Seaton Tells Of Opposition To Hells Dam

Hastings, Neb.—UPI—Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton said Thursday night the administration consistently opposed a $600 million federal dam at Hells Canyon because it "was and is the reclamation fraud of the 20th Century."

Seaton told the Nebraska Reclamation Association that the Eisenhower administration opposed the federal dam when "three dams built by a private company at no cost to the taxpayers, would practically match the federal dam in flood control and power generation benefits."

The administration's report, he said, was based on a study by the Federal Power Commission. Hells Canyon is on the Snake river in Idaho.

Land Not Involved

"Not one single acre of irrigated land was ever directly involved in the proposal," Seaton said of the federal dam.

The secretary also said the administration favored joint development of the Trinity River Division of the Central Valley Project in California. A private company would install the generating facilities at the Trinity dam, he said, thus saving taxpayers $60 million.

The present administration, he said, has installed 85 per cent more generating capacity in the Northwest than the Truman administration during its last five years.

Stocks Register Irregular Gains

New York—UPI—Stocks registered an irregular gain today.

Chemicals, some of the metals, drugs, office equipments and special issues declined. Steels, selected motors, tobaccos, rails, some oils and special issues moved higher.

Traders said the list behaved very well in the face of another boost in the discount rate by five of the 12 Federal Reserve banks.

American Motors ran up more than two points at its best to a new high. The company reported its sales for the first 20 days of October totaled 15,889 cars against 9,680 in the same period of last year.

Nixon Meets Rockefeller; Rift Denied

New York—UPI—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York's Republican gubernatorial candidate Nelson A. Rockefeller met for a 30-minute breakfast today. Both later denied there was any rift between them to be patched up.

Rockefeller, however, continued to disassociate his campaigning "on state issues" for "state office" from Nixon's campaigning "for congressional candidates."

Absolute Bunk

Nixon spent 30 hours here, but he met Rockefeller only in private a few minutes before the vice president left to continue his barnstorming in Wisconsin.

Rockefeller said reports of a rift between him and Nixon were "absolute bunk," "absolute fabrication." He said he thought Nixon's visit here was "going to be tremendously helpful to the ticket in New York" but he evaded questions as to whether it was helpful to his own campaign against Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman.

The two men posed for pictures together, but did not meet reporters except separately. Nixon said "as far as anything being patched up I will say there was nothing to patch up."

Predicts Victory

In what he said was "one of the first flat predictions I have made," Nixon said he predicted "Nelson Rockefeller, Ken Keating (Rep. Kenneth B. Keating, GOP senatorial candidate), and the whole New York ticket at both the national and state levels are going to win."

The morning meeting was scheduled late Thursday night after considerable published speculation that Rockefeller was avoiding Nixon in an attempt to win votes by disassociating himself from the national administration. Harriman charged Thursday night that Rockefeller is "trying to pretend he has nothing to do with the Republican party... Is he ashamed of being a Republican?"

UN Halloween Project Scheduled By Local Groups

Medford service clubs, city school leaders and members of Medford chapter, Oregon United Nations association, are working this year to make the annual UNICEF Halloween project more extensive than in the past.

The UNICEF project serves a double purpose in that it provides a constructive project for children on Halloween, and at the same time is a means of collecting money for food and medicine for children in underprivileged countries. The schools are used as neighborhood headquarters for the project, and service clubs provide cider and doughnuts for the children.

Posters, tags and milk cartons with the UNICEF stickers in which the coins are collected by the children, will be distributed to the schools by UN chapter workers. An effort is being made to double the number of children taking part in the project.

It is stated that last year many adults were ready with small coins, but no UNICEF spoons and goblets came to call. This year parents are planning to gather the children into carloads, pick up the cartons and tags and then return to their own neighborhoods to visit homes. In this way it is thought all householders will be reached and some not visited over and over.

"All over the United States parents and leaders have endorsed the plan whereby American children may turn their efforts to aiding children of other countries who are sick and hungry" according to Mrs. Marris Gibbons, UN chairman of the project. Last year Oregon children collected 1,284,265 pennies through the new "trick is to treat" Halloween project.

Orthopedic Supplies Store to Open Here

Formal opening of Medford Orthopedic Supplies, 7 South Riverside ave., will be held Wednesday, Oct. 29, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., according to Jay L. Goodman, manager and part owner.

The store, one of its kind between here and Eugene, is equipped with orthopedic and surgical appliances and has been supplying patients for the past few days, although the finishing touches on redecorating the property are not quite completed.

Wheel chairs, walkers, crutches, canes, hospital beds, braces and support and all types of sick-room supplies and equipment for both hospital and home use will be available.

The store, now undergoing renovation and redecoration includes reception and display rooms, two fitting rooms, a supply room and workshop, and an office.

The business resulted from Goodman's experience in World War II, when as pharmacist mate first class, he assisted in orthopedic wards in two California Naval hospitals and aboard ship for more than three years.

Following the war, he moved from California to Oregon, attended Southern Oregon college and bought a ranch near Trail. Later he took a special course in San Francisco, qualifying him as a surgical appliance technician.

Goodman has been in business in Medford for the past 10 years. For the past four years he has been employed as merchandiser at Watson's Pharmacy.
