

Nixon Challenges Demo Candidates To Pick Foreign Policy

Baltimore, Md.—(UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon challenged Democratic congressional candidates Tuesday to say whether they would prefer a continuation of the present "firm" Eisenhower foreign policy "or a return to the Acheson policy."

Launching a new political campaign swing, Nixon denounced what he called the "weakness of vacillation" of Truman Administration's Far Eastern policies.

Dean Acheson was Truman's Secretary of State.

No War Party

Nixon tempered his criticism of the Democrats by declaring "there is no war party in the United States. There is only one party of treason—the Communist Party."

Nixon served notice that he intends to continue defending the administration's foreign policy in the next two weeks before the election. He said foreign policy is a "proper and necessary subject" for political debate.

He said the Administration is proud that many Democrats have supported a "firm" policy on Quemoy and Matsu. He mentioned Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) as a "notable example."

But he contrasted what he called the "moderate" Democratic Congressional leadership with the leadership of the Democratic National Committee and its advisory committee.

Radicalism Charged

He said the national committee was "radical in its approach to economic problems," while the advisory committee was "bitterly partisan" in a recent Far Eastern policy statement which, he said, was written by former Secretary of State Acheson.

He said the nation learned first from Hitler and then in Korea that "a weak policy is a war policy, a firm policy is a peace policy."

"We believe," he said, "that the record of this administration—which got the nation out of one war, has kept it out of others and has maintained peace without surrender of principle or territory over the past six years—proves the wisdom of our policy of firmness and strength."

"On the contrary," he said, "we believe that the policy of weakness and vacillation of the previous administration which was developed under Mr. Acheson... has been tried and found wanting."

Right thinking as used in Christian Science, the speaker said, applies exclusively to spiritual thinking. According to the teachings of Christian Science, Wuth said, chance and accident, regardless of the activity in which they occur, are without authority of any kind.

Right thinking, he explained, is directly related to safety, for once a person rules out of consciousness the belief in a law of chance and accident, and subscribes instead a fuller realization that there is one Mind only one can prevent accidents from occurring and feel the safety, peace, and confidence which come through Mind's harmonious government.

Governor Urges Flights To Hawaii

Salem—(UP)—Gov. Robert D. Holmes today urged the Civil Aeronautics Board to give permanent status to air service between the Pacific Northwest and Hawaii.

In a telegram to CAB hearings in Seattle, where Oregon is being represented by the Public Utility Commission and the Department of Planning and Development, Gov. Holmes said:

"I feel that the state of Oregon and the Portland metropolitan area deserve the best in air service facilities and continuation of present carrier authorizations."

Both Pan American and Northwest Orient Airlines are seeking permanent authorization.

The Home Extension unit of Eagle Point will hold a tin can craft work shop at the home of Mrs. Ray Chamberlain, Brownsboro rd., on Friday, Oct. 24, starting at 10 a.m., with a potluck luncheon at noon. Each one attending is asked to bring their own table service.

The material required to bring are gloves, tin snips, cans, sharp nose pliers. The lesson is to be given by Mrs. Bob Walsh.

The Eagle Point Grange held their booster night Saturday, Oct. 18, with an attendance of about 80. Guests at the meeting were candidates running for county and state offices. Following the potluck dinner, dancing and entertainment by several groups was scheduled.

UNDER THE HAT—British troops in Nicosia, Cyprus, keep their distance from a hat (foreground) lying in the middle of a street commonly known as "Murder Mile." Under the hat is an unexploded bomb, believed to have been planted by the EOKA terrorist organization. Earlier, a similar "hat" bomb had exploded in the area. This one was later dismantled by a British bomb expert.

ATOMIC CLOCKS

New York—(UP)—American and British-made atomic clocks were compared and found to be only one-20,000th of a second apart in each 24 hours of operation. Each clock was constructed to different standards, demonstrating that time measurement keyed to the innerworkings of the atom is the most accurate yet devised.
