

Pleads Guilty To Liquor Charge

Raymond Leslie McVay, route 1, box 16B, Jacksonville, entered a plea of guilty to furnishing liquor to a minor in district court Thursday afternoon before Judge James M. Main.

McVay was fined $105 and sentenced to six months in the county jail subject to be placed on parole when fine is paid.

Also appearing in district court was Loyd Smith, Medford, who had entered a plea of guilty earlier this month to making a false statement in writing to procure benefit. He was paroled on condition he return to California and make restitution on a $62.37 check.

WE'RE AHEAD

Oak Ridge, Tenn.—UPI—Soviet research on drugs to provide protection against radiation damage is about five years behind American research, according to David G. Doherty of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. Doherty estimates that the chemicals being investigated for this purpose by the Russians are only half as effective as protective drugs under study in the U.S.

Mental Health Group Hears Service Report

The monthly meeting of the Jackson County Mental Health committee met last week with Miss Celia Walker presiding.

Dr. Harry Danielson reported on the volunteer Marriage Counselling Service. He spoke appreciatively of the skills of the 10 volunteer counselors who are serving, and of the profitable conferences they have been having each week. It was again pointed out that any people who wish to avail themselves of this service should call the Southern Oregon Child Guidance Clinic at Spring 3-3174.

Mrs. L. E. Gustison reported on the work of the publicity committee of which she is chairman. It was pointed out that since a chief purpose of the volunteer service is to demonstrate the need for a permanent professional service, it is important to keep explaining these things to the community.

A speakers bureau has been set up and speakers already have been furnished to some organizations. A program dealing with the counselling service will be presented over KBES-TV on Oct. 25.

Mrs. Robert Minear reported on bills that are to be introduced in the legislature by the Legislative Committee on Mental Retardation and Emotional Disturbance. There was some expression of disapproval of these bills by members of the committee, but it was agreed that they were deserving of further study.

Ex-AEC Member To Talk Tuesday

Dr. Joseph S. Butts, formerly a member of the staff of the Atomic Energy Commission, and now a professor at Oregon State college, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Medford chapter of the United Nations Association here Tuesday evening, Oct. 21.

The meeting will be in the auditorium of the county courthouse, and members of the United Nations association here particularly urge the public to attend, as the meeting is in conjunction with United Nations Week.

Dr. Butts served on the staff of the Atomic Energy Commission from 1952 until 1954 as assistant chief of the biology branch. He has been consultant to the Atomic Energy commission since 1954, and has traveled extensively, particularly in the Middle East.

His foreign assignments include participation in the Atomic Energy exhibit being sponsored by the U.S. Information agency in Berlin, to further the peace time application of atomic energy. In 1956 he accepted a three-month assignment with the Inter-departmental committee on Nutrition for National Defense. The team was sent to Pakistan and Iran. In 1957 and 1958 he worked with the office of European Economic Cooperation in the peaceful use of atomic energy. On this assignment he worked in 19 countries.

Dr. Butts is presently professor of biochemistry and head of the department of agricultural chemistry at Oregon State college. He will speak also at the Medford Rotary club Tuesday noon, and at Grants Pass Wednesday.

Candidate Parade

(Editor's note: This is one of a series of articles concerning candidates for state, federal and county office, up for election at the November general election. They were prepared by the candidates themselves, or on their behalf, at the invitation of the Mail Tribune.)

MARIJANE DUNCAN (Democratic candidate for State Representative)

Having spent several months working as a legislative secretary in the 1957 sessions of the Oregon state legislature, I know something of the many complex problems that will be facing the 1959 session. I know, too, that long hours and hard work will be the lot of anyone who goes to Salem as a representative. Still I seek this task, feeling it to be worthwhile; for it is more than the opportunity to serve my country; to me, it would be a privilege to have a part however small, in the affairs of our state.

Such knotty problems as a fair program of taxation, the continuing and expanding of our educational program, the careful budgeting of welfare funds, some revision of unemployment compensation laws, finding ways to encourage new industries to come into our state (and, as an important corollary, helping those we now have to expand and prosper) will come before the 1959 Legislature.

