Capt. Dew Assumes Command of Carrier

Navy Capt. I. Lowell Dew, formerly of Medford, assumed command of the aircraft carrier, USS Boxer, in ceremonies at San Diego, Oct. 14. He is the brother of Roger Dew, Central Point, and Mrs. Stephen Nye, and Mrs. Virginia Sherwood, Medford.

The carrier is assigned to the Atlantic fleet in anti-submarine defense. Oct. 15 she left for the east coast via the Panama canal.

Captain Dew recently completed helicopter training at Pensacola, Fla., prior to assuming his new command. A Medford High school graduate, Captain Dew was promoted to his present rank in 1952. He is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., and the Naval War college, Newport, R.I.

The Dewks make their home in Norfolk, Va.

Holmes Hopeful Of New Industry

Salem —UPB— Hopes of a major new industrial development were expressed yesterday by Gov. Robert D. Holmes following receipt of a telegram from a representative of the International Paper company.

The Governor had tentatively scheduled a flying trip to Mobile, Ala., headquarters of International Paper next week to discuss company plans for Oregon expansion when he received the telegram from Harlan D. Shope, industrial engineer for the firm.

However, the trip will be delayed until the company's board of directors receives a report from Swope on proposed location of their new pulp and paper mill.

Shope had praise for the governor and state agencies, the newspapers and civic organizations for presenting "an inviting and liveable atmosphere for our country."

Except while asleep or sitting on their eggs, chimney swifts spend almost their entire lives in flight.

Five Spot Fires Near Camp White

Camp White — Five spot fires were put out by the Camp White domiciliary fire department Saturday morning, firemen said.

One occurred at the Bargain Lumber company, Avenue G and 25th st. Another was put out at the Medford Forest Products company, a third at the Red Gulf Cedar mill on old Highway 99, a fourth at the Ross and Olson mill and a fifth at Oregon Veneer.

Except for the Red Gulf Cedar fire, all fires were caused by high winds scattering sparks from burners on dry grass and brush. A pile of bark was being burned at the Red Gulf mill when the trash fire got out of control, firemen said. No damage was reported.

Drilling Group to Meet in Klamath
Klamath Falls — The Oregon Drilling association will hold its annual state convention in Klamath Falls Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. All persons connected with the drilling industry are invited to attend, and membership in the association is not required.

Apartment Mishap Brings Damage Suit

A complaint has been filed in circuit court by Florence Doney, 222 South Central ave., against Katherine Eck, 203 North Peach st., asking $6,500 general damages and $2,500 medical expenses for injuries received in a fall at the Eck apartment house on South Central ave. March 12, 1958.

The plaintiff charges that the defendant was negligent and careless in failing to keep and maintain passage ways, walks and yards at the apartment house. The complaint states that Florence Doney broke her left ankle and suffered other fractures when she tripped over firewood and refuse in the area.

Attorney for the plaintiff is George Rode, Medford.

State Workers First On Salem Fund's List

Salem —UPB— State government workers, with $32,989 contributed, were first on the Salem United Fund's list of division donors yesterday.

So far 63 per cent of $162,343 of the total quota has been collected. Twenty-eight of the 51 state agencies have passed the 100 per cent quota mark.

Diary of a Bird Watcher

Saturday, Oct. 11
I mentioned in my last column that I didn't think bluebirds came around our home place as much as they used to. So today when I went out there they were in the oak tree right in front. I am glad they came around because I like bluebirds.

There is another bird that I both like and dislike. It is the sapsucker. The species name is "yellow-bellied sapsucker", but the yellow belly is the least conspicuous marking on it. We aren't supposed to use the common names of subspecies any more (only the Latin ones) but in this case the old subspecies name is much more descriptive, "red-breasted sapsucker". Its whole head and neck are bright red. The other colors easily seen are black and white. This is why I like it I am fond of bright colors. The reason I don't like it is that it pecks holes in our trees so that the sap will ooze out for its later delectation. This isn't good for the trees. We chase it away sometimes but we can't spend all our time doing that. It was working a lot on a hawthorne tree, so my wife had me get some of the sticky stuff you put around tree trunks to keep ants from crawling up. She figured the bird wouldn't want to get stuck up and I believe her idea worked.

Monday, Oct. 13
Today my wife went along with J. H. and me on our morning trip. We decided to go up "Oregon Switzerland", which you reach by going out Hillcrest rd. and then going straight ahead instead of going toward the left up Roxy Anne. J. H. was the only one of us who has been to Switzerland and he says the scenery up this road looks more like Oregon than Switzerland; but we like Oregon all right, so we were happy.

