Barman Admits Seattle Arson

Seattle—Robert W. Layton, 32, a part-time bartender, Friday confessed starting the Hollywood Hotel fire here Aug. 25 in which a man and a woman died.

Layton told Fire Inspector R. T. Timlin and Detective Cliff Beach he stayed and watched the fire for an hour after he started it.

Layton said he then went to his nearby hotel room, had two bottles of beer and went to bed.

He gave no reason for starting the fire, which routed tenants from their rooms about 2 a.m. and nearly destroyed the hotel. Killed in the blaze were Mrs. Dorothy Jean Blycau, 52, and William E. Officer, 56.

negro Prisoner Stabbed, Killed In 'Difficulty'

Trenton, N.J.—(UPI)—A Negro prisoner was stabbed to death and a white convict was shot in the leg in a racial battle at Trenton state prison Friday.

Warden George Goodman said "racial difficulty" led to the outbreak that involved about 15 inmates in the recreation yard for "troublemakers." Most of them were injured.

The warden said all convicts who took part in the fist-and-stone fight were being questioned in an effort to pin down the killer of Willard Jones, 28, of Philadelphia.

Jones was stabbed with a weapon consisting of two pieces of small steel rod, tied together with shoelaces. The weapon was thrown over the prison wall and was recovered outside.

George Stolz, 29, of Glendale, N.Y., was shot in the leg by a guard when he tried to climb over a gate in the inner prison yard. He was reported in fair condition in the prison hospital.

Both Jones and Stolz were serving terms for robbery.

AEC In Hurry To Beat Deadline

Las Vegas—(UPI)—The Atomic Energy commission, rushing to complete the last six shots in its 10-shot series before Oct. 31 proposed deadline on nuclear testing, has announced a full-scale detonation would take place today from a balloon over Frenchman Flat, 65 miles north east of here.

The exact hour for the detonation was not announced. The AEC exploded its fourth nuclear device Friday from a 100-foot tower over Yucca Flat. It was a "small" device of less than a single kiloton which completely disintegrated the large steel tower.

State May Bring Suit In Oxbow Fish Deaths

Salem—(UPI)—Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton said yesterday he was considering the possibility of legal action against Idaho Power company for alleged destruction of salmon and steelhead at the firm's Oxbow dam site on the Snake river.

Thornton said that "from my information it would appear that the loss and damage to fish was caused by the collapsing of the foundation of the fish trap constructed on the Oregon side of the river, necessitating lowering the normal flow in the main channel of the river to about 2,000 cubic feet per second. As the result of low flow the fish were either trapped in pools above the fish trap or they perished below the main coffer dam."

As the result of low flow the fish were either trapped in pools above the fish trap or they perished below the main coffer dam."

Concurrent Jurisdiction

Thornton said that from his examination of legal authorities the state may be in a position to bring action against the power company for destruction of fish. He said both states have concurrent jurisdiction on the river but that this could be solved by Oregon and Idaho joining as plaintiffs in either the state or federal courts.

P. W. Schneider, Oregon game director, said loss of fish at the Oxbow site would be felt for years to come. He said at least 2000 chinook salmon and numerous steelhead were lost during the change-over from the emergency trapping and hauling operations at the site to the regular trapping facilities. The regular trap is now back in operation.

Albert Day, Oregon Fish commission director, said the practice of killing male salmon and using the fish for fingerling food was a well-established procedure. He explained it in answer to a statement by Idaho Power which said the practice "has received little attention and no adverse comment." Day said more male salmon than are needed enter the hatchery ponds and are killed to conserve the oxygen supply.

Army engineers said the 1958 run of chinook passing Bonneville dam on the Columbia was the highest since 1947, the record year. The 1958 chinook run through September totals 424,300 fish. The 1947 record was 480,377.
