

Potpourri

"We Methodists have something to account for in Chiang Kai-shek," admitted Mrs. Annalee Stewart of Washington, D. C., when she spoke for the United Nations' chapter here last Saturday night. Mrs. Stewart, who is legislative secretary-polite term for a lobbyist in her case—for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, believes that somewhere along the years since his conversion to Christianity the Chinese Generalissimo lost his perspective and now seeks only to maintain his own power, regardless of the consequences to the rest of the world.

The word "lobbyist" still has a distasteful sound to many, in spite of the fact that actually anyone who attempts to change the thinking and possible voting of a legislator is in a sense a lobbyist. In Mrs. Stewart's case, she not only has the reputation of being a hard-working and efficient lobbyist, but is a Methodist minister who is co-pastor of a Washington, D. C. church with her husband. From the lecture platform she gives the impression of being a calm, well-informed person with a deep sense of urgency about changing the thinking of the world from war to peace.

Mrs. Stewart started her speech by warning her audience that many persons might not like what she would say, that she might even shock some, but that she was telling the truth. Mrs. Stewart told about how a delegation of citizens representing seven states of the union and bearing a petition with 10,000 signatures asking for cessation of the nuclear tests was refused admittance to the White House. The delegation was told, she said, that President Eisenhower's calendar was too full to permit them any time. Permission was then sought to present the petition to some member of his staff. This also was refused. The delegation at length handed the petition, with 10,000 names, to the guard at the White House gate.

Imagine the emotions of the members of the delegation, she said, when that night on television they saw the President photographed with representatives of the baseball manufacturers of America receiving as a gift the millionth Potpourri questioned Mrs. Stewart about this further. "The Women's International League of Peace and Freedom has been organized for 43 years," Mrs. Stewart said. "President Eisenhower is the first president of the United States to refuse to see anyone representing our organization."

The league, it might be pointed out here, was founded by Jane Addams, distinguished social worker and humanitarian who received the Nobel Peace prize for her work.

Mrs. Stewart said that the peace delegation was eventually received by Congresswoman Edith Green of Oregon. (Mrs. Stewart added that Mrs. Green is considered by many in Washington to be the ablest of the congresswomen now serving in the capital. She further said that regardless of politics and personalities, Senator Wayne Morse of this state has performed a great service for this nation, particularly in the field of civil liberties.)

Mrs. Stewart did repeat something which shocked Potpourri. She reminded her audience that only a few days ago, Madam Chiang Kai-shek had said, in a nation-wide broadcast in this country, that she (Madame Chiang) encouraged the United States to bomb the people of Red China. "The Chinese are her own people," said Mrs. Stewart. "What kind of a woman is she?"

Mrs. Stewart, it might be said, displayed a much more humanitarian attitude toward the Generalissimo and his wife. When questioned about the fate of the two should the United States withdraw its support, Mrs. Stewart said they should not be turned over to the People's Republic officials on the mainland, for they would surely be executed.

Instead, Mrs. Stewart declared that since the Chiang Kai-sheks have a private fortune, and own a large and comfortable home in this country, she believed they should be permitted to spend their declining years here if the turn of events should force them to leave Formosa. Mrs. Stewart's organization believes that eventually the Formosans should be permitted to vote on whether or not they want Chiang in their country. Formosa, the speaker said, is one of this nation's important bases—one of 950 in 73 countries of the world, according to WIL.

Potpourri listened to quite another type of speaker Tuesday night—Emily Kimbrough, well known author and lecturer who is simply a fabulous teller of stories. When examined in the light of the morning after, La Kimbrough's stories aren't much funnier than others—she just tells them funnier.

The stories which she told from the platform were utterly hilarious, but the ones she told at a party later given by the Dan Hulls were even better. For instance, how she was "wired for sound" when she and her family were on one of Ed Murrow's shows. It was news to most of those who heard her talk in the Hull living room—and had been a surprise to Miss K. at the time of the appearance—that the technicians in charge of such television programs arrange wires, a microphone and two batteries under the subject's clothing. The men tactfully explained to Miss Kimbrough what they must do and said she could choose either to do the "wiring" herself, with them giving instructions from around the corner, or give them permission to do the work.

