By FRANK JENKINS

I wonder how many of those present the other day at the dedication of Cope's Big Bend power plant in the Klamath river below Keno remember that bleak day a decade and a half ago when a party of U. S. engineers arrived in the Basin to disclose to us that they were going to work on the century-old plan to divert the Klamath river down through the lava beds to the Pit, whence its waters would find their way into Shasta dam.

It was a rugged situation. If the proposal had gone through to completion, the Klamath river valley in Oregon and California would now be an approximation of the Owens valley.

FORTUNATELY, it didn't go through. Running SCARED, we started a battle to keep our water. Victory came when we finished up and got through the legislatures of Oregon and California and the congress of the United States the Klamath River compact — which protects our water for all time.

THE Klamath river is the No. 2 power stream of the Pacific Coast. Its total potential is nearly a million kilowatts — two Bonneville or one Grand Coulee.

Power is one of the basic essentials of industrial development. The other essentials are useful raw materials, a market for the finished products and transportation to get the finished products to the market expeditiously and economically.

Here in our mythical State of Jefferson, we have all of these. But, without water, all of them would be useless. Water is the magic ingredient.

FULL development of the Klamath waters, of course is primarily important to the Klamath Basin, which reaches from the high deserts of the far interior to the Pacific ocean.

But the Klamath development can serve as a PATTERNS for all of Southern Oregon and Northern California. The Klamath's headwaters are STORED. That is to say, the winter's excess precipitation is RETAINED IN THE RIVER'S UPPER REACHES instead of being allowed to run away unused to the sea, often doing incidental damage in the way of floods in the run-off season.

When comes the arid summer, the winter's surplus is ready to be released for use in the river's lower reaches for all of the uses to which water is put in our Western economy.

That is the perfect answer to all of our Western water problems. What has been accomplished in the case of the Klamath can be accomplished in the case of all of our rivers.

Academy Exams Set November 7, Porter Announces

Washington, D. C.—Civil Service examinations for service academy candidates have been scheduled for Monday, Nov. 17, 1958, for young men interested in the U. S. Naval Academy, U. S. Air Force Academy and U. S. Military Academy.

The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D-Ore.) today reminded men between the ages of 17 and 22 to contact him no later than Oct. 13 if they wished to take the examination. Inquiries should be sent to the congressman's Washington, D. C., office, Room 324 House Office Building, to help the candidate meet the deadline, Porter said.

For the 1959 classes, Representative Porter has one vacancy to fill at the U. S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., and two vacancies at the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md. There are no vacancies to be filled at West Point next year from the Fourth Congressional District, he said.

Civil Service examinations will be given in several cities in the district. Each applicant will receive from Porter a letter of authorization to take the test. The location and time will be designated in the letter.

Porter said he would name alternates as well as principal appointments and he urged all interested men to apply. Candidates must be in good physical condition. They are required to take and pass a physical examination, and must have reached their 17th but not their 22nd birthday by July 1, 1959.

Examinations for the U. S. Coast Guard Academy and the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy are arranged differently.

Nationwide competitive examinations for entrance to the Coast Guard Academy will be held February 24 and 25, 1959. There are no appointments or geographical quotas for entrance, Porter said. Men interested should send their inquiries to Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington, D. C., before January 15, 1959. Requirements are similar to the other academies.

Irene Dunne Backs Right-To-Work Law

Hollywood—Actress Irene Dunne has refused to change her "wholehearted" support of California's Right-to-Work proposal.

Miss Dunne received a telegram from AFL-CIO President George Meany Sunday asking her to "reconsider" her stand on the November referendum which would outlaw the union shop.

The actress, who is an active Republican and has accepted an honorary post with supporters of the "Right-to-work measure," said she had "freely considered both sides of the question" before coming to a decision.

She told Meany in an answer to his telegram that she had not changed her mind. She declined to comment on a statement by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who accused her of "perhaps unwittingly allying herself with those who seek to enslave the American worker."

SOUND SLEEPER

Rome—A non-stop horn awakened nearly everyone in the neighborhood. The police they summoned found Francesco Porro, 43, fast asleep against the horn of his parked truck.

Quotes From the News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
Nashville, Tenn.—Gov. Frank Clement, on the dynamiting of integrated Clinton High school:
"We have a choice of education by democracy or education by dynamite. We will have law and order in Tennessee—so help me God!"

Washington—Russian scientist Abatoli A. Blagonravov, on Soviet plans for space exploration:
"Sooner or later most probably we will be able to send up a man-carrying Sputnik that will be circling the earth. I can't say when that will be at present."

Nicosia, Cyprus—British Gov. Sir Hugh Foot, blaming new outbreaks of violence on Cypriot Archbishop Makarios:
"It is a tragic thing that the religious leader of the Greek community in Cyprus should so seriously deceive and mislead them. It is a terrible thing that he should openly encourage them to violence."

New York—Milwaukee Braves pitcher Warren Spahn, after pitching the Braves third winning game in the World Series:
"Tired? Hell no. I could pitch relief tomorrow (Monday) if they need me—but I hope they don't."

Disarmament Seen At Top of UN List

United Nations, N. Y.—Tuesday and it was expected he would base a major part of his speech on the disarmament issue.

Pressure built up in the United Nations General assembly today to put the disarmament issue at the top of the list when the main political committee begins work on Wednesday.

India and the Soviet Union both filed draft resolutions with the UN Secretariat this week end calling for immediate suspension of nuclear weapons tests.

AEC Conducts Two Safety Experiments

Atomic Test Site, Nev.—Atomic Energy Commissions scientists Sunday conducted two nuclear safety experiments in a little more than two hours.

The seventh safety test was conducted at 6:19 a.m. (PST) with the firing of a device held 400-feet aloft by a balloon at Yucca Flats.

Two hours and five minutes later a device, called "Colfax" was fired at the bottom of a 500-foot shaft. No outside fallout was reported by the AEC.

The first test, dubbed "Hidalgo" was reported to have been "an extremely low nuclear reaction." Some fallout was recorded near the site.

Rockefeller Center in the center of Manhattan measures about 13 acres.
