Pears Rate Fourth For Farm Income

Salem - Cattle and wheat continued as Oregon's first and second farm income producers in 1957, with dairying and pears in third and fourth place, according to Robert J. Stewart, state director of agriculture.

This information is contained in the first USDA report giving a detailed breakdown of Oregon's farm gate receipts last year. The new figures give a revised look at the total 1957 farm income, now placed at $397,372,000. This is lower than the preliminary figures released earlier this year.

Farmer's cash receipts on the four top commodities in 1957 were: cattle and calves, $63.4 million; wheat, $49.6 million; dairying, $47 million and pears, $20.7 million. Steward points out these are gross income figures, not net income. He also says the same report shows Oregon gross income per farm gained $98 in 1957 - from $8157 to $8255. But net income declined $173 - from $2830 in 1956 to $2657 in 1957.

Shrimp Fishing Closure Rescinded

Seattle - (UPI) - An order calling for a 4 1/2-month closure of the ocean shrimp fishery off the Washington coast was rescinded today by State Fisheries Director Milo Moore.

The closure was to have become effective Nov. 1 for the purpose of protecting the industry during spawning time. The order had the support of most Washington shrimp fishermen.

However, Moore said, the Oregon Fish Commission declined to adopt a similar regulation, claiming lack of biological data under the Oregon law prohibited commission action at this time. Without the concurrence of the Oregon commission, Moore explained, it would be useless to restrict Washington shrimp fishermen operating along the coast.

Man's Death Said Self-Inflicted

Yreka - George L. Duff, 64, Tustin, has been released by Siskiyou County Sheriff A. E. (Al) Cotter. He was held in connection with the death of Walter Odell Ramsey, 60, San Diego county carpenter union business agent.

Ramsey was found dead in his car near Happy Camp Sept. 22 with gunshot wounds in his head.

Duff, according to Cotter, was held because he hitchhiked from the scene to Yreka, where he boarded a bus for southern California. The men had been in the Happy Camp area on a hunting trip. Final reports from a pathologist and from the California bureau of criminal investigation and identification had established that Ramsey "died of self-inflicted wounds."

The reports included fingerprint evidence showing that "only Ramsey had handled the gun, a Luger pistol, at any time," that two gunshot wounds in Ramsey's head were contact wounds, indicating the gun had been pressed against the victim's head; and that a bullet through the jaw believed originally to have been fired downward had coursed upward instead.
