

Science and Religion Said Remarkably Similar

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
Science and religion are "remarkably similar" in their approach to truth.

That is the conclusion of Dr. William G. Pollard, one of the few men in the world who qualifies as a professional in both fields.

Pollard is a distinguished atomic physicist who serves, on week days, as executive director of the Institute of Nuclear Studies at Oak Ridge, Tenn. Since 1954 he has also been an ordained Episcopal minister, serving as priest-in-charge of St. Francis church at Norris, Tenn.

His dual experience has made Pollard acutely aware of a contrast in popular attitudes toward science and religion.

"People think of science as an objective body of knowledge that can be demonstrated to be true," he said in an interview. "They think of religion as a private, subjective experience that has to be taken on faith."

To Pollard, this reflects the "special prejudices of our contemporary culture" rather than any inherent difference in the "fundamental characteristics" of scientific and religious truth.

"It is difficult to demonstrate to a non-scientist even the elementary principles of physics," he said. "If a person really wants to prove to himself the truth of the whole structure of physics, there is only one way to do it. He must take the long, hard, disciplined route of becoming a physicist. Otherwise, he is simply taking on faith the validity of the insights that are shared by those on the inside of the community of physics."

"It's precisely the same way with Christianity. The only way to prove its truth is to become a Christian—a full Christian, deeply involved in the church, under its discipline, sharing its life. Then the truth of it breaks through."

Pollard knows that many people who would hesitatingly accept his findings as a physicist will be skeptical of his findings as a Christian.

"This is part of the mind-set of our age," he said. "We have been conditioned for nearly two centuries to accept uncritically the idea that science has a more reliable access to reality than religion."

Pollard believes this prejudice against religion which has dominated intellectual circles since the 18th century has begun to ebb rapidly.

"Everywhere I go," he said, "I run into scientists and university professors who have followed the same path I did into the Christian faith—not because of any cataclysmic personal crisis, but simply because they have found in it the ultimate answers to man's deepest questions."

To further this "renaissance," Pollard said, the Christian church should concentrate on proclaiming its Gospel, not as something that modern man should believe, but as something he can believe.

"There are millions of people who are ready to acknowledge that Christianity may be admirable and helpful, but who do not believe it is true," he said.

"They find it quite shocking that we Christians should claim that Almighty God, the creator of the nebulae and the galaxies, actually came down from heaven at a particular point in history, and for us men and our salvation was made man.

"They say, 'Of course, you don't really mean that.' But we do mean that—not anything less. And the really astounding thing is that those who have tested this shocking claim, in the only way it can be tested, are absolutely certain that it is true."

Dr. D. Kirkland West, pastor of First Presbyterian church, Medford, will preach the sermon of ordination and will ask the constitutional questions during the service. His topic will be "A Heavenly Vision."

The invocation and Lord's Prayer will be given by the Rev. William A. Saladin of Phoenix First Presbyterian church with the Rev. John O. Reynolds, Westminster Presbyterian church, Medford, reading the scripture.

The Rev. Bruce Ellithorpe, North Bend, will deliver the charge to the minister and the charge to the congregation will be by the Rev. B. J. Holland, Ashland.

Congregations of Medford, Ashland, Phoenix and Central Point are invited to attend. Music for the occasion will be by the church trio, Mrs. Race Anders, Mrs. Melvin Hall and Mrs. W. A. Worden.

Anyone having questions about the Roman Catholic church, or desiring more information about the practices, beliefs and teachings of the Roman Catholic religion, is also invited to attend the Inquiry classes currently being held every Wednesday for one hour, beginning at 8:10 p. m., in St. Mary's school. The main entrance to the school is at the corner of 11th and Ivy sts.

There are no obligations imposed upon those attending either the open house or the Inquiry classes and no admission charges or collections will be taken, it was announced.

All Catholic parishes throughout the state are conducting similar open house and information programs as the conclusion to a recently conducted census and information crusade. The purpose of this crusade was to obtain current and complete data on all Catholics, to invite those having no church affiliation to take part in Inquiry classes and to bring a better understanding of the Catholic religion to those of other faiths.

Further information about either the open house or Inquiry classes may be obtained by telephoning the church rectory, SPring 3-1913.

The principal address of the assembly, "The Watch Tower Society in God's Purpose" will be given at 3 p. m. Sunday, October 26 at the Shasta County fairgrounds by Eugene D. Rosam Jr., from Jehovah's Witnesses world headquarters in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Adventist Offering To Combat Liquor

An offering which will be taken Oct. 25 in Adventist churches throughout North America will be used to nationally advertise the facts of the growing liquor problem. Part of the funds will be used to distribute "Listen," the magazine of the American Temperance Society, among American teenagers.