The bewildered author asked what was usual and one of the men said the only celebrity ever to refuse to let him "wire" her was Marilyn Monroe. Miss Kimbrough said she finally told them to go ahead and her description of the process had the entire roomful of listeners howling with laughter.

"Every technician who went by me for the next few hours stuck his hand down the back of my neck to turn switches on or off or adjust batteries," she recalled. "When I was 'on' every move I made and everything I said went

Throughout the entire United States October is observed as parent-teacher association membership month. John C. Crawford is shown paying dues for himself and Mrs. Crawford to Mrs. Kent Blackhurst, membership chairman for Roosevelt Parent-Teacher association. According to Mrs. James C. Parker, Grand Rapids, Mich., president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the group hopes to increase by five per cent last year's membership, which was 11,018,000. Mrs. Parker says the PTA movement needs the help of thousands more interested citizens to aid in striving toward "the best possible homes, schools, communities in the best possible world." — (Knackstedt photo)

Lincoln PTA Plans Meeting

First meeting of the fall for Lincoln Parent-Teacher association will be held at Lincoln school gymnasium, Maple and Bartlett streets. It is set for Friday, October 10, at 2:30 p.m. after a half-hour open house in which parents may meet the school faculty.

Lincoln PTA officers point out that teachers have a better understanding of a child if parents discuss with them his ability and habits. For the program an informed panel will discuss youth activities in Medford. On the panel will be Police Chief Charles Champlin speaking for the Pal club; Robert Jones of the YMCA, Mrs. Thomas Lytle, Girl Scouts; Mrs. Ruthe Gerety, Camp Fire Girls and a representative of the Boy Scouts. By hearing the discussion, parents will gain information about after-school activities available for their children.

Child care will be provided during the meeting and anyone needing transportation may contact the president, Mrs. Sebastiano J. Fagone, at Spring 2-9061. Anyone interested in attending the meeting is invited to do so. Refreshments will be served by mothers of children in the sixth grade, supervised by Mrs. William Troupe, hospitality chairman.

Officers for the coming year are Mrs. Fagone, Mrs. Dexter Williams, vice president; Mrs. John Weber, treasurer; Mrs. Glen Stewart, secretary; Mrs. Ethel Chastain, faculty representative.

Roosevelt PTA To Begin Year

Roosevelt Parent-Teacher association's fall "kick off" meeting will be held Friday, October 10, at 1:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium and parents are asked to sit in the section assigned to their child's teacher in order that parents and teachers may become better acquainted.

The annual membership drive is being conducted this month and parents wishing to become members will have an opportunity during the meeting. It is not necessary to have children in the school to become a member of the PTA.

A question box will be available for parents having suggestions for questions for the PTA organization.

A baby sitter service is available for small children. The executive board will serve refreshments.

Mrs. Laurel Case is Program chairman.

Square Up Dates Set

The second annual Southern Oregon Square Up has been set for January 31-February 1 in the ballroom at the Britt Memorial Student center at Southern Oregon college in Ashland, according to Kenneth Hood, Medford. More than 100 couples are expected to attend.

Mr. Hood is president of the Rogue Valley Square Dance Callers association which sponsors the two-day jamboree.

Square dancers from throughout Oregon and northern California are expected to attend.

Mr. Hood said that acoustics in the ballroom have been tested, and proved excellent for the two-day event. Dancing is scheduled Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, with an "after party" Saturday night and a Sunday morning breakfast.

Arrangements still are being worked out for the latter events, he said.

Swamp to Meet In Grants Pass

Members of Cebu Swamp, Military Order of the Lizards, will meet at the home of Mrs. Ted Cotter, Route 2, Box 354, Grants Pass, Saturday, October 11. A covered dish dinner will be served at 1 p.m. Members may call Mrs. James Cech for transportation.

