

Handicapped Orphans of Vets Benefit by Change

Handicapped children of deceased war veterans have been given two "breaks" by an amendment to the War Orphans Education program, recently signed into law by the President, S. T. Brannock, officer in charge, Medford Veterans administration office, said today.

The new law now allows boys and girls with handicaps to begin special types of War Orphans training when they reach age 14. Previously they generally had to wait until their 18th birthday to begin, he said.

Types of training they can take at age 14 are special restorative training, such as Braille reading, lip reading or other courses designed to overcome handicaps, or special vocational training.

The law also now authorizes VA to approve the enrollment of handicapped young people in rehabilitation centers offering special training. Included are centers operated by state or local governments or by private agencies. The enrollments were not originally provided for under the program, Brannock noted.

War Orphans Education is for the sons and daughters of World War I, World War II or Korea veterans who died in military service or as a result of service-connected conditions after their discharge, Brannock said.

Heat canned green beans in their own liquor. Drain, and add a generous lump of butter, a sprinkling of chili powder and a few capers.

Usually, the schooling is for young men and women from 18 to 23. While in school War Orphans students receive VA allowances of up to $110 a month.

Details about War Orphans Education, as well as about the advantages now available to handicapped students, are available at the Medford Veterans administration office, 33 North Riverside ave., Medford.

Officers Named By Junior RC

Bud Quinney was elected president of the Jackson County chapter of the Junior Red Cross at a meeting in the chapter house, 60 Hawthorne ave., last week.

Other officers elected are David Irvin, vice president, and Dianne De Lorme, secretary.

Students from Hedrick Junior High, Medford High, Lincoln, Howard, Jackson McLoughlin Junior High, Washington, Griffin Creek, Jefferson, Oak Grove, Crater High school, West Side, Hoover, Talent and Roosevelt schools attended.

Plans were made for decorations and favors for Camp White during the holidays. Students also were asked to collect clothing for infants and small children.

Reports were given by Quinney, Dianne De Lorme and Danny Eddy, who attended Junior Red Cross Training camps during the summer.

Senior sponsors for the service who attended are Mrs. John S. Day, Mrs. Joe Hearin, Mrs. Myers Jones, Mrs. Reese Alexander and Mrs. Paul Lee.

Scouting Program Varied for Girls In Rogue Council

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles about agencies served by the United Medford Crusade. Today's article discusses the Girl Scouts.)

"You can count on her, can she count on you?" That is the three-year theme of the Girl Scouts of America.

Every adult member of the organization sincerely believes that you can count on her. That is why they are happy to give of their time, their energies and their skills.

The Girl Scout movement is not a leisure time social club for girls and women. It is an organization based on the belief that its program and promise and laws help girls to become self-reliant, resourceful young citizens.

Through the program activities, girls have fun and adventure, give service to others, and learn democracy by being active members in a troop.

Service to Others
Service to others is a fundamental part of Girl Scouting. Senior Scouts do such work as office aides and hospital aides, conduct a clean-up campaign by taking down old posters after elections. Intermediates serve as baby sitters at PTA meetings and election centers or they might rake leaves for a neighbor. Brownies love to make tray favors for people in hospitals. These and many similar projects give Girl Scouts opportunities to serve others.

In the Medford district, there are 1158 girls and 425 adults. Adults help girls by guiding and planning long-term programs and ideas and, by finding the necessary means to carry out these plans.

Money from the United Medford Crusade helps pay salaries of two professionals and two clerical staff members. It provides training materials and places for the training of adult workers, which is essential in making better leaders.
