

U.S. Departure May Be Delayed, Officials Hint

Washington —UPI— Official sources said yesterday the departure from Lebanon of all the 7,500 American troops still there might be delayed if Lebanese political unrest flares dangerously.

The state and defense departments still plan to have the last soldier out by Oct. 31. Officials said that for the moment they saw no reason to change that schedule. But they cautioned that continued strife between anti-government mobs and the new administration of President Fuad Chehab might alter the situation.

Key To Future

Key to the immediate future, in the opinion of qualified officials, lies in the forthcoming meeting of the Lebanese parliament where Chehab was said he intends to demand approval of the new cabinet headed by Premier Rashid Karami. Chehab has said he hopes to call parliament next Thursday.

Chamber Managers Elect New President

Pendleton —UPI— Oregon Chamber Executives yesterday elected Fred Brenne, manager of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, as new president of their organization at the conclusion of a convention here.

Chamoun Claims Adherents

Chamoun claims he has enough adherents in the parliament, 34 or 35 of the 66 members, to block confirmation of the Karami government.

American officials doubt this. But if Chamoun proves correct and parliament rejects the cabinet, President Chehab is expected to order general elections to select a new parliament.

The fear here is that this could lead to new disorders throughout the country and a division of the political battles in half-Christian half-Muslim Lebanon along religious lines — a fearful prospect which so far has been avoided.

Seattle Girl Dies As Car Collides In Avoiding Deer

Cannon Beach —UPI— A head-on collision on a foggy stretch of Highway 101 Friday night fatally injured Carmen MacCurdy, 19, Seattle, when the car she was riding in veered into another vehicle after hitting a deer. She was dead on arrival at Seaside hospital.

Three persons were injured. They were Roy C. Beers, 25, Nehalem; Beverly Swanson, 18, Astoria, and Eugene Bowman, Westport.

Bowman, who was alone in his car, was taken to an Astoria hospital with leg fractures, face lacerations and other injuries. Miss Swanson was hospitalized in Seaside with leg and pelvic fractures and face cuts. Beers, driver of the car in which the girls were passengers, was treated for hand injuries and bruises and released.

State policeman Harold Kottere said Beers' car was southbound when it struck a deer one-half mile south of the Cannon Beach junction. The animal was killed outright.

British Troops In Grim Manhunt For Cypriot Killer

Nicosia, Cyprus —UPI— Thousands of British troops yesterday pressed a grim "glove-off" manhunt through Famagusta for the terrorist killer of a fellow-serviceman's wife and mother of five children.

Two "boys in black" who shot and killed Mrs. Catherine Cutcliffe, 40, and seriously wounded her companion, Mrs. Elfrida Robinson, were sought. Both women were shot in the back while shopping on Famagusta's "Murder Mile" Friday.

A curfew was immediately clamped on Famagusta, now the major stronghold of the Greek Cypriot underground. All the main roads leading into the city were blocked while furious paratroops fanned out through the streets to round up some 800 Greeks for questioning.

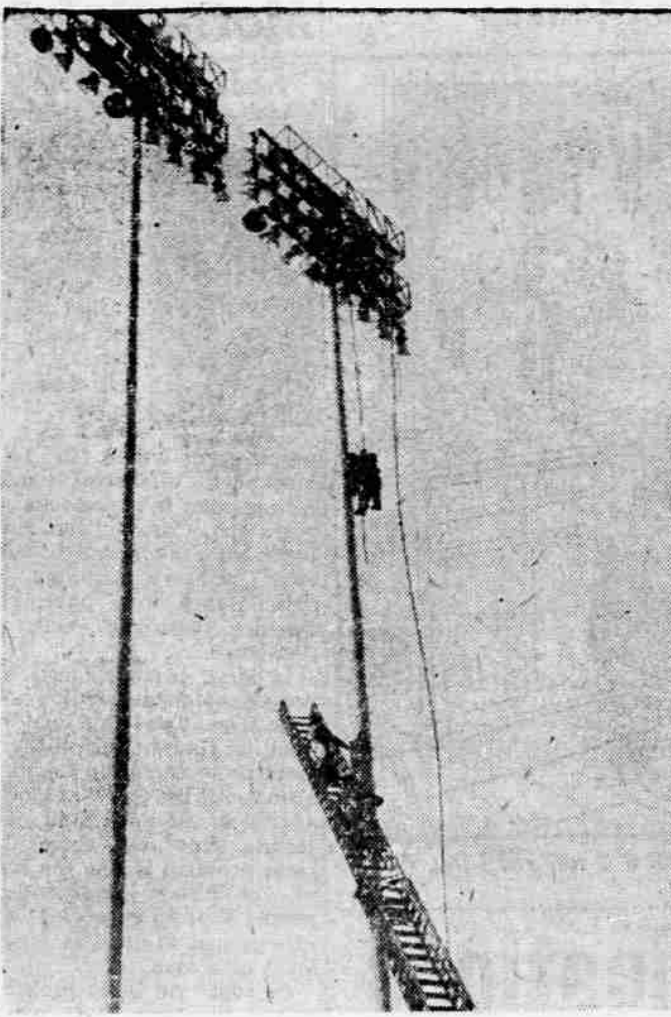

Greek sources said one to six persons had been killed and about 300 injured by the angry troops. British authorities denied there had been any brutality or that any deaths had resulted from the search but conceded that at least 150 persons had been injured.

Chinese Model Draws Line At Bathing Suits

New York —UPI— A Chinese model flown here from Hong Kong is being sent home because she will not wear a bathing suit in public.

A bathing suit company (Janzen) brought Helen Lei Mei and her wardrobe of 70 dresses and matching accessories here by airplane Wednesday.

"Her explanation," a company official said, "was that bathing suits have a different connotation in Hong Kong."

REAL FAN—Anthony Albano, 61, of Brooklyn, N. Y., climbed a light-pole in right center field at County Stadium in Milwaukee to watch the opening game of the 1958 World Series between the Yankees and the Braves. Albano sat undisturbed on his perch through 10 innings, but then was unable to come down alone, and it took the fire department to rescue him. Here he is shown being lowered by firemen about an hour after the game ended.

He was a helpful friend of newspapermen and congressmen during a quarter century on the staff of the press gallery.

Construction Crew Finds Imperial Mammoth's Tusk

Portland —UPI— A rare archeological find was reported in Portland yesterday and—oddly enough—it was less than 500 yards from the new Oregon Museum of Science and Industry.

Dr. John Allen, head of the geology department of Portland State college, said part of the tusks of one of the great imperial mammoths that roamed the region in the ice age had been uncovered and he called the find "tremendously exciting."

Workers grading the hillside along Southwest canyon road uncovered the tusks near the new overpass across the highway. One tusk was destroyed and part of a second one was damaged before a highway engineer, Ronald Scroggins, recognized them as bone. Today the area was swarming with amateur geologists in search of more remains of the extinct member of the elephant family.

On hand were Dr. Allen; Paul Howell, geologist for the Corps of Engineers; Lloyd Buff, vice president of OMSI; Ralph Mason of the state department of geology, and Lon Hancock, dean of Oregon paleontologists. They estimate that the mammoth died somewhere between 10,000 and 150,000 years ago.

Part of one tusk is seven inches in diameter and was uncovered about 80 feet below the original surface.
