

For the first time in the history of Jackson county parent-teacher associations, four men hold the top offices in one unit, the Sams Valley association. While no proof is available, it is believed locally that this is also the first time any unit in Oregon has had only men officers. Pictured here over the coffee cups are (left to right) William Brewster, principal of the school and PTA treasurer; Victor H. Croxton, president; C. W. McDonough, vice-president, and John H. Dean, secretary. Mr. Croxton is a retired navy officer, Mr. McDonough is a farmer and Mr. Dean is also a teacher at the school.

To celebrate the fact that the Oregon Shakespearean festival has produced all of the Bard's plays — an accomplishment of which few, if any, other festivals are able to boast, Tudor guild honored Angus A. Bowmer (at right) at a dinner Monday night at Mon Desir. Mr. Bowmer is founder and producing director of the festival, and completion of the canon during the 1958 season fulfilled a hope and dream which the director has had throughout the years. Mr. Bowmer, pictured here with A. C. Allen Jr., Medford member of the festival association board, was presented a portrait of himself in his Shylock costume for last summer's production of "The Merchant of Venice" made by Dwaine Smith, a lettered scroll which is the work of Dr. Margery Bailey of Palo Alto, Calif., and a set of binoculars from the guild and board members.

Miss Barbara Read (at left) and Miss Janet Young have entered their horses in the Grand National Livestock exposition in San Francisco October 31-November 9. Miss Read will take her half-Arabian palomino mare, Arabi's Image, and Miss Young will show her saddlebred mare, Stonewall's Madge. Miss Read has entered two classes, and Miss Young, three.

MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE
 MEDFORD, OREGON, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1958

October Brings
 Autumn Rush
 Of Activities

Mrs. Richard D. Jewett, wife of the sports editor of the Medford Mail Tribune, poured for the tea which followed the eighth annual reporter's school held by the women's department of the paper Tuesday afternoon at Girls' Community club. Mrs. Ira V. Lawrence Jr., reporter for Mistletoe camp, Royal Neighbors of America, is shown with Mrs. Jewett.

Each year some of the reporters attending The Tribune school are introduced and commended. Introduced this year were Mrs. E. R. Hoppe (at left), reporter for Zuleima temple, Daughters of the Nile; Mrs. Clarence O. Lack, who reports for Medford Garden club, Medford Home Extension unit and Friday Luncheon club, and Mrs. Elwood B. Hedberg, reporter for Rogue Valley Memorial Hospital auxiliary and who also wrote last year for Jefferson Parent-Teacher association.

Among group representatives who attended the Mail Tribune's annual reporter's school Tuesday were Mrs. Clinton Neeley (at left) and Mrs. Ronald Hall of Alpha Beta chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority. They are being served by Mrs. Earl H. Adams, whose husband is city editor of the newspaper. More than 80 women attend the afternoon class and tea.