For Seventh-day Adventists, refraining from the use of tobacco or alcoholic beverages is a test of church fellowship, according to John D. Trude, pastor of the Medford Seventh-day Adventist church.

Sixty-five per cent of the adult population of our country drink beverages containing alcohol. Four million American citizens are alcoholics. These are the reports that cause the Medford Seventh-day Adventist churches to be concerned with this problem that faces America today.

Eastwood Baptist Pastor To Speak at State Event

The Rev. Richard M. Jones, pastor of Eastwood Baptist church, will preach the annual sermon at the 70th Annual Session of the Oregon Baptist convention to be held Oct. 24, 25 and 26 at the First Baptist church, Oregon City. Others attending from the Eastwood Baptist church will be Mrs. Jones, Mrs. S. D. Earhart, Mrs. Herbert Fields and Mr. and Mrs. Dean S. Anderson.

Featured speaker of the convention will be Mrs. Maurice B. Hodge, member of the First Baptist church in Portland and currently president of the American Baptist Convention. This is the first year that a week end convention has been planned, giving opportunity for more laymen to attend all the sessions. Mr. Jones will return on Saturday evening from the convention in order to be in the pulpit on Sunday.

"Who Created God?" is the title of the sermon to be given by Mr. Jones at the 11 a. m. worship service Sunday. The church choir will sing. Nursery care is provided for both the church school and morning worship hours.

The young people of the church meet at 6:30 p. m. The pastor will preach the concluding sermon in a series on "Beliefs That Matter," at 7:30 p. m. Sunday. The title will be "Beliefs That Keep Me Going." Carroll Graber will lead the singing for the song service.

Eastwood Baptist church is affiliated with the American Baptist Convention and is located north of Hedrick High school. Visitors are welcome to all of its services.

Saturday night Evangelist Breeze will discuss, "The Law Christians Need Not Keep." Preceding the sermon there will be a film entitled, "Dust or Destiny."

"Nine Ways to Tell If You Are Saved or Lost" will be listed in Sunday night's disclosure.

Musical selections by the Gospel Male Quartet and tenor soloist Monty Jones will be featured as well as audience participation song service in each night's program, and organ and piano music will be contributed by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Turner.

Each sermon during the eight weeks crusade will be on the theme of Christian growth with a different Bible school class being host for the Sunday evening service each week. Sunday the Men's Bible class will be hosts with the sermon topic "The Growth of a Christian in Faith" at the 10:45 a. m. service.

Oct. 28 through 30, the Medford pastor will attend the western regional meetings of conservative Baptists to be held in Eugene. The association includes churches from nine western states.

The Rev. H. C. Covert, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, will speak on "Hammer Blows That Resound Around the World." The Reformation Sunday sermon will be given at 11 a. m.

The Senior Luther League will meet at the church Sunday at 3 p. m. and will go bowling. From there they will go to the home of Albert Watson, 109 Laurel st. for refreshments and their regular Luther League meeting. Eric Ewaldsen will present the topic for the evening and Wayne Olson will give the devotions.

Sunday, Nov. 2, Zion Lutheran church will have a Family Halloween get-together in the YMCA. The evening of fun will start with a game-time for children and adults from 6 to 7:30 p. m. From 7:30 to 8 p. m. a family film will be shown and from 8 to 8:30 p. m. refreshments will be served. All families of the church are invited to attend.

Immanuel Methodist church, and Wilderville Methodist church, both Cave Junction, were winners in the annual Town and County Church conference held at the Oregon State college last week. Fifteen Oregon churches shared the $2,000 awards money provided by the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Immanuel Methodist was first place winner in the division for churches in areas under 2,500 population last year. This year it tied with two other churches for fifth place in that division. The Wilderville church, in the open country division, also placed fifth.

FAYE FROEHRICH Wins Sunday School Award

Last Sunday, at the Apostolic Faith Church, Faye Froehrich was presented with a pin which represents eleven years' perfect attendance in Sunday school. Miss Froehrich has attended the local Sunday school beginning in the primary department and through to the senior department. She is a member of the Young People's choir, and plays violin in the church orchestra.

The Sunday school uses a system of awards starting with a "welcome" pin, which is given when a new pupil enrolls. The pupil receives a gold-plated pin for one year's attendance, the second year is represented by a wreath that fits around the first-year pin, then for succeeding years gold bars are given which fasten to the wreath.

Since January 1 numerous pins have been awarded for below five years' attendance. The following have received awards for longer periods: Norma Jean Comstock and Paul Roby, five years; Laura Noble, Milton O'Neill, and Marcia Willoughby, six years; and Bernice Froehrich, eight years.

Faye Froehrich, a senior at Medford High school, is a daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Froehrich, 35 North Orange st.