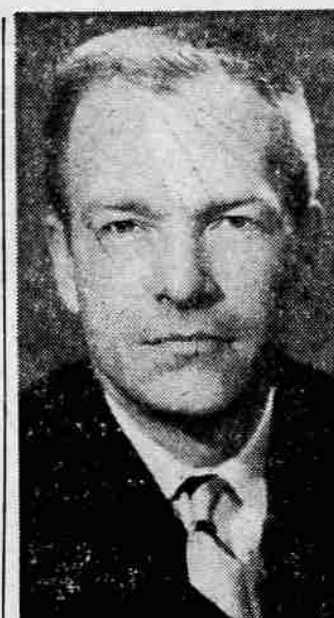

High taxes are the cry; but I feel that it is not the province of a candidate to talk about cutting taxes before he or she is in a position to assess the needs of our state and the desires of our citizenry. Such promises are made by careless politicians, not honest candidates. It may be that new sources of revenue must eventually be found. But first, let us try to solve our tax problems positively—for instance, by a program of expansion of industries and payrolls.

There are neglected areas in our educational system, particularly at the elementary level. Every child in Oregon today does not have the same educational advantages, regulated only by his particular need and ability. This is an ideal we must strive to achieve. There is no way of providing adequate education for all our young people that does not cost money. But is there a better investment in our future?

Our department of planning and development has already received thousands of inquiries from persons interested in settling in Oregon. It simply does not make sense to me to speak loudly of our disadvantages, much less to exaggerate them in order to make political hay. We have taxes—yes—but upon comparative analysis we find that our position with our sister states is not unfavorable. Besides taxes, we have an abundance of natural resources, a growing labor market, improving transportation facilities, increasing public and private power, and one of the country's best educational systems. We have unparalleled scenic beauty and fine recreational facilities.

It is my duty, and yours, especially in this Centennial year, to believe in our state, to work for her good, and to sell Oregon long—not short. Should you elect me in November, I pledge myself to this wholeheartedly, as well as to represent the people of Jackson county to the utmost of my ability.

ROBERT DUNCAN (Democratic candidate for State Representative)

Robert Duncan is seeking reelection as state representative, having served in the general and regular sessions of 1957. He is 37 years old, married to Marijane, and has five children. He has been a resident and practicing attorney in Medford since 1948. He was raised in Bloomington, Ill., attended the University of Alaska, Illinois Wesleyan, and is a graduate of Michigan Law school.

Duncan was a naval aviator and is still active in the naval reserve. He has sailed as an able-bodied seaman in the merchant marine, worked in the placer gold mines of Alaska, the hybrid seed corn industry of Illinois, and has worked in the banking and insurance fields. While living in Medford he has been active in a variety of civic affairs, including the Medford Crusade, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Active club, Juvenile court and Methodist church.

Although a freshman legislator, Duncan was chairman of the judiciary committee and served on four subcommittees of the important and powerful ways and means committee where all of the pending bills are considered. There he earned a reputation for economy, saving the taxpayers many dollars while still supporting progressive legislation. Duncan also served on the legislative counsel committee, as a mem-

Copy of Old German Newspaper Found

An 1889 copy of a German-language newspaper printed in Brooklyn, N. Y., was discovered behind an old painting recently by Mrs. Scott Brill, Trail.

The paper, the Brooklyn Zeitung, was dated Jan. 4 of that year. It apparently had been used as backing of the print in a frame by her parents before the turn of the century. Mrs. Brill said her parents were of Swedish ancestry, and she doesn't know how they happened to pick the old German-language paper, now yellowed with age, for the picture backing.

She discovered the paper when she took the frame off the picture for use with a different picture. She said she remembers the old print from her childhood.

Diabetes is the only major cause of death in which female mortality exceeds male mortality. Chances that a man will die of diabetes before reaching the age of 65 are 3.8 per 1,000; for women, it's 5.2.

Other communicable diseases reported included the whooping cough, Medford 1; strep throat, Medford 3; pneumonia, Ashland 2; infectious hepatitis, Ashland 1; pink eye, Ashland 1; mumps, Shady Cove 5; and German measles, Medford 1.