We did particularly well on seeing birds in the thrush family: robins, varied thrushes, bluebirds, hermit thrushes and a solitary. We found quite a few other woodland type birds such as both kinds of kinglets, both white breasted and red breasted nuthatches, titmice and a flock of chestnut-backed chickadees. We watched a couple of pileated woodpeckers with special interest. As J. H. said, their loud pounding sounded as if they were chopping down trees. They have long necks and really hit the tree trunk with a lot of force. If we were to hammer like that with our heads we would beat our brains out; but they are made with special shock absorbers in their heads.

Tuesday, Oct. 14
A killdeer seems to have adopted a new lawn which was put in at the far corner of our place. I don't know what it feeds on, but there must be some kinds of living creatures in that green grass.

Thursday, October 16
This morning I saw a flock of geese flying over. They were too far away to see the markings but later a man who was working here spoke about them. He said he heard them and they were Canadian "honkers", so maybe I can count them among the species seen from the home place.

The bluebirds have been staying with us. I see them almost every day. I haven't noticed them eating berries. They seem to be picking up insects among the trees. Most of the berries have now been eaten by the cedar waxwings.

Most of the birds seem well adapted to their way of feeding. For example the smallness of the lesser goldfinches makes it possible for them to perch gracefully on the top of the Michaelmas daisies. I have found a contrary example, though. A big flicker certainly looks awkward clinging to the flimsy Virginia creeper vines trying to reach the berries that he is so fond of.

Friday, Oct. 17
I have been in Medford for five years now. In fact we got to town on Oct. 9, 1953. I believe these have been the happiest five years of my life. A man is apt to find his happiness, or the lack of it, in three different fields: his work, his home life and his hobby. Fortunately indeed is a person (like me) who is happy in all three areas at once.

The first ten days in Medford I was too busy to make nature notes, but not long after that I began to make the observations which have continued ever since.—T.M.

Couple Smitten By Univac's Bow Joined At Altar

Hollywood —UPB— A starry-eyed young couple took their vows yesterday in a formal wedding that had the statistical blessings of Univac, the robot calculator which arrived at the conclusion they were "ideal mates."

Shirley Saunders and Robert Kardell, both 26, were joined in holy matrimony by Dr. Raymond I. Lindquist at the First Presbyterian church in the culmination of a romance estimated by the unemotional calculator.

Univac was fed statistical data on Miss Saunders, and advertising copy writer, and Kardell, a communications consultant, and found that their personalities, politics, religion, education and general outlook on life were in "perfect harmony." Neither had been married previously.

It all started as a stunt on Art Linkletter's NBC television show, "People Are Funny."

Linkletter followed through by acting as best man at the wedding.

This was Univac's first success as a matchmaker. The calculator's batting average in this respect is not so good since it has paired 20 other couples on the TV program as "ideal mates," but the idea failed to take root.

Principals To Study Setting Space Pace

Salem —UPB— General theme of the annual state meeting of Oregon elementary school principals when they meet here Oct. 20-21 will be "setting the pace in the age of space."

The conference is expected to draw about 600 elementary school administrators to study methods of improving curriculum in their schools.

Crash Injures Shady Cove Man

George G. Lane, 33, Shady Cove, was reported in good condition in Sacred Heart hospital Saturday following a two-car accident just south of Four-Corners on Crater Lake highway Friday night.

He is suffering from a dislocated hip, hospital attendants said.

Lane was injured when the car he was driving collided with one driven by Larry Frank Dupray, 17, of 3475 Lone Pine rd., Medford on the north slope of Snowy Butte hill suddenly, failed to go around the Dupray car and struck it in the left rear section with the right front end, officers said. The Dupray car landed in a ditch on the east side of the highway where Dupray was thrown out and his car demolished.

The Lane car continued on around the Dupray car and entered the ditch 50 feet ahead of Dupray's car.

Dupray complained of his neck hurting but apparently had no other injuries, state police said. He was treated at Rogue valley hospital for neck injuries.

There are more than 2,500 species of wasps in North America, but only the hornet, the yellow jacket and the mud-dauber, are considered troublesome to man.

Collins Pine Reaches Agreement With Union

Chester, Calif. — (UPB) — An agreement has been reached between Collins Pine company, Chester, Calif., and the Lumber and Sawmill Workers union calling for a 7½ cent hourly pay raise. The firm employs about 475 persons.
