one finds Indians and working with them are Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal and Salvation Army groups.

Educational facilities are excellent, according to the speaker. A college is located at Fairbanks and one is to be built at Anchorage. Travel is either by boat or plane for travel by car is not possible due to the rugged and narrow roads or the complete absence of roads.

The Lutheran church is the oldest established church in Alaska, stated the Rev. Mr. Coovert, and strangely enough, the Russians donated the land upon which the church stands.

The speaker advised against going to Alaska for, he stated, there are no jobs and prices are very high on all commodities. Perhaps no place has more beautiful scenery than has Alaska, which he and Mrs. Coovert explained in the showing of some interesting slides of that country.

Unusual Plant In Bloom Here

Mrs. May Ayres of 722 West Fourth street has a ginger plant blooming in her garden, it was reported yesterday. The plant, ordinarily grown in sub-tropical and tropical climates, is much admired for its white blossoms and unusual fragrance.

The plant was brought to Medford by Mrs. Ayres' daughter, Mrs. Edward Canoose, who also planted one in her own garden. The two plants lived over last winter, but that grown by Mrs. Canoose has failed to bloom.

The two women have no idea how long the blooming period will continue, and Mrs. Canoose added that the flower is not the usual long spike which those grown in southern California and Hawaii produce.

Leaves

Mrs. Kenneth Bitney, Riverside, Calif., left for her home last night after spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Sanderson, South Holly street, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sanderson, Sams Valley. Mrs. Bitney is a cousin of the two men.

Doctor Says Fashion Plates Are Bored or Boring Women

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
New York—UPI—A medical historian—male—has come up with possibly fightin' and frightening words about fashion.

Dr. Felix Marti-Ibanez does so fearlessly. Ever since Eve reached for something more stylish than a fig leaf, it has been a doctor's prerogative to ponder fashion—in the interest of physical and mental health.

Hippocrates—author of the oath doctors take—could be fathomed of his time for squeezing their rib cages with waistbands. Claimed respiration suffered.

Bored and Boring
Of fashions, in general, Dr. Marti-Ibanez, head of the History of Medicine Department at New York Medical college, says:

—The woman who blindly adopts every fashion does so because fashion bolsters a weak individuality.

—Fashion plates usually are bored and boring females.

—The fashion plate makes fashion a hard and constant slave, trotting from place to place so that men—and more

Methodist Women Legislate Against Capital Punishment

Medford delegates report that a recommendation that capital punishment be taken from the statute books of Oregon was approved by the executive committee of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, Oregon Conference of the Methodist church, at the fall meeting in Forest Grove, September 26. Mrs. C. R. Adamson, Mrs. George Lawless and Mrs. O. P. Taylor attended from Medford.

The recommendation is presented by Mrs. Wayne Stauffer, Eugene, secretary of Christian social relations, reads: "Whereas we stand for the application of the redemptive principle of Christian love to the treatment of offenders against the law, we, the members of the executive committee of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church, deplore the use of capital punishment and duly recommend that it be taken from the statute books of the state of Oregon."

It was announced that the oratorical contest, sponsored annually by the Society for important—women, notice her.

Among points made by the medical historian in a medical publication, MD, is this one that males might file for future reference:

Historically, whenever woman has dominated, she has abbreviated her apparel, stripping off everything that might hinder action.

Nothing New
The medical historian finds nothing really new about the trapeze. An important woman called "Mistress of Animals" wore such a thing in 1000 B.C. A statue of her in the Paris Louvre proves it.

If recent interest in the trapeze is a sign fashion is regressing, a garment called the minoan should be the rage by 2800 A.D. And if it is, the common cold will have a field day.

For the minoan, popular in 1800 B.C., featured the reverse of the bare back.

The way Dr. Marti-Ibanez looks at fashion, the whole complex subject is the result of social and sexual competition. And women's styles have met the competition with a succession of fashionable exposures.

Social Season Opens With Hula-Hoops

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
New York—UPI—International society hula-hopped it up at the Astor Tuesday night to open what promises to be the most lavish social season since World War II.

Deluxe red, yellow and blue hoops costing $1.75 swiveled around the hips of 1,000 socialites, many of them multi-millionaires, in the wackiest post-midnight scene in the history of the venerable Astor Hotel on Times Square. It was the first of the balls, debuts, and charity events that will put an estimated 10 million dollars in circulation in the next eight months.

The hoops were passed out to Rockefeller, Whiteneys, Chryslers, Dukes, Mellons, Du Ponts and Biddles at the climax of the Astor Ball, an event marking the reopening of the 54-year-old hotel's ballroom to the New York carriage trade after years of social oblivion due to its West Side location. Almost everyone except Elsa Maxwell gave the hoop the whirl.

"I won't make an exhibition of myself," said Elsa as she slipped out early for an appearance on a television show.

The international set, including Generalissimo Francisco Franco's daughter, Marquise de Villaverde, handled the hoops timidly at first. Then Eleanor Whitney, divorced wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, broke the ice by lassoing Aly Khan in her hoop for a whirl around the ballroom.

Merle Oberon, Jane Pickens, Carol Bruce, Magda Gabor and Gypsy Rose Lee followed suit and it soon looked like a school playground at recess. Side-line dowagers such as Mrs. Wendell Wilkie and the Duchess of Talleyrand carried off hoops by the half-dozen for their grandchildren, they said. The hoops looked incongruous over their diamond-braceleted arms.

The ball was the idea of former White Russian Prince Serge Obolensky, who had the good fortune to marry an Astor heiress and become a hotel executive in the recently organized Zwickendorf hotel chain. It netted $25,000 for the New York Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund for underprivileged children. That will buy a lot of hula hoops. A post script for the fashion minded: the empire fashion has not caught on among women who can afford to follow fashion's whims. The predominant style at the ball was a knee-length gown with fitted front and longer floating panel back, in various shades of green.

Plastic upholstery is more durable if fabric-backed or on an elastic base. Unsupported it is easy to puncture and break.

Select Wash-n-Wear Shirts Carefully... if you choose to buy them. One brand may launder satisfactorily. Another may turn dirty yellow or fall apart. This may happen to dress or sport shirts, blouses, work or play clothes, or other wash-n-wear fabrics and garments, white or colored, normally bleached for stain removal and retention of original whiteness.

According to AMERICAN INSTITUTE of LAUNDERING, inferior wash-n-wear garments may be made with certain resin finishes that absorb chlorine from hypochlorite bleach, commonly used. This can't rinse out and heat from ironing creates an acid which yellows or destroys the fabric.

If you buy wash-n-wear or other washables, be sure they carry the CERTIFIED WASHABLE SEAL of American Institute of Laundering. It certifies we can launder them to perfection.