If You Want to Look Younger Use Purplish-Red Lighting

By PATRICIA McCORMICK United Press International New York—If you want to look 10 years younger, be seen only in places where lights give off a purplish-red hue.

A man who's been influencing human behavior with color for 21 years said he has documentary proof that the dynamic suggestion really works.

"And if you doubt it," added Howard Ketcham, "flood your bathroom with purplish-red and look in the mirror." The consultant has originated color and design plans for every make of car, for fountain pens, caskets, supermarkets, railroads, the telephone company and for just about every industry.

Color affects more than appearance. It can, said the expert, tattle on your psyche. And the colors in your environment influence you to a startling degree.

Sees Fear in Grey The popularity of the grey flannel suit along Madison avenue, advertising row, is a sign to Ketcham that the men who wear it fear the client. He said:

"Grey is a mousey color. It doesn't offend. It fades into the background. These men know they can't offend the client or overshadow him."

Some years ago, the Blackfriars Bridge in London was repainted from black to green. With the color change Ketcham noted, came a 33 per cent reduction in the number of suicides there.

When a supermarket wanted to do something to perk up sales in luxury foods, a subtle arrow design—in red—was worked into the floor covering. It pointed at the luxury foods and, said Ketcham, the sub-conscious of shoppers responded.

Yellow Good for Work

In an office, Ketcham said, the coldness of pale green walls frequently gives girls the chills. In one office the girls shed their jackets and sweaters after the chairs were dressed in orange. The temperature hadn't changed, but they felt warmer.

Other points made by Ketcham:

—An olive green room is comforting to persons with ulcers.

—Yellow walls increase brain activity and make a person feel good, wide awake.

—Donations increase when charities use pale blue-green envelopes in their mail solicitations.

—Red stimulates pulse, brain and appetite.

—At dinner parties, the purplish-red that makes a person look ten years younger also stretches the beverages. "At least," said Ketcham, "most persons relax faster."

Enjoy summer fun in a king-size way... give an Indoor Picnic with King Size COKE!

Whatever the weather, enjoy the fun of a picnic...right at home! Just take your pick of the recipes given here, then shop at your grocer's for all the fixings. Of course he's featuring that big picnic favorite...King Size Coke! What a handy way to get more of the real refreshment, more of the cold crisp taste of Coca-Cola. King Size Coke is great for king-size thirsts, so stock up on cartons of Coca-Cola in big King Size today.

HAWAIIAN RIBS. Combine 1 can condensed consommé with 1 cup orange marmalade, ½ cup each catsup and vinegar. Marinate pork ribs in sauce, grill, basting often with sauce. Delicious with Coke.

Garnish your Hawaiian ribs with pineapple and green pepper cubes on picks, half tomatoes stuffed with coleslaw. It's these little touches that make the difference... just as Coke makes a difference, too.

MAKE THE CLEAN-UP EASY: With paper plates, napkins and cups you can clean up in a jiffy, and they're part of the fun of the picnic. Just fill the cups with Coke and you're set for a pleasant picnic.

YOUR GROCER IS FEATURING ALL THE MAKINGS!

TUNA SALAD ROLLS. Add diced celery, onion and capers to drained, flaked tuna. Moisten with salad dressing. Heap into split and buttered rolls. Let guests help themselves to Coke, served in an ice-filled plastic bucket (available at your grocer's). People do help themselves to Coke over 58 million times a day.

SNACK TRAY. A picnic standby—second only to Coca-Cola! Coke actually refreshes up your taste between bites, makes every mouthful more delicious. No wonder Coke is a favorite with food. So treat guests to the real refreshment—Coca-Cola. They'll appreciate your good taste in serving Coca-Cola, ice-cold!

PICNIC STICKS. Place slice of American cheese between two slices of canned luncheon meat. Slice into sticks, fasten with picks. This easy "finger food" tastes so good with sparkling Coca-Cola. In fact, the cold crisp taste of Coke brings out the flavor of almost any dish you serve.

Remember—COKE and Good Taste go together!
