Japanese Women Important In Business and Industry

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
Tokyo—(UPI)—The Japanese women's place, once strictly in the home, increasingly also is in business, industry, office and government.

I discussed the new role of Japan's women with Mrs. Setu Tanino who as director of the Women's and Minors' Bureau of the Ministry of Labor is the highest ranking woman in this nation's government. Mrs. Tanino, a widow of 50, said the increase of women in the labor force has been astonishingly fast since World War II and the 1947 constitution which guaranteed women equal pay for equal work, with men.

At the close of the war, she said, approximately two million women held jobs, mostly in factories. Today, more than six million are wage earners, making up almost one third of Japan's total labor force of 20 million. Twenty per cent are working wives, compared with 10 per cent when the war ended.

Women Joining Professions
She said the number of women factory workers is decreasing because of mechanization of industry. But women are becoming lawyers, taking banking jobs, jobs in retailoring, becoming beauticians, stenographers, typists, clerks, architects, draftsmen, and accountants, and selling insurance and real estate. There are some 9,000 women doctors, 250,000 nurses, 260,000 teachers, and some 170,000 in government jobs. The Japanese Diet (Parliament) has 15 women in the upper house—compared to the one woman in the U. S. Senate—and nine in the lower.

Women also work as conductors on streetcars and buses, and many operate tiny shoeshine stands along Tokyo streets. Do Japanese men approve of working women in a society where traditionally their role has been in the home?

"Well," Mrs. Tanino smiled, "they treat us as equals . . . when we're past 30."

Explains Increase
Mrs. Tanino was graduated with a degree in social studies from Japan Women's college in 1927 and started her long government career with the Ministry of Interior. She moved to the Ministry of Labor when it was formed in 1947, and was appointed to her present job three years ago. She gave these reasons for

Art Show Announced By AAUW

The annual art show sponsored by Medford branch, American Association of University Women, will open Monday evening, November 3, at seven o'clock. It will be at the Medford Public Library, 413 West Main street, in the children's department on the lower floor. This is particularly appropriate since the first week in November is both National Art week and National Book week.

Mrs. Edwin Gebhard, chairman for the show, has announced that hours will be from 7 to 10 p.m. on Monday, November 3, and from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, November 4.

Work in the following media will be welcomed for showing: oil, water color, pastels, drawings, lithographs and etchings, block printing, serigraph printing (silk screen), ceramics, metal work, jewelry and enameling.

Entry blanks may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Edwin Gebhard, Normandy 4-1841, Mrs. Frank Kehoe, Spring 3-2863, Mrs. Charles Freeman, Spring 3-2961, or Mrs. Everett Lasher, Spring 2-7709.

To qualify for exhibition the work must have been done within the last two years. Any one individual is entitled to only two entries. No entry will be accepted which has been shown in any AAUW show before.

The exhibition is planned to stimulate interest in art and to acquaint the community with the work being done by local artists. No prizes are given and the work is not judged. The exhibits will be in three groupings, those by adults, by students, and those which have appeared previously in a major gallery show.

the steady increase in women workers.

—Emancipation of her sex, with the constitution's equal rights provision.

—Post-war inflation; which meant the father no longer could be the sole support of the family.

—The war years themselves, when womanpower was a must and the stigma previously put on the working woman was removed.

—New educational opportunities. Before the war most universities were closed to women; to be educated, a girl had to attend a private school. Now most universities are open to women.
