Strong Criticism Hits Formosa Policy

A strong criticism of the Administration's policies as related to the Formosa-Quebec crisis was voiced in Medford Saturday night by Mrs. Annalee Stewart, legislative secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

The peace league which Mrs. Stewart represents has drafted a plan which has been submitted to Secretary Dulles and Mr. Lodge. It asks that the United States call for a cease-fire in the Quemoy-Matsu area, for a simultaneous promise of withdrawal of Nationalist troops to Formosa and the demilitarization of the area; requests the UN to call a conference of interested nations to negotiate for permanent peace in the Formosa area; seat the People's Republic of China in the UN to facilitate negotiation and submit the present status of the off-shore islands and Formosa for an opinion of the International Court of Justice pending a plebiscite in Formosa.

Mrs. Stewart pointed out that when weighing the question of this nation's commitments to Nationalist China and Chiang Kai-shek against the possibilities of going to war against the Chinese Republic, we should remember that in the past the Chinese have never been conquered and that if this nation should use nuclear weapons against the Chinese, it would lose the support and good will of every other Asian nation.

She declared that the administration stands practically alone in its position on Nationalist China and Formosa and said almost no authority outside of this government believes that the Quemoy's are necessary for the defense of Formosa.

Speaking about admittance of Communist China into the UN, she said "How can you leave the largest nation in the world outside the council table? How can we talk about disarming the world if the arrangements are not to include a nation with 600 million inhabitants?"

"We must say to Chiang, the peace of the whole world is more vital than our support for you," she declared. "The UN should be given every support in its efforts to settle this question. We must not risk a general war."

Mrs. Stewart also spoke of the efforts of WIL and other social action groups in the world towards general disarmament and said "The truth of the matter is that many people in the United States government really don't want disarmament. Mr. Dulles does not really support disarmament. He believes that if you just rattle nuclear weapons over people's heads, they will behave. We believe that security can no longer be based on which nation has the largest stockpile of bombs."

She spoke of the many protests made from all parts of the world about the continuance of nuclear testing and said that many in Washington believe the United States would not have agreed to the international talks scheduled for the end of this month had not the recent United Nations report on the effects of radiation been so grave.

Mrs. Stewart commented on the fact that the stock market goes down in this country when there is too much talk of peace, and added that this nation's economy does not have to be geared to war. Disarmament would not bring on a depression, she said, but could be made to do exactly the opposite. Industry could be re-tooled for the purposes of more food, better education, extended travel, and to raise the living standard of the entire world, she declared.

Taxes could be cut, she stressed, if we had a peace-time economy. Mrs. Stewart said her work in Washington as a WIL lobbyist and with the Methodist church - she is an ordained and practicing minister - had convinced her that democracy does work and can be made to work much better than it now does. "I have faith in the people," she said. "If we are given the facts, and make our wishes known, we will take the course which will lead to world peace and a better life for everyone."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Rex Nicodemus, secretary of the Medford UN chapter.

Buying spread through all major groups in the market with the nonferrous metals particularly strong. There was a long list of issues at new highs for the year.

Fractional gains predominated in this group with a number of the leaders at new highs, including Baltimore & Ohio, Nickel Plate and Louisville & Nashville.

In the nonferrous metals, Magna was the standout with a gain of more than five points at its high. It lost part of the gain on realizing.

Rocket to Moon Due Next Week End

Washington - (UPI) - The United States will make its second attempt to send a rocket to the moon next week end, the scientific publication Washington Science Trends said today.

The first try to put a picture-taking satellite in orbit around the moon failed Aug. 17 when the multi-stage rocket blew up after 77 seconds of flight.

The moon is in a favorable position for such a launching only a few days each month. Next week end will be the favorable period for October.

The Air Force did not try to launch a moon rocket during the favorable days of September.
