By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
Milwaukee—Manager Casey Stengel, asked whether the Yankees were desperate after losing the first two World Series games:
"Desperate? Why should I be desperate? The Dodgers had me down two years ago and we changed parks and they lost to me."

Milwaukee—Pitcher Lew Burdette, who beat the Yankees three times in last year's Series and did it again Thursday:
"I don't think I'll get three cracks at 'em this time."

Oakland, Calif.—Adlai E. Stevenson, in attacking Vice President Richard M. Nixon's statement that a State department official was trying to "sabotage" China policy by disclosing mail reaction was running against the policy:
"And now with President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles suddenly changing their position it looks as though the administration has joined the saboteurs. But I have an idea that our agile vice president won't have much trouble quickly identifying himself with the new position."

San Francisco—Vice President Nixon, on China policy:
"Interpretation of the press conference remarks of the Secretary of State and the President on Tuesday and Wednesday to the effect that they represented a change of U.S. policy or a weakening of our position is completely erroneous."

Joliet, Ill.—One of three maximum security convicts, after jumping into a hopper filled with stones of limestone to save a guard's life at Stateville penitentiary:
"We'd have expected the same thing of him if it had been one of us."

Driver Should Have Smiled Like Blonde

Charlotte, N.C.—City officials today studied the case of the man, the blonde and the one-way street.

The man: J. Raymond Thomas, confessed wrong-way driver on the one-way street. The blonde: unidentified, but described as having a "pretty smile."

The problem (as related by Thomas): a matter of the sword of justice cutting in just one direction.

Yes, Thomas told the City Council, he was going the wrong way. But so was the blonde, driving just ahead of him.

A cop stopped both cars. Thomas got a ticket. The blonde didn't. "I don't think a lady ought to get by with that, just because she put on a pretty smile," complained Thomas.

The city manager promised to investigate.

ILLINOIS VALLEY School Has Visitors

By RUTH RAUSCH
Cave Junction—Special visitors in the Evergreen grade school this week were four guests of Mrs. Jim Allen, the Misses Iris Iussiner and Agnes Steiner from Switzerland, and the Misses Noeline Larder and Greta Wakelin from New Zealand.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hada of Crestline were guests of Irene McCasland this week. Mrs. Hada is a niece of Mrs. McCasland.

Mrs. Dave Wilson's fourth graders at Evergreen school voted Marie Leonard's original poem, "All the Colors Are Gay" the best in the class and chose it to be put to music; the song will be composed by the fourth grade class.

Folk songs and conversational Spanish will be taught in the new Spanish class which will be introduced to the Evergreen grade school pupils Thursday afternoons by Mrs. Dave Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson said the class is open to all children interested in learning Spanish, but the enrollment will necessarily have to be limited.

The Evergreen grade school PTA will hold the initial meeting of the school year Oct. 7 at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the projects and to line out the work pattern for the year.

Valorie Rauber is home again from Oregon Caves where she was employed for the summer months.

The second birthday of Preston Charles Henry of Medford was observed at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Mackey last Friday evening. With his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry, and sister, Heidi, the guest of honor stayed overnight at the parsonage and traveled on to Eugene Saturday morning.

GIVES ENCOURAGEMENT—Jay Allen, Medford, gives encouragement to one of the youngsters at Our Lady of Providence nursery, Portland, recently. Allen was one of several valley residents who toured agencies served by the United Oregon Appeal, which receives its funds from contributions through local United Fund drives. Last year, about 550 children received 40,000 days of care at the nursery.

Child Caring Groups Among Those Served By Oregon Appeal

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles discussing agencies served by contributions to the United Medford Crusade. The local campaign got under way in mid-September with a goal of $131,030, about one-fourth of which has been attained. The following article discusses the Oregon United Appeal.)

The Oregon United Appeal, funds for which are provided by united fund drives throughout the state, offers services to children and adults throughout the state through 17 various agencies.

Included in the Appeal are 10 child caring agencies. They are Albertina Kerr Nursery, Our Lady of Providence Nursery, Waverly Baby Home, St. Rose Industrial school, Boys and Girls Aid Society, Christie school, St. Mary's Home for Boys, Volunteers of American Mothers' and Children's home, Catholic Services for Children, and Children's Farm home.

The agencies provide foster home and institutional care for children of all ages.

Adoptive Services
There are four adoptive services—Catholic Services for Children, Waverly Baby Home, Albertina Kerr Nursery and Boys and Girls Aid Society—which offer children for adoption and arrange to meet the needs of unwed mothers.

Special institutional care for delinquent and wayward girls is provided by Louise Home and St. Rose Industrial school.

Seven Oregon United Appeal agencies concentrate their efforts in preventive social work. The YM and YWCAs at the University of Oregon and Oregon State college work with the future leaders; the YMCA youth-in-program assists high school youths to understand the democratic form of government; and the Oregon Prison association counsels to make corrective institutions and programs adequate and carries on work to prevent crime and delinquency.

Hygiene Association
The American Social Hygiene association assists governmental agencies in combating vice and prostitution, and the USO offers counseling, recreation and entertainment for servicemen and women.

The Oregon United Appeal has budgeted from the United Medford Crusade $18,000 of the $131,030 goal of the local campaign, which started in mid-September.

Earlier this year, several residents active in the local campaign toured many of the United Oregon Appeal agencies.

Revision of '308 Report' Completed

Portland—(UPI)—A r.m.y. Engineers reported here today that two years of work have ended in completion of a revision of the old "308 Report," a plan for comprehensive Columbia Basin development.

The office of North Pacific Division engineers said no details of the revised document would be released until it is reviewed by the office of the Chief of Engineers in Washington, D. C. Public hearings were held throughout the Pacific Northwest last fall in preparation of the report.

Five Arraigned in Portland Probe

Portland—(UPI)—Five men, named in burglary conspiracy indictments along with James B. Elkins and Raymond Clark were arraigned Thursday.

Three of them, Harry Huerth, Daniel Donohue and Leonard McMullen, were brought from the state penitentiary at Salem where they are serving prison terms for burglary.

The other two, James Q. Jenkins and James Jessing surrendered separately. They were released under $3,500 bail as were Elkins and Clark Wednesday.

All have been ordered to appear in court next Wednesday.
